FEDERAL COURT

Everything Is Ready For Opening of January Term.
Expected the Term Will Last Three or Four Weeks.

The January term of federal court will open tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, with Judge Page Morris presiding. The first business taken up will be an informal call of the calendar. The grand jury will also be charged at the morning session and set to work. The petit jurors have already been announced, but the grand jurors are summoned from the office of the clerk of federal courts in St. Paul, and their names are not announced until the body is called on the first day of the term.

It is expected that the business of the term will not be completed in less than three or four weeks' time. The calendar contains twenty-four cases, and several criminal matters will be placed before the grand jury for investigation. The docket of that branch of the court is made up in St. Paul, and only the cases which were heard on preliminary examination before Commissioner Pressnell are on record at the Duluth office.

The first case to come before the petit jury will be that of the United States against the Pittsburg Steamship company. It is claimed one of the steamship company's boats collided with a government breakwater at South Chicago, greatly damaging it. The government brought the action to recover damages.

One of the most important cases will be that of Mary McCutcheon, of Hibbing, against Albert H. Powers. Mrs. McCutcheon brought suit for $50,000 damages on behalf of her daughter, charging Powers with being responsible for the ruin of the girl's health and character.

Another case of much interest will be that brought by the Knudsen-Ferguson Fruit company against the Michigan Central Railroad company for the recovery of $27, claimed to be for an overcharge in transporting a carload of grapes from Mattawa, Mich., to Duluth, and an additional $50 for attorney's fees, together with costs and disbursements of the action. The suit was originally instituted in district court, near Cloquet, is held on a charge of embezzling money from the United States mails. Louis Defaut, an Indian from the Fond du Lac reservation, near Cloquet, is held on a charge of arson. It is claimed he set fire to the reservation jail.

ADDRESSED BY BRYAN

The Nebraska Statesman Speaks to the Missouri Legislature.

Jefferson City, Jan. 8.—Col. W. J. Bryan, who came with his wife today to attend the inauguration of Governor Folk, addressed the legislature on invitation of the Republican house. The speaker, who was heartily received, congratulated the people upon the election of Mr. Folk, because, he said, it was the reward for they well performed. Corporation influences, the speaker said, often controlled officials, and to stop this he favored municipal ownership of public institutions. He advocated the establishment of state fire and state life insurance departments to furnish insurance to the people at cost.

"I do not think our banks are safe," said Col. Bryan. "They are so arranged that they make money on good times and throw the risk on the depositors in bad times." He then made reference to the affair of Mrs. Chidwick.

Col. Bryan commended President Roosevelt for recommending legislation to have campaign contributions printed. He also commended the president for his recommendation of legislation enlarging the powers of the interstate commerce commission. "Railroads control much legislation," said Col. Bryan, "and if President Roosevelt is in earnest in curbing their power, he will lead a strenuous life during the next four years."

THE OMNIBUS CLAIMS BILL
Passed By Senate Carries Appropriations of $2,800,000.

Washington, Jan. 8.—When the senate convened today Mr. Mallory presented the minority report of the merchant marine commission. It was referred to the committee on commerce.

A resolution was passed providing for the printing of six hundred copies of the proceedings of the hearings and before the commission and the same number of copies of the majority report. At the request of Mr. Lodge, the senate set apart Jan. 25, for the delivery of addresses on the life and character of the late Senator Horner.

The omnibus claims bill was then considered. Several committee amendments were adopted and the bill was passed. It carried direct appropriations amounting to about $2,800,000.

IN THE HOUSE.
Washington, Jan. 8.—When the house convened today Mr. Van Voorhes, of Ohio, from the committee on appropriations, reported the pension appropriation bill. At the same time Mr. Underwood (Ala.) submitted the views of the minority in reference to it.

The house then went into committee of the whole for the consideration of measures relating to the district of Columbia. Mr. Currier (N. H.) in the chair.

EXPERTS ON TYPEWRITER
Show That Koch May Have Written Poison Package Address.

St. Paul, Jan. 8.—A special to the Dispatch from New Ulm, Minn., says: In the trial of Dr. G. R. Koch on the charge of having murdered Dr. L. A. Gebhardt Nov. 1, the state today examined G. W. Barnes, who had an office opposite Dr. Koch's to show that Dr. Koch used a typewriter in Barnes' office. By H. P. Baird, of St. Paul, agent for the typewriter company, which furnished the typewriter, the state showed a defective alignment of letters in the machine and then on handing the witness box which contained the alleged poison, sent to Dr. Gebhardt shortly before the murder, the state endeavored to show that the address "Dr. L. A. Gebhardt, New Ulm, Minn." was written on that typewriter. The witness said he had written the same address on the same machine and the imperfections in the alignment of the letters were similar to those in the address on the box. His testimony was corroborated by Percy Livsey, of St. Paul, a typewriter repairman for the same typewriter company.

MERE FORMALITY
Will Be Meeting of Board of Inquiry.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—The meeting of the board of inquiry appointed by Bishop Tuttle, presiding bishop of the Episcopal church, to consider the charges made by Rev. Dr. W. I. Irvine, the deposed priest, against Bishop Edward Talbot, of the diocese of Central Pennsylvania, will be a mere formality. The board will meet in Reading, Pa., tomorrow, but as the priest's statement against Bishop Talbot has been withdrawn the investigation will doubtless be quashed.

FOURNIER PRESIDENT
Of Commission on North Sea Incident.

Paris, Jan. 8.—The international commission appointed to inquire into the North sea incident resumed its sessions at the foreign office today. Admirals Von Spaun (Austria) and Dousnessoff (Russia) were present. The latter's appointment was officially announced, this making permanent Admiral Kazankoff's retirement on account of illness. Admiral Fournier was chosen permanent president. In the course of his speech of acceptance Admiral Fournier said he hoped the commission would be inspired with the same moderation and wisdom which Emperor Nicholas and King Edward had shown in referring the question to arbitration.

SHIPPERS MEET

Hold Another Conference In Matter of Switching Charges.

Suggestion That Legislatures Be Petitioned In Private Car Evil.

Saturday night's shippers' meeting at the Commercial club was short, and unfolded but little new in the situation regarding switching charges. Some of the big firms like the Marshall-Wells Co., Kelley-How-Thomson Co. and Stone-Ordean-Wells Co. were represented. A grain man stated that at present the weighing of a car which had to be hauled to the elevators for the purpose involved a total charge of $3, or $1.50 each way. Those in the meeting thought one charge of $1.50 was enough for both hauls.

Commission men occasionally order in pairs getting the orders for both filled in one car. Under such a circumstance each has to pay $3, one charge of $3 being from connecting line to the district, and the other from the first commission house to the second. One payment of $3, was thought should cover both movements.

The grievance committee, C. L. Twohy, chairman, will meet tomorrow to consider resolutions and schedules to be drawn up and submitted to the Northern Pacific freight officials at St. Paul for their consideration. The Pioneer Press says: "The local Freight Agents' association yesterday decided that henceforth no received of freight shall be trusted who cannot point to Dun or Bradstreet as an evidence that he has $50,000 or more. Every receiver of freight and jobber rated by the mercantile agencies at less than $50,000 must pay cash when freight is delivered."

"Hitherto the local association has had a credit list upon which appeared the names of shippers and jobbers in the city rated at $10,000 or higher. The Freight Agents' association, of Minneapolis and Duluth also had similar list. It was concluded yesterday from past experience that some of these firms and individuals were slow in their payments."

"The credit list was a great convenience for both the jobber and the railroad. It did away with rendering and collecting small bills every time a consignment of goods was delivered. The list will be very materially curtailed, and the larger firms will be trusted."

"The Duluth Local Freight Agents' association has taken no such action for the reason that there is no credit rating for basing any shippers' responsibility. It is frequently the case that a consignment is made for the convenience of the shipper and the railroad company before the freight is in order. The consignment may not be in bond until the banks open and thereby delay the consignee in his business. This is not always governed by whether the receiver is worth a certain amount of money, but whether he is a likely man at paying his bills."

SUGGESTS A PLAN.
Petition Legislatures on Private Car Evil.

W. M. Roylance, mayor of Provo, Utah, and a member of the Western Fruit Jobbers' association has written to its president, E. M. Ferguson, of this city, suggesting that a good way to get the private car line question under consideration would be to put the resolutions of the recent Omaha convention before the legislatures of such states as contain members of the Jobbers' organization. Mr. Roylance was present at the recent convention and took a great interest in the matter. He writes that he has sent for copies of the resolution to get it before the Utah legislature.

He says that he had a conference with the vice president of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, who favors doing away with the private car lines. There are, it is claimed, a large number of railroads who are opposed to the private car line system who are willing to do so if the movement is to kill the private car lines, and others who are so tied up by the larger railroads with strong private car line affiliations that they will not come out openly against the private car lines until they find the opposition has mustered enough strength to attract their alliance.

A HUGE ENGINE.
Enormous One For Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

The new articulated compound freight locomotive of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, which is the only one of the Mallet type in the country and by far the largest in the world, was first placed in active service Jan. 3, helping freight trains over the grade from Sand Patch to Rockwood, on the Connetquot division, a distance of sixteen miles.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad had this powerful locomotive built at the Schenectady, N. Y., works of the American Locomotive company, and as soon as completed it was placed with the road's exhibit at the St. Louis exposition. The latter part of December it was dismantled, taken to the company's shops at Cumberland and put in order for use on the road. An official test run was made between Cumberland and Hyndman, fourteen miles, where it was run on Jan. 4, which was successful. Sand Patch is 33 miles west of Cumberland and from there to Rockwood the grade ranges from 1.5 to nearly 2 per cent.

The heaviest grade is at the rate of about 1000 feet to the mile. The locomotive was secured for use in the "pusher service" to help freight trains over Sand Patch hill, on the Allegheny mountains.

It is, in fact, a pair of locomotives with one boiler. The engine, in working order, weighs 334,500 pounds and the weight of the tender filled with 7000 gallons of water and thirteen tons of coal is 145,000 pounds. It has the greatest heating surface ever put into a locomotive—5586 square feet, of which 219.4 square feet are in the fire-box, and 5392.6 square feet in the tubes, which are twenty-one feet long. These proportions outdo anything of the kind designed for a locomotive. The immense power of the locomotive may be conceded by the drawbar pull of 70,000 pounds, which it can exert working compound, or 80,000 pounds in simple gear. The boiler will carry a working pressure of 225 pounds.

Women's Compartments.

Since the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul has put in operation observation cars which have women's compartments, the Council Bluffs Nonpareil has commented as follows: "Ordinarily a woman is pretty much of an intruder in an observation car, when she has the nerve to fight her way through the tobacco smoke and timidly pick out a seat which isn't occupied by the feet of some imperial male being."

"There is no doubt about it, the most effective answer to the man who claims America to be a paradise for chivalry would be to dress him up as a woman and make him spend two days in an American railway coach. The custom of providing 10 by 10 compartments for men to smoke in and 4 by 4 closets for women to dress in, three at a time, is a regular tribute on the progress of civilization. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway ought to be given a medal."

International Depot.

An international depot to be used by four railroads will be built at Emerson on the international boundary between the United States and Canada. The four roads which have decided to erect jointly the peculiar building are the Great Northern, the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern and the Soo line. In addition to being a railway depot it will also be a custom house, both governments using portions of the building for that purpose. The present station at Emerson is inadequate to accommodate the volume of business. The new building will be modern in every detail and will go a long way in expediting the movement of trains and the transfer of passengers and baggage.

Railroad Notes.

Capt. John H. Ruder, formerly of the White Star line, has been appointed captain of the new steamship Minnesota of the Great Northern Steamship company, which sails from Seattle for the Orient, Jan. 21. Capt. Ruder is the veteran commander of the big ship, who piloted it around Terra Del Fuoco, on the long trip from New York to Seattle, has retired on account of failing health.

In Saturday's issue of The Herald an item regarding the rate on emigrant movables indicated that the charge had been changed from $1 per 50 cents per 100 pounds, which would mean an increase of 400 per cent. The statement should have been that the rate had been reduced from $1 per 100 to 50 cents per 100 pounds, or cut in two.

President W. E. Fitch of the South Shore road is here today. W. W. Walker, general freight agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, has gone to Chicago.

George H. Anthony, commercial agent of the Wisconsin Central, has gone on a trip to Western points.

ANOTHER CRUSADE
West Duluth Women Again Get After Saloon-Keepers.

Warrants for a number of saloonkeepers in West Duluth, the West End, and on Superior and Fourth streets, will be sworn out this afternoon by members of the West Duluth W. C. T. U. and Charles E. Holt, a reformer, who gained considerable notoriety in Duluth several years ago in connection with a campaign against the saloons.

Mr. Holt, in company with two members of the society, Mrs. Keyes and Mrs. McKinley, visited a number of the saloons yesterday between the hours of 5 and 7 p. m. It is not known how many saloons were visited in all, but among them were those of G. Krueger, Oscar Flier, John Gonski and J. Scharski, all on Fourth street.

General and the members of the W. C. T. U. called on Assistant City Attorney McKee this afternoon, and it is understood they secured warrants for eight or ten saloonkeepers in different parts of the city. The warrants will be served this afternoon and the men probably brought into municipal court tomorrow morning.

On the occasion of the last campaign about two months ago, several of the men pleaded not guilty, and were convicted on the testimony of the women.

HAS TONSILITIS.
Nan Patterson Is Ill In Tombs Prison.

New York, Jan. 8.—Nan Patterson, who is awaiting a second trial on the charge of killing Caesar Young, a wealthy book-maker and turfman, is ill with tonsillitis in her cell in the Tombs prison. Her condition is regarded as serious by the Tombs physician, and he said she probably would have to submit to an operation for the removal of her tonsils.

SPANISH DUCHESS
Refuses $300,000 For Famous Old Velasquez Painting.

Madrid, Jan. 9.—An instance of remarkable patriotism on the part of a Spanish woman has just come to light. The Duchess Villahermosa is the possessor of a picture painted by the famous Velasquez—a portrait of Don Diego Arlano of the court of Philip IV.

She lately received an offer from a rich American of $300,000 for this picture, but she declined the tempting offer. In the reply which she sent to the American millionaire the Duchess said:

"I love art and despise money, and in order to prevent others after my death doing what I now refuse to do, I intend to bequeath the picture to the Prado museum in Madrid."

KISSED HIM GOODBYE

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 9.—Crazed by drink, Myron Coss choked his wife until she was almost dead. Leaving the house as soon as she was able, she went to make complaint against him and he followed downtown, securing a revolver and cartridges and returning to wait for her. A little daughter named Mrs. Coss before she reached home and she did not go near.

Coss was arrested and on Saturday was sent to the Detroit House of Correction to serve seventy-five days. His wife kissed him goodbye and was very thankful.

TO TEST NEW LAW.

Railroad Files Suit Against Wisconsin Attorney General.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 9.—Papers were filed today against Attorney General Sturdevant by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and the Wisconsin Western railroads to test the new ad valorem tax law, which would tax the taxes of the St. Paul road about $200,000, and of the Western about $800.

The contention is that electric roads carry passengers and freight also, but are not so taxed as St. Paul, whose sleeping cars and pays taxes on them, which other roads do not, and that such amounts to confiscation of the property.

ADVERTISE DULUTH

Many Articles on Ferry Bridge Given Wide Publicity.

Both English and American Journals Tell of Bridge.

The amount of free advertising that Duluth is securing from the aerial ferry bridge is a matter of much gratification to all who are interested in the development of the city.

Practically every scientific magazine in the country has contained an article descriptive of the new bridge. The Scientific American contained a long article in a recent issue, and the Engineering News, one of the most important engineering journals, has had several references to it. A recent issue of another scientific journal had the entire front page devoted to a picture of the bridge.
The publicity is not confined to the engineering journals and scientific papers, but nearly every large daily newspaper in the East has contained some reference to the bridge, and many of them have published pictures of it.

The advertising is not confined to this country, but the English papers also taken it up. The City Engineer received a request this morning for a picture of the bridge from a well-known engineer living in Washington. He stated that he was the American representative for several scientific journals published in London, England, and that he had been requested for an article on the Duluth ferry bridge from the editors of two of the journals.

Local insurance men and jobbing houses have printed pictures of the bridge on most of their advertising matter, and a local liquor firm has even gone so far as to get out a brand of whisky named after the bridge.

"That's the only thing about the bridge the city officials haven't inspected," said the city engineer this morning.

WOULD HUNT WOLVES HERE

County Auditor Gets Numerous Letters of Inquiry From Outside.

"This office receives a large number of written inquiries regarding wolves in St.
Louis county," said Deputy Auditor J. O.
Walker, this morning.

"Nearly every day the mails bring in letters from follows all over the state, outside the county, who desire to know all the particulars relative to wolf hunting about Duluth. Some of the letters are really funny, the writers seeming to have the impression that the wolves are so thick in the main streets of Duluth that the citizens dare not go out nights, and that they have to barricade themselves in their houses and stand guard all night.

"The only thing this office can do is to tell the inquirers how much bounty is paid here and what the method of procedure is to obtain it. As for the proximity of the wolves and the size of the packs, we have to refer them to the county newspapers."

The Herald has already received a letter from a man at Albert Lea, Minn., who wishes to know how far he will have to go from Duluth to find wolves. He says if there is any chance of getting any wolves, himself and three companions will come up here and save the lives of the community.

MRS. DALTON APPEARS.
And Claims Tickets Which Were Awaiting Her.

Mrs. Emma Dalton, for whom the humane officer has been searching for the last week, appeared this morning in the office of the society.

The humane officer received notice last week that transportation awaited Mrs.
Dalton at a local railroad office, to take her back to her home in Spring Valley.
The tickets have been provided by the woman's mother, but in the meantime she had disappeared and the tickets were held for her. She called this morning and was given an order for the tickets by Mr. Withrow. She said she had secured a position on a farm near Duluth and had been working there.

SICKENING SIVERING PITS of Ague and Malaria, can be relieved and cured with Electric Bitters. This is a pure, tonic medicine, of especial benefit in malaria, for it exerts a true curative influence on the disease, driving it entirely out of the system. It is useful to be referred to Quinine, having none of this drug's bad after-effects. S. Munday, of Henrietta, Tex., writes: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice, till he took Electric Bitters, which saved his life." At all druggists;
price 80c, guaranteed.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

NORTH DAKOTA.
Devils Lake—Sheriff Rutten arrived from Manitoba, having in charge Harry months ago, a horse and buggy belonging to P. J. Kersten, of Devils Lake, and a team belonging to Charles Peterson, a farmer living near town, were stolen. This property was found in the possession of McPhail, who had a livery barn at Treherne. McPhail was married two weeks ago, and there was a pitiful scene when the sheriff took him from his heartbroken wife.

Fargo—The criminal calendar in district court has been postponed till the latter part of the month. The chief case of interest is that of infanticide against Miss Nettie Guy, a professional nurse, who has resided here two or three years. H. Forester, the husband of the woman recently convicted of shoplifting, will be tried on the charge of stealing silk from a local department store. Mythen charge against the Xystoids of Kindred will be heard also several minor cases.

Thomas A. Ashley, of New Rockford, was found in a snowdrift here so intoxicated he could not walk. He was taken in charge by the police and put up the old story about being drugged in Moorhead. Among his possessions was a receipt from a Moorhead saloon man for $30. He had not been in the snowbank long enough to be badly frozen.

Some state officials want a bill passed by the legislature to compel the owners of diseased animals that are ordered killed. The question comes up on the custom of burying the bodies of glandered horses ordered killed by veterinarians. It is asserted that grass, grain and crops grow over the bodies of horses and are infected from the disease.

germs of the body which have entered the

Minot—The Ward County Publishers' association was organized here last evening with P. S. Ware, editor of the Flaxton Times, as president, and P. W. Sharp, of the Bowditch Bulletin, as secretary-treasurer. There are some twenty-seven newspapers in Ward county and this is their first organization.

Lead—Local sportsmen have met for the purpose of presenting a bill before the legislature asking that the game law of the state be changed, especially respecting the hunting of deer. The opening of the season is to be made a month earlier, Oct. 15, and the number of deer to be killed is to be limited to two instead of three.

A committee consisting of three men was appointed to draft the bill. It is declared that the deer hunting law is broken usually by the rural hunters instead of those residing in the city.

Pierre—The supreme court handed down a decision in the case of the Phoenix insurance company vs. J. C. Perkins, insurance commissioner, in which Judge Smith of the supreme court reversed. Smith held that the companies would be required to comply with the policy provided by the insurance commissioner, which included the valued policy provision for their own standard policy. The court held that the legislature had no right to delegate to the insurance commissioner the power to draft the policy, but must shape the policy itself and that it was within legislative power to frame such a policy as desired and the companies must conform to it.

Britton—The board of county commissioners appointed Charles T. Heller, of Eden township, as sheriff of Marshall county for the two-year term for which the late H. A. Hinkley had been elected. The board also elected Heller as sheriff for the third year, when the balloting on sheriff commenced. Each commissioner favoring a particular candidate, the balloting continued from day to day, until the fourth day, when the deadlock was broken by the election of a compromise candidate.

It is possible that the action of the commissioners will be contested and carried into court, owing to a provision of the state law which declares that wherever a civil war veteran is a candidate for appointment to vacancy the appointment shall be given to him.

Sioux Falls—Required to pay $2000 as a bonus for the privilege of getting his old homestead back, after having sold it for the purpose of making a home elsewhere than in South Dakota, was the unique and costly experience of M. A. Hanson, a pioneer settler of this section.

A total of $20,000 in cash was involved in the purchase of the land. Hanson, about two years ago, was offered what he regarded as a good price for the farm and accepted it. The farm is a few miles from Sioux Falls, and consists of 250 acres. Since selling, Hanson has been looking for a desirable location elsewhere, but not finding one, he decided there was no place like the "old farm."

The man who purchased the land from him was not anxious to sell, and Hanson was required to pay an advance of $6 an acre over the price he sold it for two years ago.

HOSPITAL FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Recommended By Governor of Indiana In Inaugural Address.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 8.—In his message to the legislature Governor Hanley recommends the creation of a commission to take steps toward the establishment of a state hospital for the scientific treatment of tuberculosis. He suggested that the latter should be on the village or farm colony plan.

The gradual abolishment of prison convict labor is urged, and instead a system of workhouse under state control in which all state prisoners given full sentences shall be confined, is proposed. The governor recommends a railroad commission to determine questions of rates and collateral subjects. He says on this subject: "Without the power to fix rates, the commission would not be effective. If the evils desired to be reformed are reached, the power mentioned is essential. The law should also be so framed as to prevent unreasonable and inexcusable delay in the transportation of freight or cars or unjust discrimination in rates, either by way of rates or otherwise. It should also prohibit discrimination against localities in furnishing cars and should have some provision relative to the transfer and switching of cars. Bills of lading, releasing or limiting the common law liability of carriers with reference to property covered by such bills, while in the custody of such carrier, should be prohibited and the commission should have power to hear and determine differences affecting carriers, or between the carriers themselves."

POSTPONED ONE WEEK.

New York, Jan. 9.—The adjourned annual meeting of the Northern Securities company which was scheduled to be held in Hoboken, N. J., today, has been postponed again for one week.

LUMBERING OPERATIONS
In Michigan Show a Decided Improvement.

Bay City, Mich., Jan. 8.—Lumbering operations in Michigan promise to show this year a decided improvement over 1904. The conditions for putting in logs throughout Eastern Michigan, are exceptionally good. With the market prospects decidedly better, nearly all manufactured lumber having stiffened materially during the past few months, lumbermen are elated over the general outlook. The past fall has been dry, enabling cutting and skidding to continue without interruption and there is now plenty of snow or hauling and not enough to impede operations.

The indications are that the Eastern Michigan mills will have an available supply of over 500,000,000 feet of logs for the ensuing year.

DULUTH'S LEADING TAILOR.

Saturday afternoon the young women of the First Presbyterian church met in the church parlors to complete an organization for work in the church. A most encouraging interest was shown, about forty being present. The officers were elected, but no name was chosen for the society. Mrs. F. H. White, who was elected to the presidency, was unable to accept, so that officer is still to be filled. The remaining officers are: Vice president, Mrs. Mark Baldwin; secretary, Miss Florence Williams; Monday evening, Miss Margaret Taylor. The society will study missions, devote itself to charitable and social work in the church. The meetings will be held the first Saturday afternoon in each month, and the meetings will also be in the nature of an informal tea.

Miss Bertha Pierce entertained at St. Cloud, where she is attending the East Superior street, in honor of Miss May Jeffrey, who will leave this week with her parents for California. The affair was a most charming one and greatly enjoyed by the little guests. Mrs. D. H. Day assisted the hostess in entertaining the guests. Besides the guest of honor, covers were laid for: Misses: Margaret Mc-Gregor, Dorothy Howe, Annabel Dunning, Caroline Munger, Helen Smith, Dorothy Powell, Elsie Cole, Ruth Powell, Elizabeth Olcott, Margaret Swift.

Mrs. H. J. Achenbach, of Buffalo, N. Y., returned yesterday from a visit with friends at Wabash and the Twin Cities.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Lyness returned from a visit with relatives in Southern Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Marshall, of 1118 East Third street, left today for a month's visit at Chicago and Syracuse.

Mrs. Max Clements, of Duluth Heights, will entertain at cards tomorrow evening.

Zenith council of Royal League will entertain next Monday evening at Elks hall. Following the installation, cards luncheon Saturday at her home at 2109 the evening.

Yesterday, Jan. 8, was the ninth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Myron R. Stowell, of Pittsburg, Pa., and they spent it with Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Gough, 200 South Seventeenth avenue east. Mrs. Gough is Mr. Stowell's sister.

Miss Leona Monaghan has returned and dancing will be the amusement of normal school.

The Matinee Musical met this afternoon at Temple Ice-cream hall. The program was in charge of Mrs. John Miller and Miss Simonds, and the music of Schumann was presented.

The Unity club will meet this evening at the church on East First street. Key, John Wilson will speak on "Robert Burns and Other Scottish Poets."

The Ladies' Literature class will meet tomorrow afternoon.

The first meeting of the year of Mrs. Robert Morris Seymour's Art History class will take place tomorrow morning at the club room of the library.

Latest Parisian Novelty.
The latest Parisian novelty is shaded velvet. It is an exquisite stuff and is being used as trimming and for hats and muffs. In shaded velvet three colors usually appear on a primary color and shades obtained from it. For example, orange is shown between brown on the one side and a shade of harmonizing yellow on the other. In another, maroon shades into palest pink. The three colors take up the width of the velvet and are shaded so gradually one into the other that harmony rather than contrast is the effect obtained.

The hats made by the French milliners of this material are charming. A knot of ribbon, or a feather of some sort matching one of the colors of the hat is the only trimming and with the hat is a multi made of the shaded velvet. Colored muffs are a Parisian fancy of the present season. They are trimmed with fur or lace, and in some instances with marabou and do not come into perfect adjuncts to any costume.

Again Coming Into Favor.
Picture embroidery that has been almost entirely abandoned in this country is again coming into favor.

most out of fashion is once more coming into favor and large numbers of these decorative pieces of canvas are being imported from Germany, says an exchange.

The most celebrated artist in this line of work is Frau Hoel, a young German housewife, who has achieved great notoriety owing to the beauty of her masterpieces in silk. She embroiders her pictures straight onto the material, without an preliminary sketch, and as she is a very talented impressionistic artist, the result is extremely fine.

The most ambitious work she has completed is a round table-top, representing the four seasons having a water border done in four different shades of blue, Summer, with its poppy fields and blue sea, is particularly well treated. Another needlework picture is a spring landscape with the trees in blossom, while a sofa cushion, with rippling water, very realistically worked in shades of blue, is decidedly ingenious. This cushion design was recently bought by the man crown prince when he inspected the work in Berlin.

At the End of the Season.
I met a little quarterback. He was a bird, he said. There were some scars upon his face. And bumps upon his head.

"Our bunch is to the bad," said he. "We are a crippled crowd."

"This morning when I looked them over I swear I wept aloud."

"Alas," said he, "a few are here, and some, I trust, in heaven. Before the season opened up I think we were clever."

"We were a sassy bunch," quoth he. "Before we got into the game we were two of us in the churchyard. Our center and our fullback."

"Our right guard broke his vertebra. Our left guard lost an arm; I am the only player left who has not met with harm."

I sought to ascertain from him how many were in heaven. But he could only weep and say, "Kind sir, we were eleven."

Having lived with Indians a large part of his life, Professor Starr is familiar with the hieroglyphics of the Aztecs, and is now at work on a book on the history of the origin of the North American Indians.

VAGABOND CATS
Carried Off the Honors at Cat Show.

New York, Jan. 9.—Nine vagabond cats carried off awards from the Madison Square Garden show, wherein were entered all the Persian tabbies and other blue bloods.

Swagging rosters re-claimed from sin, ash-barrel celebrities and second-story acts, whose agility at dodging bottle or back-lash had lent them back-fence fame. The entire brigade was taken in by a man who had been given the name of "Mortimer."

Snooks, whose name is expressive of his original sin, came out as winner over black pusses of high degree. He was given the name of "Mortimer" because of his specialty in the conversion of bad cats.

Another important fact which has been cleared up, the defense declares, is that the cat was not the one who was sent to the post office in Tucker's pocket the night of the arrest.

The prosecution claims that on this postal card there are the words "Morton" and "Charles-town." The postal card was seen yesterday by Mr. Vahey.

It is a card that was sent to the post office through the mails, and as near as the lawyer could make out, contains addresses of persons to whom Tucker might apply for work.

None of the writing on this card, Tucker says, is his handwriting.

TRADE PAPERS FURIOUS
At Author of the Cabbage Snake Story.

Des Moines, Jan. 9.—"Five million dollars paid for a lie" is the way J. W. Brown, a Des Moines wholesale produce merchant, describes the sequel to the story concerning the cabbage snake.

Someone started a yarn to the effect that a small worm or snake was concealed in the way of the cabbages on the market, and as a result cabbages are rotting in the produce cellars.

It is estimated that there are at least $10,000 worth of cabbages in Des Moines which no one will purchase, while it is asserted that the damage caused by the story throughout the nation will be not less than $50,000.

Trade papers are discussing the matter in a furious vein, and regular cabbage farmers declare they would raise a big reward for the punishment of the cabbage snake liar, if punishment were possible.

A GRIM TRAGEDY
Is daily enacted, in thousands of homes, as death claims, in each one, another victim of Consumption or Pneumonia.

When Coughs and Colds are properly treated, the tragedy is averted. F. G. Huntley, of Oakland, Ind., writes: "My wife had the consumption, and three doctors gave her up. Finally she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which cured her, and today she is well and strong."

It kills the germs of all diseases. One dose relieves. Guaranteed at 50c and $1.00 by all druggists. Trial bottle free.

HISTORY OF INDIANS.
Professor Starr Finds Old Books in Mexico.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—Searching for years among the ruins of old Mexican civilizations, ancient Spanish libraries, and the books of Indian, Professor Frederick Starr of the university of Chicago, has finally succeeded in discovering a hoard of old volumes in Southern Mexico, which are likely to revolutionize the theory of the origin of the North American Indians.

The books date back as far as 1771, and are written in the Aztec Indian sign language. There are 20 volumes, and the Midway professor has brought back about half this number to Chicago. He has not succeeded in purchasing the remainder, but no whas agents at work, and hopes to secure the remaining books in a few months.

CHILD KILLS WHOLE FAMILY
Shocking Crimes Committed By Twelve-Year-Old Boy.

Paris, Jan. 9.—One of the most shocking crimes known to the latter-day Paris police is now occupying their attention.

Little Pierre Delombe, twelve years old, and employed in a shoe store, was arrested after a long chase, and confessed a passion for traveling through reading books of adventure, and made up his mind that he wanted to go to the American far West and fight the redskins.

He made up a plan of how he would accomplish this, and he kept it to himself for some time. One day the neighborhood was surprised to learn of the death of Mr. Delombe, proprietor of the shoe store, who had always been in excellent health. The doctor declared that the death was due to heart failure, and the baker's wife carried on the business.

The boy's secret was discovered by the police, and he was taken to the police station. He was found with a knife in his hand, and the police found the bodies of his family members. The boy was charged with the murder of his family.

"Not take dot gift I looks your head," cried the little German de-coy, as he made a sudden and determined rush forward with the rake he had been using.

But the young man only reached out and caught the rake handle in a firm grasp, at the same time smiling down at his wrathful assailant.

"Let me explain, Hans," he urged. "There ain't no reason, I warned the German."

"You got off away, quick. My girl ain't for no college man dot want work dot play mit golf sticks and wear white clothes and hat no business. She looks as dot. Her fader make rich money, and gif her everything to learn and to travel and to wear. But all a mistake. Now he die and leave her for me to take care for, and I gibe her make better dot round mit her."

But I never called to pay my respects and—"

"You make promise to call mit her some more, and den some more, and talk and talk and pretty soon when we not looking for work."

The young man stretched out an arm suggestively.

"Pretty cooly, gentlemen that," he remarked. "It helped do some record breaking in the college, and went with me into a good many football rushes. Just try the muscle."

Hans' face showed his disgust. "Un! maylie it fine to swing a golf stick," he sneered, "and hold a cane. You ought to be shamed."

The young man laughed. "Look here, Hans, I understand you expostulated, 'can't you and I manage to hit it off in some way?' Haven't you seen Lena—Miss Strohm—say that you need more laborers in the hay making?"

"I not need you," grimly. "I hire men who work."

"Well, try me," boldly. "You have some greenhorns who have to learn, I suppose, and you can rate wages accordingly."

"You want to fix to be mit Lena."

"Does Miss Strohm go out to the hay fields, or the laborers visit your parlor?"

"Does she show them east with your farm manager. If I am not at work I shall very likely be looking about with my golf sticks, and will be sure to meet your niece occasionally."

"You are working you not see Lena some more, and we make you work so hard dot you think more, bout sleeping when night come than 'bout going for his custom."

"I tell you this going to be the greatest thing for farmers round here dot ever was," he cried, striking his closed fist upon the table for emphasis. "You man be going to build a packing house two hundred feet long and ninety wide, and be going had offices and a factory to make barrels and boxes and crates, and everything. The farmer have to do dot to carry his crops to dot packing house and sell for cash. Everything sell. Ah! you see all dot is being sold on farm now going to save."

"But won't this man try to skin you like the commission houses have been doing?" asked one of the men.

"No, no, people don't talk dot way. They say he own most all the big railroad dot run through the next valley, and dot he tell you railroad if it don't give him good rate he will build a branch over to his own road. He say dot he like for them to make four profit, but not take everything. You know dot it been mit me. When we go to railroad dot we take everything two, four times too much, the railroad laugh and charge two time more. He say dot he like for them to make four profit, but not take everything. He say on rate going make good for him and more profit for us. People say rich man, and while he

City.

Gentlemen:

In order that your stock of clothing be protected from damage during time work is being done in the extension of your store through to 4th. Ave. West—taking in the store now occupied by Boyce's Drug Store—it will be necessary for you to vacate your present quarters.

We advise you at this time so you may procure temporary quarters elsewhere.

Yours Truly,

MUST GET WATER

Mains Must Be Extended Before Sewers Are Built.

Captain Lloyd Says the Engineer's Plan Is Feasible.

That the securing of a sewer system for Park Point is dependent upon the extension of the water mains to that part of the city will be one of the chief arguments advanced by Alderman Walker and the other advocates of the extension at the council meeting this evening.

By means of the hydraulic sewer ejector, plans for which have been prepared by City Engineer McGilvray, sewers can be constructed on Park Point just as soon as the water mains have been laid there.

Capt. Walter Lloyd, who was formerly engaged in the diving business, and who is familiar with the conditions existing under the canal, stated today that he was firmly convinced that the work of laying the water mains under the canal could be done for the estimate of City Engineer McGilvray.

"As a property owner on Park Point," he said, "I wish to say that the future prosperity of the Point is dependent on our getting water and gas as early as possible. The recent disastrous fire, whereby the Point has lost one of its principal industries, is in itself sufficient to show that water through the city mains is a necessity. All of the other principal suburbs are now supplied with water, except Duluth Heights, where the elevation is too great for the needs of West Duluth, it already has a supply; and I think that a portion of the city wholly without fire protection, as Park Point is, should be considered before a part of the town which is now protected.

"As to Alderman Moore's argument that the Point is this year having the benefit of the expenditure of $10,000 for a bridge, I do not think that that should be charged to us, since it is merely a step towards economy—it being well known that the city has been paying some $10,000 or $12,000 per annum for ferry service, and that the interest on the cost of the bridge, added to its running expenses and maintenance, will not amount to more than $500 or $600.

"As one who knows the condition of the bottom of the ship canal, and who has followed the submarine business for some years, I unhesitatingly say that the plan for laying the pipes (water and gas) beneath the canal is entirely feasible and practicable, and can be done for the city engineer's estimated cost of $500.

"We are prepared to pay the interest which the city demands on the cost of installation of water and gas mains, and we want them."

City Attorney Bert Foster stated this morning that he had not yet prepared his opinion on the legality of Alderman Walker's ordinance to submit an increased bond issue of $10,000, but would have it ready for the council meeting.

WILL GO TO SUPERIOR

Duluth Catholic Foresters to Attend Installation Over There.

Duluth members of the Catholic Order of Foresters, accompanied by their friends will go over to Superior tomorrow evening, to attend the installation ceremonies of the Superior court.

Arrangements have been made by the members of the five courts of the order in this city for a chartered car, which will leave Third avenue east at 8 o'clock. The committee having charge of the affair has been very successful, and a large delegation will be present at Superior from this side of the bay.

This visit is in return for the visit of the Superior members at the installation ceremonies held here last week. This annual event in Superior is always looked forward to with pleasure by the members on this side of the bay, and this year will be no exception.

A fine literary and musical program has been prepared for the occasion, and the installation ceremonies will be impressive.

COLD WEATHER IS PREDICTED

Thermometer May Register 20 Below Zero By Morning.

Weather Forecaster Richardson predicts that tomorrow morning will be the coldest so far experienced in Duluth this winter, with the mercury in the government thermometer hovering in the neighborhood of the 20 below mark. He looks to see the wind die away tonight, and reports that there are no indications of snow.

A brisk wind has been blowing all day. At 6 o'clock this morning it had attained a velocity of 26 miles an hour, steadily increasing in force until at 8 o'clock it was moving along at a 20-mile clip. The temperature has also been falling during the day, although not very rapidly. At 7 o'clock this morning 2 above was registered, and at noon zero was the mark.

DYING GIRL CONFESSED.

But She Did Not Name Any One.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 9.—A sensation with pathetic features has developed from an investigation of the death of pretty Mary Hemphill, aged 21, well known among the young people of the West End. The girl died at Butterworth hospital Dec. 14 and it was announced that appendicitis was the cause. It is known now, however, that the girl confessed on her deathbed that she was the victim of either a criminal operation or of the administration of drugs. However, she mentioned no names.

A man named Albert Comstock was dragged into the case through the evidence of relatives and friends and Dr. Gililand admitted Comstock was a member of the Mutual Sanitarium company. Miss Hemphill was twelve at the sanitarium, but Dr. Gililand and his nurse both swore she underwent nothing but an examination. John Munnell, one witness, swore he had been told Al Comstock was responsible for the girl's condition. Comstock has left the city.

The coroner's jury's finding was that the girl had come to her death from septicaemia. It neither exonerated or fixed the responsibility upon anyone. The testimony was turned over to Prosecuting Attorney Brown and he and the coroner held a conference. It is altogether likely that criminal warrants will follow.

Miss Hemphill lived with her brothers and sister at 480 Madison avenue. Charles Hemphill, the National league ball player, is a brother.

NEW RIFLE FOR UNITED STATES MAY BE CHANGED.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Officers recently returned from the theater of war in Manchuria have given the war department interesting information regarding the fighting in that part of the world. One result of the knowledge acquired is that the issue of the new United States rifle will be delayed pending an examination of the desirability of making changes in some of its features which are practicable and of which the value seems to have been indicated.

CHIPPewa INDIANS SUFFER WITH SMALLPOX.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Indian Agent Campbell, at Ashland, Wis., has reported to the commission on Indian affairs that smallpox has broken out in one of the Chippewa reservations there. The Indian bureau will immediately forward a supply of vaccine points to the agency.

SHUT DOWN ENDED. Two Thousand Men Are Given Employment.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—The shut-down of the Illinois Steel company's works at South Chicago ended today. Two thousand men who have been idle for four weeks were given employment. More will be taken on as work develops in the various departments. An official of the company denying reports that wages had been cut 20 to 40 per cent, said:

"The wages and working conditions are the same as when the men were laid off a month ago."

DENIED BY LOWTHER. London, Jan. 9.—J. W. Lotter, M. P., denied the report circulated by the Liverpool Post that he is to succeed Lord Milner as high commissioner in South Africa.

TONIC TO THE SYSTEM. For liver troubles and constipation there is nothing better than DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills. Pleasant action upon the system is mild, pleasant and harmless. Sold by all druggists.

WILL BUY EARLY

Lumber Buyers Collecting at Lake Superior - Market Points.

Not Many Sales Made But Prices Are Firm.

Lumber buyers are said to be making their appearance quite generally at Lake Superior points for the purpose of making contracts for the year's supply, as well as for picking up such stock as last year's cut as remains unsold. Local interests having unsold stocks on hand are disposing of them as fast as possible, for rail shipment, in order that they may not have a great deal of lumber on hand when the assessor gets in his work next spring.

Low grade lumber is said to be especially scarce all over the Northern pine district, and that is the stock much sought after at the present time.

On of the largest sales of the past several days has been the lumber for future delivery, to be sawed by the Edward Hines Lumber company, from 10,000 feet of logs left over from last season in the water at the Murray-Mc-Cann mill.

The Leslie Lumber company has sold some high grade thick lumber and is pretty well sold up.

Sales are not numerous but the prices are well up and are being maintained by the sellers.

The Scott-Graft mill began sawing this past week and is clearing up a small amount of lumber cut along the Iron Range road.

The Ash mill at Virginia is setting a record for two-hand mills in this part of the country. Last year it sawed 3,000,000 feet of lumber besides producing 200,000 bath and some shingles. The plant has been running day and night, employing 150 men. It saws for the Virginia Lumber company.

Logs are beginning to be sent out of Drummond for William O'Brien, to be cut at the old Hubbard & Vincent mill in this city.

W. A. Avery, the well known Michigan lumberman, is reported to have sold 7,000, 000 feet of standing pine tributary to the Iron Range road, to John McLaughlin, of this city. Options on another big tract of pine in Lake county, is said to have been given by Mr. Avery to the Edward Hines Lumber company.

At its annual meeting here last week the Virginia Lumber company re-elected its old officers, there are: C. F. Hughes, president, William O'Brien, vice-president, W. H. Cook, secretary and D. O.
Anderson, treasurer.

The Duluth & Iron Range road now has two trains handling the logs coming from the Miller & the Alger Smith & Company mill. The road has four logging camps working steadily and cars per-day are being handled. Other crews are to be put on soon. Outside the Knife River loop the road will handle about 500,000 feet this winter.

New Virginia and Duluth, W. T. Bailey is taking out 12,000,000 feet of which 5,000, 000 will be sawed at Virginia and the rest will be saved by contract mills here.

During the past few days' lull season with the shipping departments at Cleveland, the planing mills have been repaired and remodeled and several new machines have been put in. The Northern Lumber company has put in a new melter and band resaw and the Cleveland Lumber company has two machines, including a large band resaw.

Frederick J. Marsh, erstwhile theatrical manager of this city, who appeared before Judge Dineen, for contempt of court, Saturday afternoon, was given the alternative of paying up or serving a term of 30 days in jail. Marsh, through his attorney, the former wife or girl, the court would not accept so long as he had his health and is able to work. Judge Dineen held that if Marsh's former wife can support herself and two children, Marsh certainly ought to be able to do something for them.

IS FORMED

Clarke-Hepworth & Company Results From Consolidating Local Firms.

Clarke-Hepworth & company, is the one of a new insurance agency which has been launched in this city, formed by the consolidation of the two agencies, Davidson & McRae company and the O.
H. Clarke agency.

The consolidation was effected by the purchase of the Davidson & McRae business and goes will by A. W. Hepworth, its former manager, who joined interests with O. H. Clarke.

The Clarke-Hepworth agency controls, it is claimed, one-half of all the premiums written in this city. It represents twenty of the big insurance companies of the country.

HANDSOME PRIZE
For Best Ski Rider at Ishpeming Tournament.

Ishpeming, Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald).—The Ishpeming ski rider who can take first place in the local tournament, to be held Feb. 22, 1905, will have the privilege of taking possession of the finest cup ever offered to ski riders in the United States. It is the product of the best artists of Tiffany, of New York, is of solid silver, gold lined, mounted upon an ebony base. The cup is un-shaped, fine chased and enameled. The prize is about sixteen inches high by ten inches in diameter in the bowl portion.

Upon one side is the figure of a ski rider in mid-air after leaving the "bump."
On the opposite side is the place for engraving the names of the winners of the events. The words "Ishpeming Ski Tournament, and "The Hopkins Cup," are worked in and about the rider.
This cup is the gift of Wallace H.
Hopkins, the well known broker of Milwaukee.

R. T. Crane, of Chicago, who brought a party of friends to the ski tournament here last February has donated $50 to be used for prizes.

CURLERS WERE BUSY

Four Interesting Games Played For Local Trophies.

Three games for the Universal Mill trophy and one for The Herald trophy were played Saturday evening at the

DUTIES OF CITIZEN

J. L. Washburn Makes An Interesting Address
Before Y. M. C. A.

Says Great Danger Of Country Lies In Drifting.

"Citizenship" was the subject of an interesting address by J. L. Washburn at the Sunday evening lunch table talk at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday.

The theme of his address was that the general government of any nation cannot be administered much above the general average of its individual citizens.

"The subject of citizenship is just as great as we desire to make it," he said.
There are many cut phrases about our duty as citizens which have come to mean little or nothing to us. But in the olden times when I shall occupy I shall make no attempt at any philosophical analysis, but shall deal only with the commonplace matters.

"Our nation has grown so rapidly and has become so great that we are apt to lapse into passivity.

"The president is an example for the young men of this country to follow.
That is not a political statement. But the people of this country have recognized his energy and integrity in a manner that cannot be doubted.

"We are a commercial and an industrial nation, and we are attempting self-government on a scale never before undertaken. The spirit of the individual and the organized ambition for success and gain is so strong, the freedom of human action so great, the inherited ideal of our citizens so varied that the dangers of unconscious drifting become multiplied.

"As a general rule the government of a nation cannot be administered much above the general average of its citizens. With this in mind we may, I think, truly say, 'How great are the responsibilities of citizenship.'

"There must not be a little force at work here and a little force at work there, but there must be many forces continually at work in order that the standards of right and justice be kept aloft. We cannot afford to drift along, allowing cupidity and crime to talk before us unchallenged, trusting to sudden spasms of reform to preserve our standards of citizenship.

"The safety of the state lies in the holding up citizenship, actuated by motives consistent only with morality and an enlightened religion. There must be the highest integrity, just recognition of the rights of others, a willingness to perform individual duties and labor unselfishly for our fel-lowmen, if we would have the development of a high ideal of citizenship upon which to found the permanent structure of a great and self-governing nation.

"I would not give a cent for this theoretical religion or ideal that is not carried into everyday affairs.

"I would have you disassociate the idea of good citizenship from the obligations, prerogatives and rewards of office holding. The attributes of citizenship of which I speak should pertain to private life and follow into public service, but not in one more than in the other.

"The one thing which I wish to impress upon you young men is the idea of individual development and growth of character, of the sense of justice, of duty to society and the state that insure high and ever higher ideals of the duty of citizenship. In short all that is good and worthy of attainment is embraced in the words 'good citizenship,' and in the growth of good citizenship lies the safety of our country. To make a good citizen and to be believed in as such by your fellow men, is the highest honor to which any man can attain.

"I want to leave this one main thought with you. It is your duty and privilege to help maintain things; to be a part of things. Our one great danger is drifting. You may peek away at the roots of any tree, no matter how large, and if you keep on that eye will come down. The greatest danger to our nation is from drifting."

Mr. Washburn was compelled to leave early to meet a train and at the request of Secretary Davis, Rev. John W. Powell of the Endion Methodist church, made a brief address.

"In a small town," said Mr. Powell,
"the most ignorant man can be a fairly good citizen. There the problems are limited to the location of a sidewalk or the improvement of a road.
Everybody knows everybody else, and the candidate for office is familiar to every voter.

"When you extend the field to a county including several towns and cities the problem becomes complicated. Frequently the candidate is not even known by sight to the majority of voters, and the problems that confront the citizen are greatly enlarged.

"When you still further extend the field to a state or to a nation you can see how the responsibilities of the citizen have extended. In these days Uncle Sam is poking his nose into every corner of the globe, a man to be a good citizen must be familiar with the affairs of nations as well as know how to improve a country road or lay a sidewalk."

City Comptroller McCormick, at the request of the secretary, also made a brief address on the importance of embracing opportunities.

TERRIFIES NEIGHBORS

Demented Man Drives Them From Beds at Midnight.

After terrorizing the neighborhood in which he lived for over three hours, and driving two families from their homes at midnight Saturday, at the point of a revolver, C. A. Dubois, an aged man about 75 years old, who lives at 142 West Fourth street, barricaded his doors and threatened to kill anyone who came within gunshot.

Afterward he boarded a car, wearing neither shoes nor stockings, and rode down town early Sunday morning. The conductor turned him over to the police as the car passed headquarters.

When searched in the station he was found to have in his possession a 32-calibre revolver, with three chambers empty and with the handle covered with blood. In his pocketbook was found a certificate of deposit on a local bank for $3000, a check for $100, and $75 in bills.

He kept shrieking at the top of his voice that some person was following him attempting to take his life, and kept calling for help.

Dubois is said to have been discharged from the Fergus Falls asylum about four years ago, and his neighbors claim that they have noticed a recurrence of his mania during the last few days. When he started firing his revolver, yesterday morning, the police were notified and Officer Brigham went to the scene. When he arrived Dubois was the sole occupant of the house. He had barricaded the doors and the officer left to notify headquarters. As soon as the officer left, Dubois unlocked his door and made his escape. He wandered about in his bare feet until nearly 8 o'clock, when he boarded an East End car. When turned over to a police station his feet were found to be badly frozen.

He will probably be turned over to Judge Middlecott and his case disposed of in the probate court.

DEATH ENDS SUFFERING

Herbert H. McNamara
Dies After a Brief Illness.

After four days of suffering from severe pain caused by stomach trouble, Herbert H. McNamara, of 244 East Second street, died yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at St. Mary's hospital, at the age of 21 years.

Mr. McNamara has lived in Duluth for six years. He recently formed a partnership with Russell Henry and established a mercantile company. His mother died about a year ago after a long illness.
Two brothers, C. E. McNamara, of Portland, and Leonard, of this city, and his father, Charles McNamara, of Eveleth, survive him. The funeral arrangements will not be announced until the arrival of the brother from Portland.

The Dictator in William Collier, is Frobe seen at the Lyceum theater, this evening. It was written by Richard Harding Davis. It is said to be the cleverest thing that has come from the pen of this successful author. The play is in three acts and the action of the piece takes place in Porto Banos, republic of San Manana, Central America. Many laughable absurdities are involved from the mock dictatorship which this blame comedian assumes in the little republic.

VAUDEVILLE WEEK.
The week of vaudeville will open at the Metropolitan this evening and the experiment will be watched with much interest, though there is scarcely any doubt that Duluth people want it and that the week will be a great success.

Leading the company is Miss Josephine Sabel, one of the foremost singers of the vaudeville stage. Her personality is said to be one of the most magnetic now before the public and she creates a future everywhere. The other attractions are of commensurate ability, the entire program containing four features that are always billed as "top liners."

"ARIZONA."
Tomorrow and Wednesday evenings with a matinee Wednesday, "Arizona," the great drama of the West written by Augustus Thomas, will be at the Lyceum, and it will doubtless claim as large a share of public favor as it always has.

DAMAGE SUIT

Henry Richards Would Recover $500 From Omaha Road.

Case Being Heard By Jury In Municipal Court.

The damage suit of Henry Richards against the Omaha railroad to recover $497.50 for being ejected from an Omaha train at Superior, is being heard today by a jury in Judge Windom's court room.

Mr. Richards claims that he purchased a second class ticket from Duluth to San Francisco over the Omaha road, and that when he reached Superior the conductor told him that he had not paid the right amount for the ticket. Mr. Richards refused to pay the additional sum asked, which was $7.50, and he claims the conductor told him he could not ride on the train unless the sum was paid.

After getting off they went into the Superior office and the agent there called up the Duluth office on the telephone. It was stated that a mistake had been made in selling the ticket, and that only $40 had been charged for it instead of $47.50, which was the correct price. The agent had taken the ticket from Mr. Richards to examine it, and when he stated that $7.50 was still due, Mr. Richards reached over the counter and took the ticket from the agent's hand.

The company, in its defense, claims that Mr. Richards was not ejected from the train, and that the conductor merely attempted to collect the $7.50, which would otherwise be charged against the clerk who sold the ticket.

After the jury had been secured this morning, Attorney W. D. Bailey moved to reject all evidence in regard to the first cause of complaint, under which the plaintiff seeks to recover the price paid for the ticket. The law provides that if for any reason a ticket shall not be used, the company shall refund the money on application to the general office. This demand has not been made, and the court sustaining the motion. Mr. Richards can therefore recover this amount on making application to the general office.

Mr. Richards was then placed upon the stand and told the story of the affair, claiming that the conductor had led him from the train and had told him he could not ride on that ticket unless he paid the additional sum asked. He says that he asked the agent to furnish him transportation back to Duluth, but that the request was ignored.

Morse Butler, of St. Paul, the assistant general counsel of the road and W. D. Bailey, of this city, represent the company, and Albert Baldwin is appearing for Mr. Richards. The case will not probably go to the jury before night.

West Duluth

A logging camp, established last fall on the Wisconsin side of the St. Louis river, almost opposite Smithville, has attracted many visitors from West Duluth during the past few weeks. The camp employs about thirty men, and is about the only one easily accessible from the city. A logging camp has become to be quite a novelty hereabouts now, when a few years ago they were too common to attract notice, except from visitors.

The camp in question is located about two miles up the Little Pigeon river, and the logs cut by its employees are hauled to the St. Louis and dumped on the ice, everything being conducted in the ordinary backwoods style. A visit to the dumping grounds and camps is full of interest to one who has never witnessed logging operations. Sleightlike parties to the camp, with a lumberjack supper and country dance at the end, promise to become social features during the winter, if satisfactory arrangements can be made with the management.

BANANA CONTEST.
Three Took Part and Winner Ate Twenty-Two.

New York, Jan. 9.—The people of Huntington, L. I., have been enjoying the novel entertainment of a banana eating contest. The contestants were George Phillips, a former Brooklyn boy, Frank Smith, of Brooklyn, and Edward Briggs. There were strict rules, the only requirement of the match being to eat as many bananas as possible. A silver dollar was the prize.
At the start the fruit disappeared as if by magic. At the end of the first dozen the contestants straightened up and a sigh of relief escaped from the onlookers. Phillips was the first to start on the second dozen. From that moment it was seen he was to be the winner, he had such a clean way of disposing of the fruit.

While Phillips was masticating his twenty-second banana, Briggs was nibbling in a half-hearted way at his twenty-third. He cast a sidelong glance at Phillips, and noting how easy he was going, saw he could not overtake him. "Enough," came in smothered tones, and it all was over.
Smith, the only real Brooklyn representative, had fallen by the way at No. 15.

ROCKEFELLER
Pushes the Baby Carriage of His Grandchild.

New York, Jan. 9.—John D. Rockefeller went to Lakewood last week to play golf and visit his infant granddaughter, Muriel McCormick, who is staying there with her nurse in Sixth street. The McCormick baby has not been well, and at the suggestion of Mr. Rockefeller her parents sent her to Lakewood. Mr. Rockefeller attended services at the First Baptist church on Sunday. The tiny Miss McCormick carefully bundled up in her perambulator, was awaiting him in front of the church when the service was over.
Mr. McCormick and the nurse were with the baby, and Mr. Rockefeller accompanied them home. As they approached the hill in Clifton avenue, near the Lakewood hotel, Mr. Rockefeller took hold of the perambulator and pushed it up the hill. Scores of passers-by, who recognized Mr. Rockefeller, stopped to witness the spectacle of the wealthiest man in the world pushing a baby carriage up hill.

HISTORIC PILES

In London Imperiled By Electric Railway Tunnels.

Water Action Is Cause—Clay Subsoil Rotting Away.

New York, Jan. 9.—A London cable to the Herald says: The old city is raised again of the dangers attending the undermining of London by the honeycomb of electric railways, which is proceeding apace. St. Paul's, the Bank of England and Westminster abbey all are reported in imminent danger, and this time the alarm appears justified. Regarding St. Paul's, notwithstanding the denials of the cathedral authorities, experts remain of the opinion that the danger is imminent. The danger has become serious of the foundations sinking, as the natural and probable consequence of the pumping which accompanied the work of driving the various tunnels that have been constructed and others which still are in progress in the immediate vicinity.

Experts go further still and say that this incessant tunneling which is proceeding in all parts of London is undermining the metropolis. The Bank of England and several other important buildings have been supported by underpinning from time to time since the first of the tunnelings of the last year or so were undertaken, and ominous fissures have been discovered in the fabric of St. Paul's.

These are especially notable in the stonework of the southern transept, where one wall in particular has receded some inches from the perpendicular. That a far greater danger is imminent, however, is the deliberate opinion of the experts who have conducted an examination within the last few days of the cross and ball which surmount the dome, which now are three feet out of perpendicular. This is the conclusion arrived at by Frederick Hovenden, secretary of the London Institution.
After spending two years in finding the plumb line among adjacent buildings, in order to gauge the deviation, Hovenden asserts that "if the Nelson column were as much out of perpendicular, it soon would be in the street, and for that matter I view with dread the tunnelings which incessantly are going on around it."

Opinion cracks are also appearing in the walls of Westminster abbey. The authorities undisguisedly are much concerned about the state of affairs there, and are having an examination made by experts. When asked how do the various burrowings cause these subsidences and the consequent danger to London buildings, Hovenden replied: "In the case of St. Paul's, which is built upon a foundation of peat, which is a bed of water bearing gravel and sand, and beneath which again is the London clay, the danger has been caused by the gravel bed sinking, owing to its moisture being withdrawn. The moisture in the gravel bed has been drawn off by pump? ing for various tunnels which run in the vicinity and also by percolation."

There is a brick work of a large sewer which runs about thirty yards on the south side of the cathedral, but at lower London, Mr. Hovenden asserts, the water in the gravel bed on top of the London clay is being drawn off. The hitherto impervious London clay, disturbed by the sinking of shafts and tunneling, has been rotted and large quantities of water have fallen from the gravel and sand strata beside the iron tubes to the lower level.

In the building of these underground lines pumping has had to be kept up night and day to enable the work to proceed uninterruptedly. Lower water courses have been formed in every direction in which the tube railways penetrate, the water sinking through the rotting clay beside the vertical shafts and running alongside the tubes themselves at a depth of 80 to 100 feet. At one or two points the water finds an outlet into the porous bed at the bottom of the London clay, and at other points runs into the porous bed underneath the Thames. Engineers have tried to seal the tubes to the clay hermetically by pumping thin Portland cement through holes in the iron, left for the purpose, but this has been unavailing because the cement had to be mixed so thin in order to pump it that it was precipitated and left all the water at the surface.

As a matter of fact, it has been found to be impossible to stop the downward flow of the water from the gravel bed, for when once the maiden clay is disturbed it will resist moisture no longer.

The tubes have become conduits, and London, therefore, in reality, is being undermined in every part, whether near the tubes or not, for the thousands of tons of water which, falling upon the northern and southern heights formerly flowed into the gravel bed upon the London clay, must find a lower level, and they are doing so every day, with the consequence that there never was so much undermining of buildings in the metropolis as is now necessitated in all directions.

The bank of England recently was underpinned and a large building in City road, erected four years ago, was found to be an inch out of plumb two years later. This also had to be underpinned. Further proof that this water has withdrawn lies in the fact that the numerous shallow wells which studded the city a few years ago have now run dry.

PASTOR SHOCKED
By His First Experience As a Juror.

Mahanoy City, Pa., Jan. 9.—The Rev. George M. Bock, pastor of Christ Lutheran church, of this borough, put in last week as juror on trials of criminal cases in the Schuylkill county courts at Pottsville. Speaking of his experience he said:
While I favor jurors being drawn from among our best citizens, in patriotism and intelligence, I frankly admit it is a trying and most embarrassing duty for a minister of the gospel.
During the deliberations on verdicts in the jury room the language many of the jurors used in advancing their opinions was gross and shocking. Their inveterate use of tobacco was nauseating. At smoked and chewed the weed, it was my first experience as juror. No, I would not care to serve again.

The ministers of all religious denominations, except Roman Catholic priests, who sought exemption, were drawn from time to time to serve on juries in Schuylkill county under the regime of Sheriff Whitaker.

TEEGARDEN SUICIDED
Because He Could Not Secure His Sister.

Great Falls, Mont., Jan. 2.—Word from Medicine Hat, a small stock camp near the Canadian frontier, tells of the tragic suicide of Thomas F. Teegarden, formerly a well-known range rider and cowboy of this county, who had become despondent over his failure to obtain the custody of a young sister, Miss Lillie Mc-

Taggard, who had been legally adopted by a family in Minnesota. Teegarden's old home.

Teegarden was devoted to the girl and was not pleased with her home, making repeated efforts to have the courts set aside the adoption.
Apparently in a peculiar mood, Teegarden asked the landlady of Medicine Hat for a room in which to kill himself. Several minutes after he had entered the apartment, a pistol shot was heard.
Teegarden had seated himself in a chair, placed his six-shooter to his forehead, sending a bullet through his temple, his head, his brains protruding. On the table lay a check for $100 with a note attached saying that it was to settle his debts. Another check of $200 was left to his sister.

FEEMALE FOOTPAD.
Police Find Footprint of a Woman Outlaw.

Gloucester, N. J., Jan. 9.—With a feminine footprint and a fancy side comb as clues, the Gloucester police are endeavoring to run down the cracksmen who blew open the safe in the office of the Gloucester Grain and Feed company, after breaking into the tool house of the West Jersey & Seashore railroad near Westville.

Mingled with the footprints of the cracksmen were those of a woman.
Her dainty shoe was only six and a half inches long, and it had a military heel. This discovery, into the tool house of the West Jersey & Seashore railroad near Westville, has led the police to believe that the gang is being chaperoned by a Jersey footpad, who acts as lookout.
The footprint trail led to an abandoned sawmill in the woods near Westville. Here the police found the remains of a canned goods meal, some broken bread and an empty satchel.

It is believed that the woman member of the gang is the female footpad who has attempted to hold up a number of women in Westville and Woodbury during the last two weeks.

Claims That Packers Are Violating the Sherman Law.

Taking up the allegation that the defendants are not only engaged in making a profit in shipping the goods, sold pursuant to the agreement, but also in obtaining the goods, Moody said light was thrown upon the meaning of the allegation by paragraph 10 in the said agreement. It appears that the defendants are engaged in the common enterprise of obtaining unlawful relatives.

Further replying to counsel for the defendants, Moody said: "It is not the manufacturer in one state instead of taking his product into another state for purposes of sale, but the defendant's effort to transport it to a resident agent for the same purpose and with the same result as if the defendant had sold it." He contended that transactions of this class were interstate and not interstate commerce, and that the national law which was the basis of the national law they claimed that said a lady Saturday who had attended the different sales about town, "and you deserve to be busy," she added, "for your store and your wares are a credit to Duluth!"

"I've just returned from Chicago and I tell you candidly that your stocks compare with anything in that city—I don't mean in quantity of goods carried, but in assortments and quality. Then, too, there may be some higher-priced novelties, but for the needs of a well-dressed woman, who wants to dress in good taste, your stocks and assortments are all that one could ask for! I was in So-and-so's establishment and many of the tailored suits your saleslady has just shown me were exactly what I had seen there, and I tell you frankly that I did save something by buying at home!"

HINDERS COURT

Cold Weather Prevents Holding Session In One Room.

Grand Jury Not Yet Through With Its Work.

Although the regular trial of jury cases was to have begun in district court this morning things were rather quiet about the courthouse this morning. Owing to the cold weather, Judge Engstrom decided that it would be an imposition to ask jurymen to sit in room No. 3, so no court was held there today. In room No. 1, it was so cold this morning that when Deputy Sheriff R. S. Lerch, to whom fell the duties of bailiff, started to announce the opening of court, his teeth chattered so that he declared the district court of "St. Louis county, Pennsylvania," open for business.

Only one jury was drawn this morning, that for trial of the suit of A. D. Reynolds as trustee, against Edward Lynch.

It was expected that the trial of the case of M. Hendrickson against Hans Christensen would begin this afternoon in Judge Cant's room. The action is one in which Hendrickson claims that his home was appropriated by Christensen while he was away. The suit involves a question of title and of damages.

The grand jury, which adjourned

THE JANUARY SALE OF MUSLIN UNDERWEAR

Has Been Organized to Begin on Tuesday, Jan. 10.

This we count our master-effort—the most important sale of its character which we have yet conducted. It concerns what is, perhaps, the most comprehensive collection of undergarments to be found the whole town over—garments of an exceptionally high character, fashioned of the better grades of fabrics. Fine laces and exquisite embroideries subscribe their richness to the garments, which are exceptionally generous in proportions. In their elaboration the power of good taste was exercised—good taste as the discerning understand it. The series of new and distinctive models demonstrate the ingenuity of the cleverest designers of two continents.

CITY BRIEFS

The Duluth Savings bank has issued a small diary for 1905, intended for vest pocket use, that will be of much convenience. In addition to the diary portion of the book there are valuable statistics and other information.

The Unity club will meet this evening at the Unitarian church. Rev. John Wilson will speak on "Robert Burns and Other Scottish Poets."

At the annual meeting of the Virginia Improvement company, owners of the Wisconsin of Virginia, Joseph Sellwood was elected president; W. C. Sherwood, vice president, and J. R. James, secretary-treasurer. The company has been unusually active during the past year. More than $20,000 worth of property has been sold by it since it was organized.

Accused of having dodged the toll collector at the Duluth-Superior bridge, Albert Hanson was arraigned before Judge Holmes in municipal court this morning. It is claimed that the man watched his chance, and when the bridge officer was checking up a car loaded with passengers, he slipped past on the other side. He was seen and arrested. In court this morning he pleaded not guilty to the charge, and his hearing was set for Jan. 12. The bail was fixed at $25.

The funeral of Mrs. Frank Owens will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. instead of 2 p. m., as formerly announced.

The funeral of Mrs. J. H. Gray will be held from the residence, 131 East Superior street, at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Our 25 per cent discount sale now in full blast. Brenton, Phoenix block.

The last number of the Improvement Bulletin, a scientific journal, published in Minneapolis, contains a favorable reference to the plan of the city engineer to construct hydraulic sewer ejectors on Park Point.

Now is the time—25 per cent off all orders. Brenton, Duluth's leading tailor. The quarterly meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary society will be held at the Pilgrim Congregational church to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Judge Page Morris this morning ordered William Pearson discharged from bankruptcy.

Charles Lavick today filed a petition for voluntary bankruptcy with the clerk of federal court.

See Engels & Co.'s announcement of half-price sale of pictures, page 12.

The remains of Mrs. W. C. Brundage, who was the wife of the well-known Northern Pacific train dispatcher at the Union depot, were taken away last night for burial at Mrs. Brundage's former home at Michigan City, Ind. The funeral services were conducted at 4 p. m. at the late residence, Ninth avenue east and First street, by Rev. M. S. Rice, pastor of the First Methodist church, of which Mrs. Brundage had been a faithful and consistent member.

E. M. Ferguson and H. B. Knudsen leave this evening for New Orleans.

H. M. Bradley goes to Los Angeles tonight.

P. J. Martin left this afternoon for Minneapolis.

W. H. McElvray has gone to St. Paul. Rev. W. E. Morgan was a passenger today for Minneapolis.

S. J. Bigelow, commercial agent of the Michigan Central leaves this evening for St. Paul.

E. A. Hall and J. Kelly have gone to Chicago.

E. De la Motte goes tonight to Calumet.

S. M. Marsh has gone to St. Paul.

Heads Minnesota Shippers.
At a recent meeting the Minnesota Shippers' association elected E. M. Ferguson president, which puts the Duluth commission man at the head of both the Western Jobbers' association and the Minnesota Shippers' association. Other officers of the Minnesota organization are: H. L. Robinson, of Minneapolis, first vice president; D. O. Anderson, of Cambridge, second vice president; E. A. Durkes, of St. Paul, third vice president, and F. E. Kenaston, of Minneapolis, treasurer. C. L. Twoby, vice president of the Gowan-Peyton-Twohy Co., is on the board of directors, and E. J. Cannon continues as commissioner, with offices in the Globe building, St. Paul.

In the art of intrigue, feels himself unequal to the task of continuing the contest and has confided to his friends within twenty-four hours that he prefers to retire. Whether he has actually tendered his resignation, the Associated Press is not in a position to say, but that it may come any minute is certain.

Has Rheumatic Twinges.

William Collier, the comedian, is registered at the Spaulding, accompanied by Mrs. Collier. They came in yesterday. Mr. Collier likes strenuous weather and has something of a reputation as a skier and snowshoe artist, but the reign of Boreas during his visit this time finds the quiet-mannered comedian indisposed to any dog sledding or any other of the pastimes that go with plenty of snow and wind. He is suffering a little from muscular rheumatism and is staying indoors with a view to keeping in a No. 1 trim for his stage appearance at the Lyceum tonight.

NO MATCH FOR INTRIGUERS

Prince Mirsky Will Resign as Russian Minister of Interior.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 9.—M. Witte, as Interior Minister Sviatopolk-Mirsky's successor and holding a position in the councils of Emperor Nicholas approaching Gen. Louis Milukoff during the trying nihilist days of Alexander II, may be one of the startling results of the contest waging over the question of interior reforms. The popular idea has been that Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky and M. Witte were acting in harmony in this matter, but the Associated Press learns from the highest source that exactly the opposite is the fact. They can more properly be described as rivals and opponents than as friends.

Under the circumstances, the prince, whose health is greatly impaired and who is a plain spoken man unschooled in the art of intrigue, feels himself unequal to the task of continuing the contest and has confided to his friends within twenty-four hours that he prefers to retire. Whether he has actually tendered his resignation, the Associated Press is not in a position to say, but that it may come any minute is certain.

Judgement For Clothing.

Judge Dibel has filed with the clerk of district court his findings in the suit of Wile Bros. & Well, against Borgstrom Bros. & Co., heard last Saturday. The court finds that the parties in the action are co-partners in the respective firms, also that Wile Bros. & Well are entitled to immediate possession of a quantity of clothing held by the other firm, namely, twenty-two suits of clothes.

POSTOFFICE NOMINATIONS.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The president today sent to the senate the following nominations: Deputy auditor of the postoffice department, William J. Anderson, North Dakota. Postmasters: Wisconsin—Frank J. Salter, Prentice.

RAINY RIVER DAM

Bede Introduces Bill Authorizing Its Construction.

Washington, Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald).—Representative Bede today introduced a bill authorizing the Rainy River Improvement company to construct a dam across Rainy river. The purpose of the proposed dam is to improve the navigation of the Rainy river and Rainy lake, and the Rainy River Improvement company succeeds to the privilege granted to the Koochiching company by acts of congress.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Pittsburg, Jan. 9.—Edgar W. Hassler, mayor's clerk and a well known newspaper man, dropped dead on the street today of heart failure. At the time of his death, Mr. Hassler was secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Historical society.

San Francisco, Jan. 9.—Nellie Cummings, an old time actress of note, died here today in poor circumstances of asthma.

Miss Cummings was leading lady for John McCulloch and Lawrence Barrett, at the old California theater in this city during the palmy days of the drama. After that time she drifted East, playing with many companies, notably those of Richard Mansfield, Frederick Warle and Edna Wallace Hopper. She had been playing brief engagements of late until her health broke down.

BEMIDJI HAS BIGGEST FIRE IN ITS HISTORY*Center of the Business District Swept By Flames.*Loss Estimated at $75,- 000, About One Quarter Insured.*Work of Firemen Handicapped By the Intense Cold.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Block 17, the center of Bemidji's business district was swept by fire this morning, causing the worst conflagration in the history of the town. The fire originated in the second story of the Northern Pacific saloon, and for a time it looked as though the entire business center of the city would go. Intense cold greatly handicapped the firemen in their efforts to subdue the flames. The mercury stood at 22 degrees below zero, and water quickly froze wherever it touched. The hose and engine connections were repeatedly frozen and great effort was necessary to keep the water running.

The losses are as follows: Northern Pacific saloon building, total loss, contents partially saved. John Larson, saloon building, entire loss, contents saved. John Johnson & Linberg, saloon and restaurant building, stock and fixtures saved. The Brunswick saloon building destroyed, contents partially saved. Bemidji hotel building, badly damaged and contents removed. Bemidji telephone exchange in second story of Lumbermen's Bank building, the main line destroyed by the burning of the pole, other lines in the block which is known as Block 17, were: Gill Bros., clothing, building entirely destroyed and stock badly damaged by fire and water. The Brinkman hotel building, complete loss and contents partially damaged. C. H. Ellis, corner saloon building, was damaged by water and smoke and contents badly damaged. Stewart's barber shop, damaged by smoke and water. Robert Nelson, saloon and restaurant, smoke and water. The underground passage blow out walls and clear away obstructions resulted in the sparing of the glass windows on the opposite side of the street, entailing a heavy loss of smoke and water to the stocks in the large stores. The last of losses will be well up to $75,000, and the insurance to about one-fourth of that amount.

BIG DIVIDENDS FOR SOME ONE Congress Will Investigate the Panama Railroad Company.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The house committee on interstate and foreign commerce today authorized a favorable report on the Shackleford resolution, providing for an examination by that committee of the affairs of the Panama Railroad company. Shackleford said it was known that the railroad was maintaining offices in New York city at an expense of $200,000 a year. It was known to at least fourteen members of the committee, he continued, that in 1902 the directors of the road had declared dividends of between $200,000 and $300,000 in excess of the net earnings.

The resolution recites that "The United States is now the owner of more than 50 per cent of the shares of the capital stock of the Panama Railroad company, and it is for that reason expedient that Congress should have full knowledge of the affairs of said company."

The house committee on interstate and foreign commerce resumed its inquiry into the transportation question today. E. P. Bacon, chairman of the interstate commerce law committee, continued his testimony of last week.

Before proceeding, Mr. Bacon reviewed the report of his previous testimony, making many corrections. Referring to the questions and answers about the attitude of four members of the committee, who had changed their position on the Quarles-Cooper bill, Representative Richardson of Alabama asked whether the witness had ever had a private conversation with him on the bill.

"I never had," was the reply.

Representative Mann again took up the statement of Mr. Bacon that two-thirds of the members of Congress owed their election to the railroads, and stood as a stone wall against any legislation inimical to the railroads.

While Mr. Bacon would not deny that he had made the statement, he said he did not believe he had said such a thing.

"I certainly never had such an idea," he concluded.

RUSSIAN ASSASSINATED.
Marseilles, Jan. 10.—A mail steamer, which arrived here today from the east, reported that Col. Bogdanoff, of the Russian army, and three companions, sent by former Viceroy Alexieff on a mission to Mongolia were assassinated by natives.

PULLMAN BETTER.
Cincinnati, Jan. 10.—President Harry Pullman, of the National league, who has threatened that Pullman, Inc., was reported much better today.

THOMPSON FOR BRAZIL.
Washington, Jan. 10.—The president today sent to the senate the nomination of David N. Thompson, of Nebraska, to be ambassador extraordinary to Brazil.

LOUISE MICHEL, ANARCHIST QUEEN, IS DEAD

Paris, Jan. 10.—Louise Michel, prominent as a communist and revolutionary agitator for the last thirty-five years, died Monday in Marseilles, aged 75. Louise Michel first came into prominence during the Franco-Prussian war, when she joined an ambulance corps and took part in the defence of Paris, later siding with the communists and advocating the burning of Paris to prevent the entry of the Versailles troops. She was arrested and tried for treason and sentenced to transportation to New Caledonia, where she remained until 1890, when she was allowed to return to Paris under an amnesty act.

Three years later she was again imprisoned for three years for her activity in a communist movement. She then removed to England, where she continued her advocacy of communistic and anarchistic doctrines.

OIL SHIP BLOWN TO ATOMS IN AN INSTANT
Was a Loaded Bomb With Only a Spark Needed For Destruction.

New York, Jan. 10.—Seven survivors of the ill-fated Norwegian ship Marpesa, which was wrecked at sea on Christmas day by an explosion of naphtha, resulting in the death of eleven members of her crew, arrived here today on the steamer Trinidad from Bermuda. They had been rescued by the Danish steamer Gallia which happened by just at the moment when the Marpesa was blown into a shapeless mass and the seven men who survived the shock were taken from the sea where they had sought the only refuge that remained to them after the explosion. They were landed at Bermuda by the Gallia which was bound from Hamburg for Savannah.

The Marpesa sailed from New York for France, on Dec. 9 with a cargo of naphtha and had been out only a day or two when her troubles began. One of the crew succeeded in getting the ship to safety and without much damage until Dec. 17. On that day the ship was battered and knocked about in a merciless manner. Her ventilators were carried away and the deck, her hold began to fill and soon the cargo of cases of naphtha began to warp back and forth with every movement of the vessel. Soon the cases began to give away under the strain and in a little while the freed naphtha was floating around on top of the water in the hold. Gas from the fluid accumulated steadily and by Christmas day the Marpesa was a loaded bomb needing only the slightest spark to blow the whole structure to atoms. How the spark reached the highly charged hold never will be known, but suddenly there came a terrific report, the forward deck shot up into the air with a crash and a roar and in a moment the entire ship was wrapped in flames. Those of the eighteen men on board who had not been caught in the first burst threw themselves over the side of the flaming ship into the sea. They were only seven and the seven who followed the first jump, but in an early death had not the Gallia which happened to be in the vicinity came down quickly to their aid when she saw the burst of flames.

GERMAN MINERS PREPARING FOR A GENERAL COAL STRIKE

Cologne, Germany, Jan. 10.—Both the coal miners and mine owners throughout the Rhinish and Westphalian districts are preparing for a general strike. So far only 20,000 out of a total of 250,000 men concerned have gone out. The mine proprietors began rejecting requests, yesterday, and as soon as their replies are received the miners, according to their previous decision, do not go to work when it is time for their next shift. The employers, under the law fixing the relations of employer and employee, are notifying the miners to return to work or be discharged, with the loss of six days' wages. The miners at seven Dortmund works went out today. The proprietors affirm that they are unable to agree to the demands to include the time of going into and returning from the shafts in the mine, a further assertion is that they are unable to agree to the demands to include the time of going into and returning from the shafts in the mine, a further assertion is that they are unable to agree to the demands to include the time of going into and returning from the shafts in the mine.

KILLED WHILE HUNTING.
Marshall, Minn., Jan. 10.—Howard Middleton, the 11-year-old son of John Middleton, a farmer residing north of town, accidentally shot and killed himself Sunday while out hunting rabbits. He was lying with two other boys. They were examining an old well with a curb two or three feet high, and the boy Howard, while leaning over this curb and poking the snow in the well with the muzzle end of the gun in his hand, accidentally discharged it, receiving the full charge in the face, resulting in immediate death.

DENIED IN PARIS.
Paris, Jan. 10.—The Yugoslavian legation has given out a denial of the reports circulated in Europe that complications between the United States and Venezuela are imminent.

COMMITTEES OF THE HOUSE
NAMED BY SPEAKER CLAGUE AND DULUTH MEN FARE WELL*STARTLING TESTIMONY INTRODUCED INTO THE
KOCH MURDER TRIAL*Farmer Says Prisoner Spoke to Him
About Killing Gebhardt.*Koch Said Rival Dentist Would Not Be With Them Very Long.

New Ulm, Minn., Jan. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the trial of Dr. G. R. Koch on the charge of having murdered Dr. L. A. Gebhardt, Nov. 1, the state today introduced the startling testimony of Ole Ulen, a Norwegian farmer who said Dr. Koch had told him that someone would kill Dr. Gebhardt.

He testified that in June or July, 1893, he went to Dr. Koch to have a tooth pulled. He said: "I told Dr. Koch that Dr. Gebhardt had pulled one tooth for me. He asked why I had gone to Dr. Gebhardt and I told him that Hoidal's clerk had advised me to go there."

Koch said, 'Gebhardt is no better than the doctor. Anyway he won't be with us very long. Some one will kill him.'

"He then asked if I would or could kill Dr. Gebhardt. I don't remember whether he used the word 'would' or 'could'."

"I said I would not do it if I got the whole of New Ulm, or the whole of the United States. He said it was not worth that much. He said the man who would do that would be punished. He said, 'Nobody could find that out'."

New 1 day aft murder close pe and occ fled to l stry, entailing a heavy loss of his insti stated ti inbiels case locked with a combination lock, the combination being known only to himself, Dr. Koch and Dr. Vogel. During October the vial had contained eighty or ninety tablets. Early in that month he had removed it from the wall case and placed it in his instrument value which stood on a shelf just below the door of the medicine closet. He testified that he had not used any of the tablets, nor examined the bottle until Nov. 24, when on doing so at the instance of a detective interested in the murder case, he discovered that only five tablets remained.

Dr. Stickler also testified as to having examined the prisoner's hand shortly after the murder and described the wounds found thereon. He also testified that on Monday after the murder, Dr. Koch was very much depressed, and seemed on the verge of collapse.

The cross-examination of Dr. Stickler was conducted by Mr. Abbott and lasted for half an hour. He brought out that Dr. Koch was in his ordinary spirits after the murder until he learned that he was suspected. That he attended to his patients up to that time and that nothing out of the ordinary was noticeable. Mr. Abbott notified the physician that he will be recalled later for cross-examination. The state attempted to secure the testimony of Ole H. Ulen, of Lake Hanska, as to a conversation he had with Dr. Koch about Dr. Gebhardt in June or July, 1903. The court sustained the objection of the defense and Ulen was withdrawn from the stand. The state will make another attempt to secure his testimony, which is understood to apply toward the motive for the murder.

The state is having some trouble in tracing the bottle of poison. It was handled indiscriminately after the murder and there are still several gaps in the state's testimony.

THIRD PACIFIC FLEET WILL LEAVE SHORTLY*First Division Expected to Sail From Libau By End of Month.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 10.—The Russ today confirms the Paris Temps report of yesterday that the first division of the Third Pacific fleet will leave Libau at the end of January and will consist of the warships Admiral Senavin, General Admiral Apraxine, Admiral Oushakov and Nicholas I, the cruiser Vladimir Monomakh and several torpedo boat destroyers and torpedo boats.

In lengthy review of the military situation, the Novoe Vremya urges the immediate reinforcement of Vladivostok, the port of Sakhalin and Kamchatka. The paper says:

"There is little probability of the Russians being caught as unprepared as at Port Arthur, but the moral responsibility rests upon the government to see that nothing in way of defensive preparation is overlooked. Sakhalin and Kamchatka are both harder to defend, and have a smaller population and are rich in mineral and other resources, and are especially tempting to the Japanese, to whose scheme for national expansion they are necessary."

Continuing, the Novoe Vremya points out that it is possible to send reinforcements and supplies to Sakhalin and Kamchatka while the ice lasts, independent of sea power, and begs that this should be done at once. Touching on the general peace talk in the foreign press, the Novoe Vremya summarizes the list of Russian reverses in the war, and asks if it is possible to consider the question of peace without substantial Russian victories.

WARSHIPS SIGHTED.

TURKEY AND BULGARIA ARE PREPARING FOR POSSIBLE WAR

London, Jan. 10.—The active preparations already reported to have been made both in Turkey and Bulgaria for a possible war this year, are fully confirmed by a private letter received in London from a minister accredited to the Balkan courts.

The minister, who has just completed a tour of the Balkan capitals, writes that the Turkish and Bulgarian governments are energetically preparing for a possible war. Large shipments of arms and ammunition have been made and recruits from Asia Minor are arriving at Salonica weekly for service in the Turkish army. The Bulgarian and Greek lands in Macedonia are increasing daily and are fighting each other and the Turks. This three-cornered guerrilla warfare threatens to assume the bloodiest phase in the spring. "But," concludes the minister, "whether or not there will be a war between Turkey and Bulgaria in the spring I am not prophet enough to say. Unless certain powers think the time is inopportune war may be postponed this year as last, but in any event we are a year nearer the inevitable conflict."

W. B. ANDERSON, of Winona.

Mr. Anderson is slated for chairman of the judiciary committee of the house, probably the most important committee of the session. He was a leading member of the 1901 legislature, and can be looked upon to become one of the foremost members of the house of 1905.

INQUIRY ON FREIGHT RATES IS PROPOSED*By Resolution Introduced In Senate
By Everhart of Mankato.

FROM THE HERALD
ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, Jan. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Railroad legislation was a striking feature of this morning's session of the legislature. Joint resolutions were introduced in both houses memorializing congress in favor of the Quarles-Cooper bill, increasing the powers of the interstate commerce commission; a joint resolution was introduced calling for an investigation into railroad rate discrimination in Minnesota, and an anti-pass and frank bill was introduced.

The most important measure was a Senator Everhart, of Mankato, calling concurrent resolution introduced by for the appointment of a joint special committee to investigate the railroad rate situation. It sets forth that as more equitable transportation and traffic rates and the granting of increased powers to the railroad and warehouse commission will be one of the important questions to come up and that as it is claimed that certain parts of the state are unjustly discriminated against, a thorough investigation is needed. The proposed committee is to consist of three senators and four representatives and is to make a full report with all reasons.

MANY PROBLEMS FOR STATE LEGISLATORS*Public Lands Question of Most Import to Northern Minnesota.

FROM THE HERALD
ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, Jan. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—This session of the legislature will have to deal with a number of important problems, and these, among others, will figure largely in the proceedings:

Draining swamp lands and placing state lands in the hands of settlers. The revised statutes of 1905. Taking educational institutions away from the board of control. Increase of the limit of damages for death by accident, due to negligence of employers, railroads, etc. Local option. Good roads bill. Changes in the primary election law, especially one extending its provisions to the nomination of state officers.

None of these will be of as great importance to the northern part of the state as the matter of public lands. Few people realize how serious a drag the present condition of the state's lands is on the development of the northern half of Minnesota. In the first place, the state's holdings are

A COLD WAVE IN THE NORTHWEST

St. Paul, Jan. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sixteen degrees below zero was the lowest point reached here by the mercury in the government thermometer and although no previous cold weather records were broken, it was the coldest day of the winter. Residues of Minnesota, in the Canadian Northwest, found the temperature just twice as cold as it was in St. Paul, the temperature there being 32 below.

In the Dakotas it ranged anywhere from 10 to 26 degrees below zero. This cold weather will not last much longer, according to the forecast of Observer Oliver, of the local weather bureau, as it is warming up in Wyoming and Western points. Slowly rising temperature is the forecast.

Kansas City, Jan. 10.—A severe snow storm prevailed today in Western Missouri and throughout Kansas. The temperature ranging from six above at Kansas City to seventeen above at Arkansas City.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 10.—Today was the coldest of the winter throughout Wisconsin. The official figures at the United States weather bureau in this city were fifteen degrees below zero at 6 o'clock with the thermometer still falling.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—The coldest weather of the season prevailed here today, the minimum temperature being six degrees below zero. Owing to absence of snow and wind the effect on traffic was not severe.

MOROCCAN CRISIS OVER.
Paris, Jan. 10.—Foreign Minister Delcasse today informed the council of ministers that the Moroccan crisis had been entirely relieved. The sultan restores his French military advisers and expresses satisfaction with the French policy. Accordingly the French minister has been ordered to proceed to Fez tomorrow and arranged the details for carrying out the policy of France.

GOVERNOR ADAMS

Inaugurated Chief Executive of Commonwealth of Colorado.

Ex-Governor Peabody Will Begin a Contest on Wednesday.

Denver, Jan. 10.—Standing beneath the draped folds of the American flag, while the walls about him and the floor beneath him trembled in response to cannon that roared a salute in his honor, Alva Adams was at noon today inaugurated as governor of Colorado. While he stood with uplifted hands taking the oath of office administered by Chief Justice Gilbert, there at his side the athletic form of ex-Governor James Peabody, who will tomorrow inaugurate the most energetic and bitter contest that Colorado has ever seen for the right to fill the position that Governor Adams has just sworn by the ever living God to administer to the best power of his body and mind.

The inaugural ceremonies were simple in the extreme. A few minutes before 12 o'clock Governor Adams, who was escorted to the office of Governor Peabody, who was to accompany him to the house of representatives, where the inauguration was to be held. Arm in arm, the two men, Peabody on the right, Adams on the left, entered the house, which was packed almost to suffocation by senators, representatives and visitors. Lieutenant Governor Haggott, presiding over the joint session of the legislature, greeted both men as they stepped upon the podium with a shake of the hand, and seated Governor Adams on his right, the governor-elect on his left.

The chief justice now administered the oath of office to Alva Adams. He said: "Alva Adams, do you swear to support the constitution of the United States and the constitution of the state of Colorado, and to faithfully execute the office of governor of the state of Colorado, and to preserve, protect and defend the same?"

Alva Adams, in a few seconds the oath was given, and taken and Alva Adams was the governor of Colorado. He then turned to the lieutenant governor, Haggott, still reserving the seat of honor for the governor of the state, requested ex-Governor Peabody to change seats with Governor Adams, and the man who went out passed to the left, and Governor Adams then commenced the reading of his inaugural address.

TRICKS OF THE TRACK.

Foxy Schemes Worked in the Good Old Days.

"It isn't any such an easy thing to shoe-in a horse these days," lamented a veteran trainer at Benning, while in conversation with a Washington Star reporter. "The boys who take the phony end of the horse game are not as crafty as they used to be, and the judges and stewards are a lot more on the rubber. They shoot it into the jocks with the shadow arms, and the sand-bagging owners and the gum-shoe jocks' valets are almost a thing of the past. Why, the stewards, nowadays, even manage to spring every gag that's tried. When the boys can't any longer shove a finger through on a flag-of-the-season trick, then it begins to look as if the game's becoming a whole lot virtuous."

"It used to be as easy as playing checkers with your near-sighted old maid aunt. The smooth ones of the old days spent all their days and nights thinking up new ones, and there was economy in their stunts."

"A foxy scheme for getting a long price was rigged up at the old Clinton track by a shifty eye who tossed a white flag to the judge, and then tried to chart out new methods. He had a five-furlonger that was so good that he couldn't be kept from winning his races by anything short of an axe."

"On several occasions, when an approved jockey with a swelled bloated mouth of his to come when the horse lost, had laid good prices against the state, only to have him pay off lines, the owner of the horse got so mad he snatched and made sand-bagging finishes. So the bookies concluded that they were being double-crossed by the owner of the horse, and began to lay about one to twenty against the horse every time he went to the post."

"There wasn't any duff in that price for the owner, and so he had to frame up one that would enable him to get a price against his horse and then send the plug after a big yank-outown."

"On his way from the track to town one night he bought a quart bottle of his favorite whisky at a wholesale liquor place. This bottle was wrapped up in a piece of corrugated pasteboard, and he used to disguise the outside looks of a wrapped quart bottle of booze."

"The owner of the horse with the winning habit got to looking at this piece of corrugated pasteboard when he unwrapped his quart bottle, and it solved the difficulty for him. When the horse appeared on the track for his preliminary on the next afternoon—he was too light in the third race, a handicap—his high foreleg was swathed in a big, bulky red bandage, and that leg was limping badly. The owner had wrapped the piece of corrugated pasteboard around the horse's leg and covered it up with the red bandage. Pain of it pressing too tightly against the leg made the horse limp. The pastebord hurt him, but there was no chance that it could injure him. The horse hobbled around the track at a hand jog, and he could just barely make his way into the paddock to be finally saddled for the race. The bookies let out a heavy screw, and penciled twenty to one against the animal, whereas if the horse hadn't shown up on the track with that bandage they'd have slated him a prohibitive favorite at about one to ten."

"The foxiness of the owner didn't stop the bookies, however, and they limbered up. He had on the ground a lot of grafters of his staff, all of these fixed out in their make-up. These got the money down at the track and gobs of it went down, too, in the New York and Chicago poolrooms. The bookmakers at the track, who had seen the condition of the horse, accepted the money, and the cheerless workers in the Zerk's as so much push."

"The honest old sprinter, relieved of his pasteboard bandage, pranced on the track when the huge sounder as if he had never taken a lame step from the day he was foaled and he trudged home dazed and drowsy, with his boy riding side-saddle and looking back and kidding all through the stretch."

"A thing that was worked at the old Alexander Island track, the Potomac, was the isinglass blinker scheme. A new horse coming along to the track, with no recent dope on his performance, would be worked before a race in blinkers, with pieces of isinglass set in the cyclones. Now a race horse wants to see what he is doing where he is going and when an animal rigged out with these isinglass blinkers got out onto the track and found that his vision was so obscured that the path in front of him was all but dark he'd begin to back up, back-bump and swerve and cut up broncho tricks calculated to convince the wisdom packers of his rankness and all-around untidiness for a race."

"Such a conviction on the part of the wisecracks would boost the horse's price all but drive him out of the track. Out, fitted with a pair of regular blinkers or none at all, and tows him into the field. Two or three horses fitted with the isinglass blinkers took the million so much to heart during the winter warm-ups that they stood on their heads and then rolled on their backs. But for the shrewdness of the owners and trainers on the old outlaw tracks, they were occasionally backed away by the postmaster of commonsense."

"During the meeting of Iron Hills, the owner of the horse who was about the busiest man in the betting ring and the track, and nothing got away from him. His nick name was Something Doing, because every time a real race thing went through in a newspaper, he was invariably pulled down his bit. One day a stable hand who was sore for over a week, made a quart bottle of his favorite whisky at a wholesale liquor place. This bottle was wrapped up in a piece of corrugated pasteboard, and he used to disguise the outside looks of a wrapped quart bottle of booze."

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS.

One thousand million pounds, or $5,000,000,000, is the estimated amount of money on the credit of the thirty poor and the working classes in Europe. Now a race horse what the security of the government of each country, writes J. Haniker Heaton, M. P., in the Arena. Of this sum no less than two hundred million pounds sterling is held in the hands of the postal savings banks of Great Britain and Ireland, and these banks with almost equally good security.

There are about a half-dozen names associated in English history with the foundation of savings banks. Daniel Defoe is said to have been the first, and exactly the hundred years ago, in 1785, the first savings bank in England was started in London. The first savings bank in England was started in London. The first savings bank in England was started in London.

Charles William Sikes, a cashier in the London and Westminster Bank, was said to be the originator of the idea of a system of savings banks under the name of the London and Westminster Bank. He was a man of great energy and initiative, and he was the first to see the need of a system of savings banks for the poor and working classes.

Fortunately for Mr. Sikes, the scheme found a champion in Mr. George Canning, one of the ablest officials in the money order office of the general post office. Canning was a man of great energy and initiative, and he was the first to see the need of a system of savings banks for the poor and working classes.

On Sept. 16, 1861, four months exactly before the outbreak of the civil war, the measure, by the postal savings bank act, came into operation in Great Britain. The postal savings bank was the first of its kind in the world, and it was the first to see the need of a system of savings banks for the poor and working classes.

Three hundred postoffice savings banks were opened in many parts of the country, and the number of deposits increased rapidly. The postal savings bank was the first of its kind in the world, and it was the first to see the need of a system of savings banks for the poor and working classes.

TRY THIS YOURSELF.

The host, a prominent banker and society man, made the announcement that it was possible to bring a fly to life again after the inter had been on ice for some time and was seemingly ready for the corner's verdict.

"Frozen to death," naturally everyone agreed. What appeared to them to be a wild yarn of the imagination, says the Philadelphia Press, was only one of the frozen stunts that the host had planned for the evening.

There was only one thing frozen stiff to do, so he promptly beat all the guests the host had planned for the evening. There was only one thing frozen stiff to do, so he promptly beat all the guests the host had planned for the evening.

BANKS ELECT DIRECTORS.

Stockholders of National Banks of This City Ballot.

The annual elections of the national banks of this city are taking place today, a date fixed by law. Balloting for directors by the stockholders began at 10 o'clock this morning and closed at 5 o'clock.

There was no change in the board of directors of the First National bank, which is as follows: M. Marshall, A. Ordman, A. D. Thomson, Luther Mendenhall, A. B. Wolvin, A. C. Jones, T. J. Davis, of Duluth; Frederick W. Wabers, St. Paul; John H. Barker, Michigan City, Ind.; Louis W. Hill, St. Paul, and W. F. Fitch, Detroit, Mich.

The stockholders of the City National bank elected the following directors: A. M. Chisholm, John H. Barker, Alexander McDougall, A. K. Macfarlane, E. S. Palmer, John Patton, W. L. Price, Joseph Sellwood and C. A. Stewart.

The only change in the directorate of the City National bank is the election of Michael H. Kelley in place of Robert F. Fitzgerald, deceased, and Joseph Sellwood to succeed John H. Wabers.

Montana Legislature Will Elect a Senator.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 10.—Both houses of the legislature will ballot today for a United States senator, to succeed Paris Gibson, junior senator from Montana, and Wednesday the joint assembly will vote on the subject. The Republicans have a majority of two in the house and six in the senate, and the belief is that former Senator Carleton will be elected, though the Republicans have thus far refused to caucus on the election of a senator until the two houses have voted separately.

Former Senator Lee Mantle and William Lindsay are mentioned as candidates. W. L. Frank and W. G. Conrad are the prominent Democratic candidates.

BLANFORD IS CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED MURDER.

St. Moines, Jan. 10.—Charles Blanford, a nephew of Mel Slaughter, the Colfax young man whose life was mysteriously attempted, was placed under arrest today charged with the crime. Blanford's mother, a daughter of Jacob Slaughter, a wealthy land owner, was practically disinherited upon the death of the old man, and a bitter feeling of revenge was the result.

In all the baking powder "wars" that have been intermittently waged in the last twenty years, there is one point that has been overlooked by the belligerent makers of these goods. Rival manufacturers have contented themselves with accusing their competitors of making an unwholesome product. The question of keeping quality, and, therefore, efficiency in raising bread, the only purpose for which baking powder is used, appears to have been generally ignored. There are many powders which, when fresh, and the can is first unopened, will do fairly good work, but after standing for some time on the pantry shelf, the powder becomes so weak that it is almost worthless, as far as raising bread is concerned. This is especially true in the case of the so-called "Phosphate" powders, which, when fresh, will do fairly good work, but after standing for some time on the pantry shelf, the powder becomes so weak that it is almost worthless, as far as raising bread is concerned.

"Phosphate" powders have enlisted the services of more chemists and cost more money than the solution of any other problem connected with the raising of bread. The makers of these "Phosphate" powders raise a great cry about the weakness of their product, but what matters all this if the powder will not fulfill the only object for which it is purchased? The housewife to whom economy is an object will avoid these "Phosphate" powders.

BILL BY DUBOIS Will Prohibit Polygamy in New States.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Senator Dubois, who has been active against polygamy, today introduced an amendment to the stretched bill, which reserves to congress the right to legislate on the subject of polygamy and polygamous cohabitation. The amendment provides that if the pending bill becomes a law congress may take action, if the two states to be admitted should fail to enact effective legislation.

Senator Dubois desires that congress shall insist that the two proposed states shall incorporate an anti-polygamy clause in their constitution and he believes if the amendment is adopted, national legislation of a similar character would be enacted applicable to every state.

Jury Gives Him Damages Against the Omaha Railroad.

Price of the Ticket May Also Be Recovered.

A verdict of $150 was returned this afternoon by the jury in the case of Henry Richards against the Omaha railroad.

Richards sued to recover damages to the amount of $450 together with the price of his ticket amounting to $47.50. The verdict does not include the price of the ticket. Richards can still recover for this by forwarding the ticket to the St. Paul office of the road.

A state law provides that tickets which are not used for any reason may be redeemed. Richards included the cost of the ticket in his suit, but the court ruled it in the regular manner, he could not recover by a civil suit.

The company's attorneys asked for a stay of twenty days, in which they will argue a motion for a new trial.

The jury retired to consider the evidence at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon. The morning session of court was chiefly occupied by the arguments of counsel on a motion to dismiss, the discussion of the charges to the jury, and the presentation of the case by the attorneys.

After the evidence had all been submitted Pierce Butler and W. D. Bailey, the attorneys for the railroad, submitted a motion to have the case dismissed on the ground that the evidence did not warrant a verdict. Judge Widom dismissed the motion after hearing the arguments of the attorneys, and allowed the case to go to the jury.

There was then a division on the question of the charges which should be submitted by the court. Each attorney had prepared a list of charges which he wished submitted, and both lists were objected to by the opposing counsel.

The attorneys for the defense laid great stress upon the point that a mistake had been made by the clerk, that the railroad was entitled to the full amount of the price of the ticket, and that the conductor did not eject Richards from the train.

Mr. Baldwin on the other hand claimed that if a mistake had been made by the clerk, it should stand, and that the rules of the office made provisions for mistakes by compelling the clerk to stand the loss. He claimed that the ticket was good upon its face and that Richards had a right to ride to the destination named upon it. The question of force in the ejection, he claimed was not material. He asserted that if the conductor told Richards he could not stand at a certain point and upon an appointed time, was demanded, the penalty being the young man's life.

SINGER OF NOTE

Career of Josephine Sabel
One of Unparalleled Successes.

Booked For 300 Weeks Ahead—Now at Metropolitan.

Probably only a few local amusement lovers fully realize the interest and importance attached to the engagement of Josephine Sabel, the famous vaudeville singer, at the Metropolitan this week. Her presence here may better be appreciated when it is known that she is booked for 300 weeks ahead, which will carry her well through 1909. The most of these engagements are in foreign lands, and at any time it became known that she had an unoccupied week a bare announcement of the fact would quickly bring numerous applications for her services from the foremost vaudeville houses of the country.

Josephine Sabel is an able exponent of the artistic vaudeville performance and meets with splendid success wherever she appears. After concluding the list of her 300 weeks' engagements she intends to return to legitimate opera, where she has scored a distinct success at different times in the past. She only recently returned from abroad, where she has contracted for many appearances. She is to appear for four months in Paris, a month in Vienna, one month at the Prague, and in London she has engagements which require her to appear at three theaters each evening, and besides has contracted to sing at a great many places in England. Later she is to sing a whole year in Paris. Already her experience on the foreign stage has been quite extensive. She has appeared in nearly all the principal countries of the world, and has even showed in South Africa. Wherever she goes she is recognized as a "top liner," and her name holds the principal place on the program. Her appearance in Duluth is expected to be but a repetition of her triumphs elsewhere.

Miss Sabel is one of the original vaudeville artists. She has been on the stage for 21 years, and her career has been one of almost unparalleled success. She appeared at Koster & Bial's New York City theater fourteen years ago. It was she who introduced the "Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" song all over the United States, bringing it into such great popular favor. Herself and husband, David Sabel, were in Duluth eleven years ago with Sandow Vaudeville company, under the management of F. Ziegfeld. This company is reputed to have been one of the best, if not the best vaudeville companies ever launched in the United States. None who was not a star was included in the cast. To join the Sandow organization Mrs. Sabel came to America from London, where she was filling an engagement at the Empire theater, reaching the company at Duluth.

INDICTS THREE FOR FORGERY

Grand Jury Makes Another Return on Its Investigation.

The grand jury, in session yesterday afternoon returned last evening three indictments against persons held on criminal charges in this county.

John Warhol, a Russian, was indicted for forgery in the second degree. It is charged that he presented at the City National Bank a forged certificate of deposit on the bank at Manistique, purporting to bear the name of Eugene Scabowski, in the sum of $100. Warhol, who was arraigned this noon, is a young man apparently about 25 to 30 years of age. He claims that his wife at St. Paul has some money belonging to him and with which he expects to employ an attorney for his defense. He will plead tomorrow afternoon.

Anders G. Bloom was indicted for forgery in the second degree. It is charged that Bloom passed a forged check of $25 on John Imbertson, a bartender, at Hilling.

William R. Bonneau was also indicted for forgery in the second degree. The information against him is that he passed a bogus check of about $21 on A. D. Smith, of Hilling.

No report was made this forenoon by the grand jury and this was taken by some of the courthouse officials to mean that it will attempt to finish its work either this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

ARTICLES OF IMPEACHMENT

Against Judge Swayne Prepared By House Committee.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The select committee of the house appointed to draft articles of impeachment against Federal Judge Swayne, today completed its work by the preparation of twelve articles of impeachment. They embrace obtaining money by false pretenses, using the property of a bankrupt corporation in the hands of a receiver appointed by himself and without making compensation to the company, for disobeying the law requiring him to live in his district, for unlawfully and maliciously fining and imprisoning E. T. Davis and Simon Belden, attorneys at law, for alleged contempt of the circuit court of the United States; for unlawfully committing to prison W. C. O'Neal, on the charge that he committed contempt of the district court of the United States.

A minority report, signed by Representatives Littlefield (Me.) and Parker (N. J.) dissents to all the articles of impeachment except that pertaining to the falsification of the expense account of Judge Swayne.

CLARK'S TERM RUNS TO APRIL

New Appointment of Fred L. Ryan Goes to Senate.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the senate takes up Governor Johnson's appointments tomorrow, the appointment of Fred L. Ryan, as surveyor general of logs and lumber, will not be included. This is not due to any opposition to him, but to an oversight in sending his name to the senate. In the senate journal, it appears that he is appointed for the term ending the first Monday in January, 1907. As the term of Simon Clark, the Republican incumbent, began April 20, 1903, Senator Laybourn announced this morning that he would have Mr. Ryan's appointment held up, because it appeared to cut Mr. Clark out without the full two years.

At the governor's office it was stated that there is no such intention. In fact, the attorney general, to clear this matter up, gave an opinion that the terms of these offices must begin on the third Monday in April. The letter of transmission followed the old form, the same one under which Mr. Clark began April 20, 1903, but in order to have it straight, the Ryan appointment will be executed tomorrow and a new one sent in proper form. It will then be confirmed without opposition.

SOME TRAINS ARE DELAYED

South Shore and Omaha Roads Have Some Trouble.

Today's Duluth limited over the Omaha was an hour late and the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic train from the East was an hour and a half behind.

When the Omaha train was late yesterday the trouble was due to an engine on No. 2, the Chicago mail bound south from St. Paul. Between Camp Douglas and Elroy the engine went askew some way and refused to move any further. Four south bound passenger trains and about as many northbound trains were held up for some time, as there was great difficulty in getting the engine away from the spot where it was stuck. For a while it seemed as if all the ingenuity the railroad men could devise would not move the engine, as they were unable to get it in working order and the other engines could not budge it. The result was delay to all the passenger trains eluded to as well as a number of freight trains.

DENIED BY BROOKS

That Dr. Koch Was Man He Saw Murdering Dr. Gebhardt.

Did Not Know the Person He Saw In the Room.

St. Paul, Jan. 11.—A special to the Dispatch from New Ulm, Minn., says: In the trial of Dr. G. R. Koch, today, on the charge of having murdered Dr. L. A. Gebhardt, Nov. 1, Judge Webber denied the motion of the attorneys for the defense that the state be compelled to call Editor Asa P. Brooks to the stand. The court then of his motion ordered Mr. Brooks to take the stand and began to examine the witness.

In reply to questions of the court Mr. Brooks told of his movements up to the time he climbed on the stair rail at Dr. Gebhardt's door and looked through the transom.

"I saw there a man standing over a prostrate body," continued the witness. "I looked into his face and he looked into mine. I got down and went down stairs and called Cavanaugh, whom I saw across the street."

The court: "Was it or was it not the defendant whom you saw?" "It was not," was the reply. "Did you know the person you saw there?" asked the witness. "No sir," replied the witness.

New Ulm, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the opening of the court Judge Webber announced that he would render his decision relative to the calling of A. G. Brooks when the state gave notice that it would rest its case.

The state, in closing its case, used several witnesses in the further identification of exhibits. Robert C. Gebhardt, of Black River, Wis., was called to identify the sample box found in Dr. L. A. Gebhardt's office. This box is the replica of the one in which the poison came.

Dr. Renne identified pieces of the floor and moulding in his office. He was shown the hair found by Chief Klauson on the floor of Gebhardt's office at the time of the murder. Asked if he made an examination of the ends of the hair, he said he had. "Was the hair cut or broken?" "It was cut."

The hair was introduced in evidence early in the trial, and the purpose of the state in introducing it has since remained a mystery. The inference now is that the state wishes to imply that the hair carried up from the barber shop by Dr. Koch's shoes.

A St. Paul newspaper reporter stated that he interviewed Dr. Koch in his room the Sunday after the homicide relative to his whereabouts at the time of the homicide.

The following is the sworn statement made by Brooks at the time Dr. Koch was applying for his release or bail.

"A. P. Brooks, being first duly sworn on his oath, says, that in the evening of the first day of November, 1904, affiant was in his office at about the hour of 9:45 p. m., and heard a sound like scuffling above him in the dental rooms of said Gebhardt, and immediately thereafter affiant went into the street from his office, thence from the street up the stairs leading to the room of the said Dr. Gebhardt's office and attempted to open the doors of the said room, but that all of the same were locked and affiant thereupon got upon a banister and from thence looked over a transom through a glass window into the operating room of the said Dr. Gebhardt; that in so doing affiant was cool, collected and calm, and expected then to see Dr. Gebhardt and some friend engaged in a friendly scuffle as they were wont to do.

"Upon looking over the said transom, affiant saw part of the form of a man lying upon the floor, the remainder of said form being shut off from affiant's vision, which form afterwards proved to be the body of the said Dr. Gebhardt and nearest it was a man, the upper half and head of whose said body was plainly visible to affiant; that said person seemed to be working at or upon the upper part of the body of the said Gebhardt; that in getting upon the banister and in reaching out to support himself while looking through the transom, affiant made a noise; that thereupon the person kneeling by the form of the said Gebhardt faced affiant and he looked directly down and into the face of said person and the eyes of affiant met with the eyes of the person looking at him; that the person so looking at him said, 'What is this?' and that an electric light was hanging so as

SUFFERED FROM CATARRH OF LUNGS SO COMMON IN WINTER. CURED BY PE-RU-NA.

A COLD ON THE LUNGS THREATENS TO BE-COME SERIOUS.

Pe-ru-na Brings Speedy Relief.
Mrs. H. E. Adams, Ex-President Palmetto Club, of New Orleans, La., writes from 110 Garfield Court, South Bend, Ind., as follows:

"I am pleased to endorse Pe-ru-na, as I took it about a year ago and it soon brought me relief from a cold on my lungs which threatened to become serious."

"The lungs were sore and inflamed, I coughed a couple of hours every night, and I felt that something must be done before my lungs became affected."

"Pe-ru-na was suggested by some of my friends who had used it, and acting upon their advice I tried it and found that it was able to bring about a speedy cure. You have my highest endorsement and thanks for the good it did me."

Sounding the Praises of Pe-ru-na.
Mrs. Frances Wilson, 22 Nelson St., Clinton, Mass., writes:

"Had you seen me at the time of my illness and now, you would not wonder that I take delight in sounding the praises of Pe-ru-na."

"My ailment was a severe cold which attacked the bronchial tubes and lungs. It followed your special directions and after using six bottles of Pe-ru-na, I was on my feet again. I think Pe-ru-na a wonderful medicine."

A PLAIN TALK.

On a Plain Subject in Plain Language.

The coming winter will cause at least one-half of the women to have catarrh, colds, coughs, pneumonia or consumption. Thousands of women will lose their lives and tens of thousands will suffer from some chronic ailment from which they will never recover.

Unless you take the necessary precautions, the chances are that you (who read this) will be one of the unfortunate ones. Little or no risk need be run if Pe-ru-na is kept in the house and at the first appearance any symptom of catarrh taken as directed on the bottle.

Pe-ru-na is a safeguard, a preventative, a specific, a cure for all cases of catarrh, acute and chronic, coughs, colds, consumption, etc.

For free medical advice, address Dr. S. B. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

KEEP PERUNA IN THE HOUSE.

To cast a strong light upon the said person's face and that the transom through which affiant was looking up as aforesaid, that affiant's face was not more than ten feet distant from the face of said person at the time they looked at each other, and that affiant obtained a full and plain view of the face and form of said person; that affiant saw no other person or persons in said room than as hereinbefore stated, that affiant then had no conception that Dr. Gebhardt or any other person had been murdered and was unable then to form an opinion what the occasion of said situation was, and thereupon jumped down from said banister and immediately went down into the street and informed divers persons that there was some trouble in Dr. Gebhardt's office, and asked said people to accompany him to said office; that shortly afterwards the doors of Dr. Gebhardt's office were forced open and Dr. Gebhardt's dead body lay upon the floor exactly in position in which affiant had seen the body there lying as hereinbefore stated, and that the person was then found in the office of said Gebhardt or any of the offices connected therewith, but that the back window was found open into an ally, the screen torn open, telephone wires torn loose and every appearance that the person seen by affiant as aforesaid in said office had escaped thereby; that at no time did affiant or any other person see more than one man in said office besides the dead body of said Gebhardt, after the time affiant looked over the transom nor did any person or persons see any person or persons in said office of said Gebhardt during any of said time, except one Cavanaugh, who saw only the dead body of said Gebhardt and got a glimpse of the top and back of the head of some person in said office attempting to escape thenceforth, but is wholly unable to identify or form any opinion as to his identity or give any description whatsoever of said person.

"That if the person whom affiant saw in said room kneeling beside the body of Gebhardt and who looked up at affiant would have recognized him immediately as such, but this affiant did not recognize nor does he now recognize said person as the said George R. Koch and is absolutely certain that said person was not the said George R. Koch, and affiant further says that said person was a stranger and utterly unknown to affiant."

NEW CASES ARE FILED

Several Actions For Recovery Instituted In District Court.

Enli Koehr, of Itasca, Minn., has brought suit in district court against the Coolidge-Schuessler company to recover judgment for $764.15, which is claimed to be the balance due on a claim of $2164.15 for goods delivered, consisting of posts, ties, poles and logs.

Frank Thorwall has started an action against Abraham and Cora MacGregor to recover $146.50, alleged to be due on a contract to paint the MacGregor house.

The case of H. F. Davis against Peter Healey, which involves a judgment rendered of $81.35 for Davis, has been appealed from municipal to district court.

William Chesney has instituted an action against the National Home Investment company to recover $874.25, which he alleges to have put into the company and wishes now to withdraw on the ground that it is impossible for the company to carry on its business as it contracted to do.

THE L. T. P. A. MEETING.

Cole and Bishop Represent Duluth At Detroit.

The annual convention of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association will open at Detroit, Mich., tomorrow. James Bishop, representing the tug engineers, and Martin Cole, representing the captains, left today for the Michigan city to be present at the meeting.

James Walsh, of Duluth, president of the association, is already in Detroit. The annual election of officers will be held among other business transacted. It is said there is a good chance that Mr. Walsh will again be elected to the presidency.

DOUBLES HELD.

Two Suspects Arrested For New York Robberies.

New York, Jan. 11.—In a Tombs cell is a well-educated young man of good family and a hitherto unblemished reputation, held on a charge of robberies by which upper West Side residents have lost $20,000 worth of property within a few months.

Under arrest in Philadelphia is another young man, the double of the New York prisoner. Detectives say it is impossible to tell him from the latter. He is charged with the same crimes, and is said to have made a full confession of his guilt.

Ricard Gamble, who lived with his mother at 151 West Ninety-sixth street, is the alleged victim of mistaken identity. The man in custody in Philadelphia is Albert Scherrenberg. Until three weeks ago he lived in New York.

Dressed as a telephone or electric light inspector the robber would ask to see the electric connections. After leaving rooms where jewels and other valuables were to be found, the valuables would invariably disappear with him.

On the stage a whirl of French vivacity in a delicious blue of soft greens and heliotropes, and off the stage simple, unaffected, domestic, with a charming remnant of the French vivacity, is Miss Josephine Sabel, Garbed in a fetching soft red gown, playing gracefully with a loggnetto, with monstrously large glasses, which she holds at an absolute necessity, Miss Sabel talked understandingly of a dozen and one things.

"You know," she began, "we've just come back from Paris where I really was—you say it, dear" (to her husband), and he obligingly supplied, "an immense success," and "The Immense Success" continued.

"You know I'm an American girl, a bean eater, although my parents were both French, and when I first appeared in Paris, and the people were kind enough to like my work, they would not believe I was American. They said, 'Oh, she may have been educated in America, but her pronunciation and manners are French. There's no getting around that.'" placatingly continued Miss Sabel, "Well, with a real Paris touch, 'may-be,' but it made me MAD. I was American and I achieved success, and they wouldn't give me the credit. And when I insisted and said I was born at Lawrence, Mass. Lawrence?" she asked, with a blank, uncomprehending look, and when I replied, 'Yes, a suburb of Boston,' they knew that Boston was the capital of California, American geography not being the strong point of many of the French.

"You know that gown I had on this afternoon," she continued, "Well, it's such a comfort. I know I would not another like it. I can get ready for my act and go on without expecting to have the starch out of me, but by the meeting the artist coming off the stage with one just like it. Worth made it," she said, and waited complacently for the exclamation she knew would come.

"And I got the grand prix bouquet at Paris for it. You know on grand prix day, everybody, EVERYBODY, has a new gown. And the actresses all have new gowns and the guests all have new gowns and it's just lovely. Well, they study the gowns of the actress, and at the end of the week give to the one with the most beautiful a bouquet, with the very exact shades that are in your dress. And I got it," she ended, with a fascinating little blinding of her head.

"Do I like vaudeville? Oh, sure, or I wouldn't be in it, and then, you know, I like the money. It's going to be a cold winter. But about Paris, they have the loveliest hats. Oh, I know you'll like my hats. And there they put on such colors, magenta, yellow Yale blue, green, and they all look nice, too. I can wear them on out of the street, my complexion won't stand it, and I don't like to put anything on my face off the stage. Did you say show and soap was good for the complexion? Josephine with a bar to the first success."

"But that let me show you my hats. First, my upside-down hat, as my husband calls it. See, isn't it s-s-sweet?" And she donned the "upside-down hat," a sailor of ravishing blue velvet, with flowers and foliage, all under the brim. "And then my Charlotte Corday hat, which is out of shape, and I don't wear any more, and my black hat. I like it so much," and she put them all on and whirled around to give the effect. "And then, see this veil, they are the French women's fad," and with a soft, disinterested scowl, "I wore one, too, and I just hate veils. It's so hard to be stylish. But isn't this just like a woman, talking about hats and veils inside of ten minutes' conversation, and she dumped them back in the trunk.

"But these very clothes are the most attractive thing about me," said Miss Sabel, with a deprecating smile, which said as plainly as words, "I don't believe that and don't expect you too, either."

"Come and see me again before I go away," she called down the hall, and when the door closed the void created was even greater than that which occurs after she leaves the stage.

I went down to Maple Lodge last summer for a reason no person would have recognized. I could not bear the place after Helen died; and when Ethel became my mistress two years later a vague resentment and disgust still kept me away. Not that I blamed Ethel. She had not known Helen as I had known her, or as Jack had known her. But for Jack? How could a man who had shared Helen's perfect love, who had received her peerless devotion

NEW BILL READY

Judge Ensign's Measure Abolishing Grand Jury System.

Statute Revision Commission May Act In the Matter.

It is regarded quite probable that the new code of laws which will be presented to the state legislature the latter part of this month, will contain special provision for procedure in criminal cases without the formality of a grand jury.

From authoritative sources it has been learned that within the next few days, if it has not already done so, a committee comprised of prominent men who have been interested in the abolition of the grand jury system in this state, together with Senator George R. Laybourn, of Duluth, who has been expected to introduce a bill to that effect at the present session of the legislature, will wait on the revision committee to urge that the change which will do away with the grand jury be incorporated in the new code of laws.

It is also understood that the members of the revision committee are favorably inclined to make such provision for the reason that public sentiment in the state is now so strongly against the continuation of the old grand jury system, and because the legislature is likely to pass a measure for its abolition, anyway.

Judge J. D. Ensign, of the district court of this county, who has been among the most active of the state jurists in the campaign to do away with the grand jury system in the matter of the presentation of criminal indictments, on the ground that it is a relic of the past, cumbersome and expensive, has prepared and sent to Senator Laybourn the draft of a bill to be substituted entirely for the present chapter and sections of the statutes in that regard.

Even though the revision commission may incorporate the needed changes in the new code of laws and thus obviate the necessity of introducing a new bill, it is quite likely that Judge Ensign's draft will be presented by Senator Laybourn to the commission as a sort of guide as to the points which the jurists of the state believe should be covered by the new statutes.

The draft of the bill for an amendment, prepared by Judge Ensign, provides for the repeal of section 217 of the general statutes. It further provides that hereafter grand juries shall not be summoned to attend any term of any court within this state unless the judge or judges thereof shall make and furnish the clerk of court, at least fifteen days before the first day of the term, an order directing the clerk to draw and issue summons for a grand jury to appear.

The bill also provides for three conditions under which the judges shall make an order calling a grand jury: First—When, in the opinion of the judges, public necessity demands the action of a grand jury.

Second—When the judges shall be requested by a majority of the county commissioners to order a grand jury.

Third—When the judges shall be requested by a petition signed by at least twenty-five electors to call a grand jury.

This other bill, which provides for an entire substitution of the statutes now in effect in this regard, with the exception of one paragraph after the Wisconsin statutes, which were in turn modeled after the Michigan statutes.

The Wisconsin law was passed in the early '80s and the Michigan law in 1870, so that it is believed that the successful working of the statute for fifty years past in Michigan and for thirty-five years in Wisconsin, is the strongest argument why a similar law should first visit the state of Minnesota.

The first section provides for jurisdiction, the several courts of the state to have the same powers and jurisdiction to hear, try and determine the prosecution crimes, misdemeanors and offenses as they may have exercised in cases of prosecution on indictment.

Section 2 refers to the filing of information, which shall do it and when it shall be done. Under this section the county attorney files the information during the term in any court having jurisdiction of the offense specified.

The third section refers to the offense and tells how it is charged. The information must state the offense in plain and concise language, without needless repetitions and the different offenses and degrees of the same offense that could be joined in one indictment may be joined in any one indictment filed by the county attorney. In all cases the defendant is to have all the rights he would have if the prosecution was done on indictment.

Section 4, which is the only new one that Judge Ensign has added to those of the statutes of Wisconsin, concerns the applicability of the law relating to indictments. It is as follows:

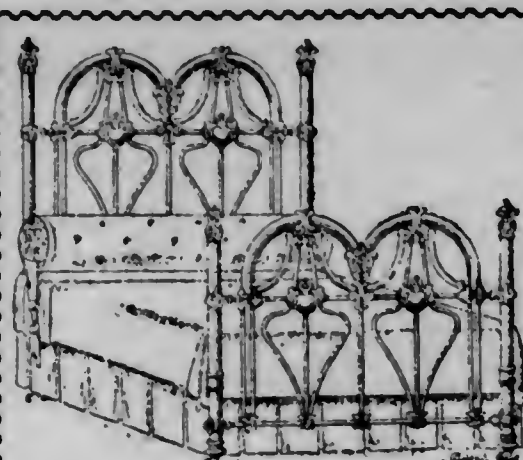

"All of the provisions of the law applying to the construction, interpretation of and prosecutions upon indictment shall apply with like force and effect to the construction, interpretation of and prosecutions upon information, and any and all proceedings provided by law that may be necessary or may be taken subsequent to the return and filing of indictment, may be taken and shall apply to the same extent, for the same purpose and in like manner to informations from and after the filing thereof."

Section 5 relates to commitment and bail. Any person entitled to bail or who would be committed to jail on prosecution by indictment are to be treated likewise on prosecution by information. In bailable cases the court may accept cash bail in lieu of a recognizance for the appearance of the defendant.

Section 6 is important in that it deals with the duties of the county attorney. It provides that he shall make full and complete examination of all the facts and circumstances in any case touching the commission of the offense whereon the offender shall have been committed to jail, become recognized or held to bail, and shall file an information setting forth the facts ascertained, with the written testimony taken thereon, whether it be the offense charged in his complaint on which the examination was held or not. If the county attorney shall determine, after an examination, that no information should issue, he shall file a statement containing his reasons, with the clerk of court or presiding judge, together with such evidence as may be filed. If the statement is not satisfactory to the court, the county attorney may file the proper information and the case to trial. If the court is satisfied, the judge may approve of the statement and order the release from custody of the defendant.

Section seven provides that no information can be filed until the preliminary examination of the accused be held before a justice of the peace or other examining magistrate having jurisdiction, unless in case of fugitives charged with a crime, an omission or failure of preliminary examination shall not invalidate any information in any court, unless the defendant should take advantage of such omission before pleading to the merits by a plea in abatement.

Section eight relates to the procedure if no preliminary examination is had.

Corner Second Ave. W. and First St.

This is in reference chiefly to cases where the accused is a fugitive from justice. It also provides for an action or malicious prosecution against the county attorney unless the information shall be determined by the court to have been made in good faith.

Section nine refers to a second examination in case sufficient evidence was not had at the preliminary examination to raise the probability of guilt and should afterward be found to such an extent as to make guilty quite certain. In such case a second complaint, arrest and examination may follow.

Section ten refers to review of the examination by the court. Under this section, if the defendant should be discharged from any preliminary examination and the county attorney certifies in writing to the judge that in his opinion the examining magistrate has committed an error or violated his duty and, with the opinion, file the written evidence and affidavits, the court may, if satisfied on such returns direct the county attorney to file an information against the accused.

GRAND JURY

INVESTIGATES

Alleged Attempt To Bribe

Representative Frank

Haskell.

St. Paul, Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald).—Was an attempt made to bribe Representative Frank Haskell?

The grand jury this afternoon took up an investigation of the peculiar transaction alleged to have occurred during the contest over the election of a United States senator.

Representative Haskell, of St. Paul, alleged that he was approached with an offer of $100 if he would declare against Senator Clark and support Senator Burton.

The offer, Mr. Haskell asserted, was declined and was given wide publicity to the people. He contends, he is striking a vital blow at the government by the people.

The grand jury intends to make a thorough investigation of the transaction, and place the burden of responsibility where it belongs.

W. W. Rife, one of Senator Clark's right-hand men, has been called as a witness. He is believed to have information which has not been made public. Mr. Haskell also has been called to testify.

THE DUKE CASE

TO BE REVIEWED.

New York, Jan. 11.—A writ of habeas corpus, directing that Brodie L. Duke, who is now confined in a sanitarium at Flushing, L. I., be brought before him for a review of the case, was issued today by Justice Gaylor.

In the supreme court in Brooklyn the writ was granted on application of an attorney, believed to represent Mrs. Alice Weib-Duke, whose marriage to Duke was followed by his incarceration in the sanitarium. The writ is returnable next Friday.

SENATE ASKS INFORMATION

Of Interstate Commerce Commission.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Mr. Elkins today presented and the senate passed a resolution calling on the interstate commerce commission for information giving specific information as to the number of complaints made to the commission by railroads, the companies the number of complaints of excessive rates and of unjust discriminations, and also the complaints of violation of published rates.

It asked also for information in each case as to number of decisions, the number of appeals to the courts and number of affirmations or reversals of the courts in cases of appeals.

augural ceremonies Messrs. Dalzell (Pa.), Crumpacker (Ind.), and Williams (Miss.). The army appropriation bill was taken up in the committee of the whole, Mr. Boutwell (Ill.) in the chair. It was agreed that there should be three hours' debate. The bill (H. R. 1000) led the debate and explained the changes made in existing legislation.

AN INCREASE

OF $10,000,000

Over Current Appropriation

Is Asked In Post-office Bill.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The house committee on postoffices and post roads has completed the postoffice appropriation bill and will report it to the house early next week. The items of the bill have not yet been computed, but the approximate amount carried is $10,000,000, which is $10,000,000 greater than the current appropriation. No increase of salaries is provided for any no new legislation is contained in the bill.

An increase of $5,000,000 is made for the rural free delivery service; $1,000,000 for the city letter carrier; $1,000,000 for clerks in postoffices of the first and second class; $1,000,000 for railway mail clerks. The bill aggregates $3,000,000 less than the estimates. The remaining increase is scattered throughout the bill to provide for the growth of the service.

TREVILION MAYOR

Alderman From Fourth Is Temporarily City's Chief Executive.

Is Also the Acting President of Common Council.

"How I Became Mayor of Duluth for Two Days" is a book that Alderman Trevilion may write when he finds the leisure time necessary. Today Alderman Trevilion is Mayor Trevilion and the administration is Republican for twenty-four hours at least. He has not yet "canned" any of the heads of departments, nor is he likely to do so, as no one is looking for a position that would only last a few hours. The manner in which the alderman from the Fourth became mayor of Duluth is easily explained. Mayor Culham and President Haven of the council left yesterday to represent Duluth at the meeting of the Minnesota League of Municipalities, which is in convention at Minneapolis.

Under the charter the president of the council becomes mayor when the chief executive leaves the city. But the absence of President Haven throws the responsibilities of the position on the vice president of the council and Alderman Trevilion holds that office. The title and the honor is all that Alderman Trevilion is likely to get out of the position, as he does not get any extra remuneration for his added responsibilities. He also had the honor of being chairman of the council meeting last evening, and thus held both positions of president of the council and mayor of the city, for a few minutes at least.

SPEDY RELIEF. A salve that heals without a scar is DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. No remedy effects such speedy relief. A sure cure for inflammation, sores, cuts and boils all cuts, burns and bruises. A sure cure for piles and skin diseases. DeWitt's is the only genuine Witch Hazel Salve. Beware of counterfeits, they are dangerous. Sold by all druggists.

It makes no difference how many medicines have failed to cure you, if you are troubled with headache, constipation, kidney or liver troubles, Holister's Rocky Mountain Tea will make you well. Ask your druggist.

DECIDING GAME

The Duluth and Superior Curlers To Play Third Match.

Possession of Interurban Trophy To Be Determined.

The third and deciding match for the Manley-McLennan Agency trophy will be played this evening at the curling rink, between the Duluth and Superior clubs. Each club has won a game, and the match this evening will decide the possession of the trophy for the coming year. The Duluth rink will be practically the same as those which represented the club on the two former occasions. If the Duluth rink win out this evening, every rink in the local club will have a right to play down for the possession of the trophy.

Three games for the Universal Mill trophy and one for the Herald trophy were played last evening. The "Ministers," added by a handicap of eight points, went down before MacLeod's rink in a close game. The losers ran three points on the first end, giving them a lead of eleven, but the MacLeod quartet by steady and accurate work pulled down the lead and won out by one point. The Black rink won handsomely from the "City Hall" quartet skipped by T. F. McGilvray, the Hopple rink won from the Stocking rink, and the Hoig rink beat the McLennan rink.

The scores and rinks were as follows:
J. E. Catlin, Elmer Whyte, Rev. T. H. Cleland, Rev. Alex. Milne, Skip—15.
W. A. Chapman, W. C. Sherwood, H. W. Nichols, P. A. Currier, D. W. Stocking, Skip—9.
J. C. Trevisle, D. G. Catlin, C. J. McElride, W. L. Spencer, W. L. McLennan, Skip—12.
C. S. Haig, W. C. Harris, A. S. Haig, Skip—14.
J. G. Vivian, J. E. Rockwell, J. G. Ross, A. B. Brock, T. F. McGilvray, Skip—16.

RAILROAD RATES

Considered By President Far More Important Than Tariff Revision.

Washington, Jan. 11.—President Roosevelt continued today his conference with members of congress on the subject of the tariff revision and of legislation providing for an increase of the powers of the interstate commerce commission. One statement which stands out almost with the pre-eminence of an official announcement, is that, unless congress, at the present session, should enact legislation looking to a regulation of railroad freight rates, an extraordinary session of the fifty-ninth congress will be called by the president to deal with the problem. It can be said that the president regards the interstate commerce question as the paramount issue now before the American people. At the conference last Saturday he informed those whom he had summoned into consultation that, in his judgment, the question of railroad freight rates was far more important than that of the tariff and that, while he desired a readjustment of the existing custom duties, he would not permit any radical differences in the Republican party on that question. He said definitely that he would call an extraordinary session of congress to consider interstate commerce legislation, unless definite action was taken by congress on the subject at the present session. At that session, he hoped, tariff revision to the extent he had indicated might be accomplished; but he made it perfectly clear that in his mind the overshadowing issue was that of railroad freight rates.

In a talk today with Speaker Cannon, who is recognized as being opposed at this time to any revision of the tariff, the president reiterated his statement made at Saturday's conference, that, while he desired action on the question, he was willing to abide by the judgment of the Republican leaders in congress, as he regarded the tariff matter as one which the chosen representatives of the people should determine. He indicated, in so many words, that while fifty years hence practically nobody would be able to say whether the tariff duties on any given articles at this time were fifty per cent ad valorem or five per cent ad valorem and nobody would care anything about what the duties were, the interstate commerce commerce question involves a principle dear to every right thinking and right minded American precisely as the whole matter of dealing with corporations involves a principle and no would fight for that principle with all the power that in him lies.

The president corroborated today the statement attributed to him that the tariff question was one merely of expediency which would be solved without friction between him and congress. Any serious difference he is known to have said between him and congress on the tariff revision matter are quite impossible. Speaker Cannon declined when he left the White House to discuss seriously the tariff revision question. "You gentlemen," said he, addressing the newspaper men, in response to inquiries, "have exhausted your imaginations on the subject of tariff. Now give us something on the death of the devil, or some other kindred live topic."

Pressed for a statement concerning the prospect of an extraordinary session, Speaker Cannon replied that Theodore Roosevelt was the only man in the United States who could call an extraordinary session and that he would announce in due time his decision. Representative Murdock, of Kansas, talked with the president today about the interstate commerce question. When he left the White House he said he had no doubt that an extraordinary session of the next congress would be called to consider railroad rate legislation, unless something of a practical nature should be accomplished at the present session.

ROMANCE ENDED

Divorce Suit Filed By Scion of Aristocratic Family.

Series of Events Promises to Develop Remarkable Story.

Huntington, W. Va., Jan. 11.—The past week terminated a romance and heralded a series of events that promise to develop a remarkable story.

Two years ago P. Hal Marcum, scion of a wealthy family in this state and Kentucky, was a law student in the university of West Virginia, in Morgantown. Only twenty years old he went there to finish a law course. Mr. Marcum, who was graduated with the highest honors, met in the university Miss Mabelle Winans, daughter of Rev. William Seymour Winans, Jr., of New Haven, Conn. She was but 16 years old. In addition to youth and beauty she had charms of intellect and refinement. To these were added a voice of rare sweetness. Though young, her talents were so remarkable that her father sent her to Morgantown to have her voice cultivated by a vocal teacher, who was an old friend of the Winans family.

There the young people met, loved and wooed. In the parlors of mutual friends, at parties, and in the woods and on the campus love budded into passion. In a few months, unknown to all but their most intimate friends, they pledged their troth.

Realizing that they must finish their studies the young people remained in Morgantown two years until Mr. Marcum was graduated and came here to practice law.

In the meantime Rev. Mr. Winans received a call from the Burroughs Park church, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and moved to that city. Miss Winans returned to home. A year or so ago the engagement of Mr. Marcum and Miss Winans was announced. In December, 1902, they were married, the wedding being solemnized at the home of the bride. At the ceremony were many of the most prominent people of the state. Mr. Marcum brought his bride to this city. Society raved over her. They made their home with the groom's father, Senator James H. Marcum, and entertained lavishly. For a year their pathway appeared to be strewn with roses, and when it was learned last week that they had separated the news stirred the social circles of city and state.

The first intimation the public received of domestic infidelity was when Mr. Marcum was carried, half fainting, from the law office of his uncle.

Several years ago I was afflicted with what the doctors called Sciatic Rheumatism, or Lumbago, suffering the most intense pains, and being confined to my bed about a year, although four of the best physicians (one of whom was my father) attended me during my illness. They could give me only temporary relief, and I think they tried about all the remedies known to medical science, but none of them did me any good. I was with strong medicine until my stomach got into such a condition that I could digest nothing, and neither myself nor my friends had any hope of my recovery. I was persuaded to try S. S. S., and before finishing the first bottle I found that I had the right remedy. I continued to take it until I cured me perfectly. This was about nine years ago, and I have been in splendid health ever since.

Murfreesboro, Tenn.

J. D. MANSON.

Fiery liniments, drawing plasters and penetrating oils never cured a case of Rheumatism; because it is not a local or skin disease, but a disease of the blood caused by a sour, acid condition of that vital fluid. The kidneys and bowels get weak, the liver torpid, and the poisonous accumulations that should pass off through the usual channels of nature are absorbed by the blood and distributed into the muscles, joints and nerves through the circulation, producing inflammation and swelling of these parts, excitement of the nerves and other painful and disagreeable symptoms of the disease. Rheumatism sufferers look with dread upon the winter season with its damp, greasy weather, for the first slight exposure is liable to bring on an attack, and the sharp, cutting pains and feverish, swollen joints and muscles make life miserable with almost unbearable torture. Local applications will often give relief for a little while, but can do no permanent good, because the trouble is not within their reach; and even while the symptoms are being relieved by such treatment the blood is becoming more heavily charged with the uric acid poison, and the next attack will be more severe. S. S. S. cures this disease by arousing to proper action all the sluggish organs and going into the blood, driving out all the acid and poisonous matter, renewing and strengthening it, and toning up the entire system by its fine tonic effect. It contains no Potash or other harmful minerals, but is purely vegetable and is recognized everywhere as the surest and safest blood purifier. Our special book on Rheumatism will be mailed free to all who write, and our physicians will give medical advice to all sufferers, without charge.

Fiery liniments, drawing plasters and penetrating oils never cured a case of Rheumatism; because it is not a local or skin disease, but a disease of the blood caused by a sour, acid condition of that vital fluid. The kidneys and bowels get weak, the liver torpid, and the poisonous accumulations that should pass off through the usual channels of nature are absorbed by the blood and distributed into the muscles, joints and nerves through the circulation, producing inflammation and swelling of these parts, excitement of the nerves and other painful and disagreeable symptoms of the disease. Rheumatism sufferers look with dread upon the winter season with its damp, greasy weather, for the first slight exposure is liable to bring on an attack, and the sharp, cutting pains and feverish, swollen joints and muscles make life miserable with almost unbearable torture. Local applications will often give relief for a little while, but can do no permanent good, because the trouble is not within their reach; and even while the symptoms are being relieved by such treatment the blood is becoming more heavily charged with the uric acid poison, and the next attack will be more severe. S. S. S. cures this disease by arousing to proper action all the sluggish organs and going into the blood, driving out all the acid and poisonous matter, renewing and strengthening it, and toning up the entire system by its fine tonic effect. It contains no Potash or other harmful minerals, but is purely vegetable and is recognized everywhere as the surest and safest blood purifier. Our special book on Rheumatism will be mailed free to all who write, and our physicians will give medical advice to all sufferers, without charge.

Several years ago I was afflicted with what the doctors called Sciatic Rheumatism, or Lumbago, suffering the most intense pains, and being confined to my bed about a year, although four of the best physicians (one of whom was my father) attended me during my illness. They could give me only temporary relief, and I think they tried about all the remedies known to medical science, but none of them did me any good. I was with strong medicine until my stomach got into such a condition that I could digest nothing, and neither myself nor my friends had any hope of my recovery. I was persuaded to try S. S. S., and before finishing the first bottle I found that I had the right remedy. I continued to take it until I cured me perfectly. This was about nine years ago, and I have been in splendid health ever since.

A MYSTERY SOLVED

Long Disappearance of Owen Kelley Is Now Explained.

The Philadelphia Church Wonder Lived a Strange Dual Life.

New York, Jan. 11.—Rivalling Robert Louis Stevenson's weird tale of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" is the true story of the life, character and final disappearance of Owen Kelley, of Philadelphia, church worker, temperance leader, manufacturer, director of the Continental Trust and Loan company, merchant, philanthropist, patriot, club member and prominent citizen.

All this was the Owen Kelley who dropped out of sight on the night of Oct. 25 last. Since then the other side of his character has been revealed. His friends have done this. There was another Owen Kelley—a night prowler, a roamer in the slums, a madman, inebriate, feckless, beyond the incarnation of the Mr. Hyde of which Stevenson dreamed, but without Hyde's criminal tendencies.

Mr. Kelley disappeared from Philadelphia on Oct. 25. No one knows where he is, but he is believed to be in this city. He was seen here as recently as Dec. 22 by Edward Daly, a traveling salesman. Mr. Daly met Kelley in a saloon. He had a pleasant chat for half an hour. Daly did not know at the time that Kelley was reported missing.

The Owen Kelley his friends knew was a shrewd, careful business man. The Owen Kelley his friends did not know was morally irresponsible for anything he did.

An explanation of the disappearance and the actions that preceded it, Mr. Kelley's friends and the police in both Philadelphia and this city, attribute them to a mental disease which came to a climax about a year ago.

At that time he was confined to his room for more than a month and under treatment in the University of Pennsylvania hospital for about six weeks. All this time he was in absolute darkness, the physicians forbidding even candle light in the room. While his eyes were most affected, it is believed his mind was also affected, the result of a most serious disorder, affecting his mind.

He disappeared from Philadelphia as mysteriously as the earth had swallowed him, on the night of Oct. 25. Since then his friends have had a hard time of it. The police in both Philadelphia and this city, attribute them to a mental disease which came to a climax about a year ago.

of every penny he had saved through payment of discounts. His business increased so that the few looms were muffled into the Welcome mills, and he left the loom for a handsomely furnished office. One day he surprised his wife by saying, "Here is your share of the money the Welcome mills have made."

When the trust company's books were examined it was found that there was just $125 remaining on deposit. Owen Kelley had withdrawn the fortune upon which Daniel Wade had counted.

On top of this came the claim of Kelley's first cousin, Francis Mulgrew, a saloonkeeper of Seventieth and Columbus avenues, New York, that Kelley had $22,000 of his money. His statement is to the effect that Kelley advanced about $10,000 to him to start the saloon, and that a partnership without a written agreement was entered into after he had repaid the loan.

This verbal partnership, according to Mulgrew, existed at the time Kelley was one of the most prominent figures in national, state and diocesan conventions of the total abstinence movement. Mulgrew's claim is based on the receipt from him by Kelley of twenty-two checks for $100 each. This money came from the profits of the saloon. There was a twenty-third check for $100 from Mulgrew found in Kelley's desk after he disappeared. It was indorsed by the missing man. Mulgrew promptly stopped payment when he heard of Kelley's disappearance and instituted a search for the rest of the money he supposed Kelley was holding for him.

It is not believed by those who know him that Owen Kelley has actually taken the money of his partners. Both Wade and Mulgrew are said to be ready to forgive him and even to give him money for a new start in life.

ASTOR BALL BIGGEST EVER

Largest Private Entertainment in the Annals of Gotham.

New York, Jan. 11.—The largest private entertainment ever given in this city was Mrs. Astor's annual ball, held Monday night in the twin mansion of Mrs. Astor and John Jacob Astor in Fifth avenue. The leader of society had let down the bars and at least 300 guests were present. Otherwise, the ball did not differ materially from those of previous years. The floral decorations were identical.

Mrs. Astor's 300 guests proved that the "60" of Ward McAllister's day is only a tradition. An unusually large number of debutantes were present, with scores of new members of the Newport set, besides scores of families famous socially thirty years ago, but obscure today.

At 9 o'clock the guests were in the ball room when the cotillon was danced. It was led by Mrs. John Jacob Astor. Mrs. Mulgrew and Harry Lehr and Elsie Lehr, Jr.

When your child is ill you dislike to make it take bad tasting medicine. Hence it is well to know that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is very pleasant. But it is a medicine, a strong medicine.

Time and time again we have published the formula of this cough medicine in the principal Medical Journals of this country and Europe, and have mailed it to nearly every physician in the United States.

So it follows that when your doctor orders it for coughs, colds, bronchitis, or consumption, he knows precisely what he is giving.

Physicians recommend their families to keep it on hand.

BENOIT IS GUILTY

Mail Clerk Sentenced To Eighteen Months' Hard Labor.

The Federal Grand Jury Makes First Report—Indicts Three.

Frank Benoit, a former railway mail clerk, indicted by the federal grand jury on the charge of embezzlement from the United States mails, pleaded guilty to the charge, before Judge Page Morris this morning, and was sentenced to eighteen months at hard labor at the Stillwater state prison.

The evidence submitted before the grand jury, which made its first report of the term late yesterday afternoon, clearly established proof of the man's guilt. It was shown that Benoit, while acting as railway mail clerk, had stolen from the United States mails a small sum of money from a decoy letter, which had been mailed at Crookston by government authorities. It is claimed that the clerk was caught in the act of spending a marked half dollar taken from the envelope.

True bills were also yesterday returned against Allen B. Chandler, former postmaster at Brimley, Lake county, charged with falsifying his stamp accounts and showing a list of an Indian, charged with introducing intoxicating liquor on the Fond du Lac reservation. Several other Indians will, it is expected, be indicted on the same charge. Numerous Indians are now in the city to act as witnesses in these cases.

It is believed that the grand jury, which will probably make its second report some time this afternoon, will complete the work of the present term before Thursday night.

In circuit court the case of the United States against the Pittsburgh Steamship company was taken up before a jury. The case is still occupying the attention of the court this afternoon, and will probably not be completed before tomorrow. The government seeks to recover damages in the sum of $500, and the suit is brought as a result of an alleged collision between one of the company's vessels with a breakwater at South Chicago.

Yesterday afternoon several motions to continue cases over the term were made. Among the cases to this go over the term are the following: Granville Burns against the Clouet Lumber company, Henry Wickey against the Clouet Lumber company, Frank J. Cort against the Leisure Lumber company, Axel Koski against McArthur Bros., J. M. Gray against the Pine Tree Lumber company. The case of Antoine Helene against McArthur Bros. was dismissed, having been settled out of court.

A demurrer was filed to the complaint in the case of Louis and Belina Wolf against the Northern Pacific Railway company, and arguments on it will be heard Saturday. The suit to recover $20,000 as damages for the death of a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wolf. It is alleged he was killed through the negligence of a fellow employee while working for the road.

Another motion to be argued Saturday was filed in the case of the Knudsen-Perguson Fruit company against the Michigan Central railway. The plaintiff seeks to have the defendant's officers appear personally at the trial. The case is the one in which the local firm is trying to recover an alleged overcharge for refrigeration upon a shipment of grapes forwarded over the Michigan Central railway.

Judge Morris rendered an oral decision in favor of the plaintiff in the case of E. A. Patrick & Co. against the Maryland Casualty company, and directed that the defendant's attorney prepare written findings in the case, in accordance with his ruling. The local concern sought a recovery on a sprinkler policy issued by the Maryland Casualty company.

WILL HAVE RALLY.

Company C to Entertain at the Armory.

Company C, of the Third regiment, is going to have an unusual sort of rally at the Armory tonight. It will be in the nature of a reception to young men friends of the organization with a view to stirring up more interest in the military. There is to be, first of all, a game of indoor ball with teams headed by William Pfizenmeyer and Earl Lowe. A musical program will furnish part of the evening's enjoyment and there will be two quartets, one consisting of O. H. Ward, L. W. Binder, W. Coughlin and Don Clark. Another quartet is expected to be present through the solicitation of Fred Hanson. Speeches are to be made by Mrs. Resche and Eva, of the Third regiment, and backing them up will be such well-known regular army representatives as Maj. Charles Potter and Lieut. Alfred Mason. Maj. Potter is the government engineer here and Lieut. Mason is the recruiting officer. Ben Nett is to be the toastmaster and there will be punch and cigars for the refreshment of the visitors.

Skating at Western rink, West Duluth, tonight and Friday. Fifty-seven in average west.

Notice to School Children

We will give away, absolutely free, a $5 Gold Piece and one Barrel of Fancy Patent Flour

To any school child under fifteen years of age, who suggests a brand or name for our special fancy patent flour, which we will adopt. The flour is made of the best No. 1 hard wheat and is guaranteed equal to the best patent flour on the market.

The name or brand submitted must be new and original, different from that of any other make, and must be suggestive of purity, strength and worth.

Now children, ask your mother or father to help you suggest a name or brand, and, if possible, make a drawing of such name or brand, and send with letter, giving your name, age and address. The author of the name or brand adopted by three disinterested judges, will receive the above-named award.

We reserve the right to reject any or all of the names submitted, if not suitable. The contest will close Saturday, January 21st, and the award will be delivered to the winner on or before January 28th.

The Sale of Tailored Suits at Half-- (None Reserved) Continues.

They will be ready promptly at 7 tomorrow morning. None charged—none will be laid by and alterations will be charged for at cost.

Cheviots, Broadcloths, London Twines, Voiles, and the various Scotch and English mixtures—in all of the best selling shades of the present season, are included. The selling is most remarkable because all of these goods are new this season—and if it were not for the policy laid out by us—that each season must take care of itself, there never should be such radical reductions on goods of such high standard.

The Cold Weather Can't Stop the Selling.

We scarcely expected a good start for the White Wear Sale in such weather as we had yesterday and Monday, but when the reports were all in, we found that business was splendid—which is a good indication that the White Wear selling will be exceptional as soon as the weather moderates.

Those that were here were delighted with the displays of Undermuslins, both in the American made—the "Paris-American" made or copied models—and the Real French hand-made goods—the economies in prices are easily noticeable to every woman who understands materials, sewing and laces or embroideries! We have had some of our most competent white wear people see the undermuslins on display at various other stores about town now holding sales of these goods, and these are some of the details that show the betterness.

Night Gowns are almost half a yard wider at the hips than those found elsewhere at the price. This takes more material, but it means comfort.

Chemises, instead of being shapeless, are cut to fit in a manner that women desire.

Corset Covers are carefully cut to fit properly over straight-front corsets and tight-fitting bodices. They are not drawn up with a string like a bag.

Muslins and cambrics are soft and show their quality. They are not stiffened to give the appearance of a quality which they do not possess.

Laces and embroideries are carefully selected, and are not remnants

In addition to the splendid stocks, you will find tomorrow fine new collections of very low-priced, but still nicely-made garments, on the tables in the center of the right aisle.

SAILORS' STRIKE ENDANGERS SHIP

San Francisco, Jan. 11.—A strike of sailors when the vessel on which they were employed was in imminent danger of destruction was a novel phase of the labor question brought to light during the investigation into the disaster of the steamer Lakame. When it appeared as though she was about to go to pieces, Capt. John W. Carlson, master of the Lakame ordered the crew to jettison some of the remaining deck load, in order to right the vessel. To his astonishment and indignation the sailors struck. They refused to lift a hand unless the captain would agree to pay them overtime. Capt. Carlson, by the exercise of diplomacy, succeeded in inducing them to save the vessel and to end the strike. The crew were all foreigners and there was not an American among them.

vised them to sojourn for a time at a Michigan sanitarium, where, under a daily regime of food and exercise, they were required to walk thirty-five miles a week, the distance to be executed in blocks of five a day.

To test the accuracy of their walks they were advised to furnish themselves with pedometers. This they did. The pedometers worked excellently, so well, in fact, that when they returned to Washington, they brought their walking measures with them.

Vastly improved in health they exhibited their wonderful distance machines to other members of the house and senate. Pedometer praise was loud and long for a while. Other members of the Kansas delegation thought the idea a good one. Straightaway they provided themselves with similar machines. Now every member of the delegation walks not less than five miles a day. Mr. Murdock says that pedometers is the only disease he ever contracted with satisfaction and comfort. He is advising the whole house to take the complaint.

TO SOLVE MYSTERY

Of the Death of Mabel Scofield Five Years Ago.

Hack Driver Accused of Having Poisoned the Girl.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 12.—Five years after the lifeless body of Mabel Scofield, a handsome young girl, was taken from the Des Moines river, with no water on her lungs and a trace of chloral in her stomach, Charles Thomas, a hack driver, has been indicted and taken into custody on the charge of murder. In open court he has pleaded not guilty and for the January term of district court has been opened one of the most sensational and interesting cases ever recorded in the state.

Mabel Scofield came to Des Moines in 1899 to earn a livelihood as dressmaker. Her father was Dr. A. J. Scofield, of Macksburg, Iowa. One of her childhood friends was Miss Maggie Hammond, a niece of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas, so it was but natural she should go to the Thomas home to board.

On Oct. 31, 1899, she bade her mother, who had been visiting her, good-bye at the depot. At 8 o'clock the next evening her lifeless body was lifted from the river by two boys attracted by the floating skirts. Thomas was arrested, but on preliminary hearing was discharged. Justice Duncan stated in his ruling that the state had failed to prove that a murder had been committed. From that time to this the community has been divided over the suicide and murder theories.

The stomach of the girl was examined by Dr. J. B. McDermott, professor of chemistry at Highland Park college, who claims he found a trace of chloral in the stomach. The defense will introduce expert chemists to show that the action of the natural acids of the stomach upon common table salt will produce the exact conditions found in the girl's stomach. They will further seek to show by these chemists that it would be impossible for a human stomach to hold unassimilated chloral hydrate, which, it is claimed, was given the girl, for the period the state claims she was dead.

The state's star witness is Dr. William L. Taylor, who, up to two weeks ago, has maintained perfect silence in the case. He gives as his reasons for doing so the fear that he would be prosecuted for practicing medicine without a state certificate. Taylor claims that on Oct. 2 he was called to the Thomas home about a. m., but when he arrived Thomas met him at the door and said it was too late, the girl was dead.

"What girl?" Taylor claims to have asked, whereupon he says he was told that it was Mabel Scofield. Then he says he asked Thomas was the matter and was told that poison had been administered in too large a dose, and death resulted.

The defense expects to impeach this witness. They can prove without a shadow of denial, they claim, that Mabel Scofield was at the Thomas home, who had been visiting her. The Thomas home was nearly two miles from the depot and Taylor says Thomas told him when he arrived that the girl had been dead twenty minutes.

One of the strongest features of the defense will be an alibi, Thomas claims he can prove that on the day of the alleged murder he was in Valley Junction, a suburban town, driving a hack in a funeral from 7 a. m. until afternoon. If this can be well established, it may explode the testimony of Dr. Taylor.

Two years ago Thomas moved from Des Moines and has been living on a farm 120 miles northwest of Omaha. It was here that he was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Noss, who went armed with a revolver. His parents live in Des Moines. They will give their son the best defense money can assure. Thomas is now held in the county jail, the indictment being for murder in the first degree.

It is possible the defense will make a motion for a change of venue from the county on account of the sentiment worked up at the time by a local newspaper which employed a private detective to ferret out the case. Then, when Justice Duncan refused to allow Thomas to the grand jury on the evidence produced, the same paper attempted to defeat him in the election. He was elected, however.

A local detective by the name of Hokersmith has made application for the reward of $2500 offered for the capture of the alleged murderer. H. Burns, foreman of the grand jury, claims this man had nothing whatever to do with the investigation. Thomas is confident he will be acquitted.

GERM THEORY OF PHYSICIAN

Grip Microbe Very Busy, But It May Be Avoided.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 12.—The grip has again taken hold of Indianapolis. One doctor, on the north side, says he is at most worn out as a result of calls, day and night, most of them on cases of grip.

"I have all sorts of experiences," said the doctor, "but the one that stands out above all others is the refusal of these grip victims to accept the fact that the disease is a disease caused by a germ, and is very contagious, yet people will carelessly expose themselves to grip, calling on friends who have the disease."

He insisted and afterward undertook to prove to him that he was wrong in his conclusion, and that he ought to protect his patients. This was a place of window glass and moistened its surface with a little weak solution of glycerine. Then I placed it on a table in the open room, glycerine side up, and in a short time had set it on it in quantities, being held there by the glycerine. Taking a little of that and placing it under a microscope, I was able to distinguish any number of germs, each capable of causing an attack of grip. When you consider that several thousand of these germs can float in the air, and that they are so small, as there are only about sixty-five recognized disease germs, but the tubercle bacillus, or consumption germ, and the influenza bacillus, or grip germ, were there, now present in the living dust of Indianapolis streets.

The grip germ is a very small one, and before it can be seen plainly it must be stained red and magnified, not 100, but 1000 times. This we did by putting the dust containing the germs in a little blood serum, and then placing it under a microscope. They grow and reproduce with wonderful rapidity. Every twenty minutes or so a new generation is born by the splitting up of the adult germs, so that they increase in geometrical progression.

Before long we had millions of the germs, each germ capable of causing an attack of grip. When you consider that several thousand of these germs can float in the air, and that they are so small, as there are only about sixty-five recognized disease germs, but the tubercle bacillus, or consumption germ, and the influenza bacillus, or grip germ, were there, now present in the living dust of Indianapolis streets.

The city is to spend $25,000 on street cleaning during 1905, and I understand that they are to use the rotary brush machines that throw the dust about twenty feet in the air. It would be a great economy of life and health to spend $25,000 and use some machine that would gather up and burn the dust and so kill the microbes, and, to a great extent, prevent such diseases as the grip.

BUTTE MINER KILLED.

Falling Drill Pierced the Breast of Cotter.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 12.—Mike Cotter, a miner, was killed in the Diamond mine by a drill which fell a distance of 200 feet, striking him. As the drills were working on the north side, he was struck by a 200-foot level, shouted a word of warning to other men to look out, and then he was struck. He fell into the breast and tearing out that part of his body.

DULUTH IS EIGHTH

Seven Other Towns in County Pay Higher Taxes.

Tower Leads List With Rate of 46.8 Mills.

Duluth property owners with their tax rate of 35.5 mills can gain some comfort from the fact that other cities and villages in the county are worse off than they.

The citizens of Tower have the proud distinction of paying the heaviest taxes of any property owners in St. Louis county, according to the statement which has just been issued by County Auditor Haddin. In Tower the tax rate is 46.8 mills of which amount 15 mills is for the school fund.

Proctor comes second in the county with 43.3 mills. The village of Fall Lake is third with 37.4 mills, and the towns of Floodwood and Grand Lake next with 36.3 mills. The town of Breckinridge is sixth with 33.8 and the town of Allen seventh with 33.4. Then comes Duluth with 35.5 mills. Ely pays a rate of 24.5 mills, Eveleth 27.6, Virginia, 31, and Hibbing 21.8.

In nearly all of these incorporated cities and villages, the school tax forms a very large proportion of the total, as it does in Duluth. Tower leads with a rate of 15 mills for school purposes, while Duluth's rate is 11.5 mills. The following table shows how the Duluth rate was divided in 1904 and 1905:

County	1904	1905
School	3.7	4.0
State	1.3	1.5
City	2.3	2.7
	15.1	14.9

Total ..... 31.4 32.5
The total levy for city purposes is $100,000, and for school purposes approximately $25,000. Hibbing comes second with a city levy of $9,353.50 and school third with $2,947.52. Ely is fourth with a city levy of $1,553.44 and school fifth with $1,553.44. The high rate in Tower and the comparatively low amount of money raised on hand of $12,225. The expenses on account of labor troubles were $5431.

CHANGE MADE IN THE DATE

State Federation Breakfast to Be Held Here Feb. 17.

Owing to a number of affairs which will be held in the city during the week beginning Feb. 19, the date of the federation breakfast has been changed from Feb. 22, the date fixed upon by the executive committee, to Feb. 17. The breakfast is the annual affair of the state federation and plans Duluth women for the entertainment of the club women of the state.

It is expected that a large number of out-of-town women will be in attendance and the breakfast will be served at the Spaulding. The list of toasts has not been completed, but Miss Margaret Evans will be one of the speakers. This is the first time that the federation will have been entertained in this city and local club women are deeply interested in the event.

PET STOCK EXHIBITION

Will Be Feature of Poultry Show This Month.

Officers of the Duluth Poultry association are as yet in a quandary as to where to hold their annual exhibition which is scheduled for next week in this city. As soon as the location can be determined work will be started on preparing the exhibition room for the coops and pens which will go in as houses for the stock which will be put on display.

A specialty of the exhibition will be the display of pet stock of which there are some prize animals in Duluth. Some of the local pet owners are now at the state poultry show at Minneapolis with their favorites. Among these is Mrs. G. Hood Thompson, whose husband is a well-known fancier of fine breeds of chickens, while she has some fine pet fowls. At Minneapolis there are 14 silver cups and 60 other special prizes to be awarded in the cat show. Two of the cats now on exhibition at Minneapolis are of high value, one being appraised at $1500 and another at $1000.

The local managers would like very much to have these animals here for the Duluth display, but whether it can be arranged is a question. These two cats are related, and are the property of one owner. J. T. Michaud, of the St. Louis, well known as a lover of canines, has some cocker spaniels at Minneapolis, but whatever dogs he may enter in the Duluth show will not be for prizes, as he wants to give some other people a chance to get honors with their pet property. His dogs have carried away pretty ribbons so easily and often that he feels it unfair to enter them in competition. John P. Morrow, of Duluth, has his Irish terrier Ambassador at Minneapolis and it is said to be the only dog of that breed in exhibition there.

Among the features at Minneapolis this week is the collection owned by Wallace Evans of oil paintings, and pen sketches of pheasants and game birds, valued at $12,000. Pen and game pictures will be on display at the Duluth show, but whether Mr. Evans' collection can be brought to this city is not yet known.

LAKE CARRIERS' ASSOCIATION

Listen To Reports of Officers for the Past Year.

Detroit, Jan. 12.—The annual meeting of the Lake Carriers' association was called to order in the Hotel Cadillac here today with members present from all ports of the lakes. Before the session opened it was said that the labor question would not be discussed until tomorrow.

President Livingston read the annual report of the board of directors, executive committee and officers immediately after the opening of the session. It reviewed the negotiations between labor and the officers of the union during the year and discussed the strike of the Masters and Pilots association last spring. Improvements in the construction was reviewed and progress described. The report showed that the total number of vessels enrolled last year in the association was 608, including ninety-three tug and their total tonnage amounted to 1,399,027 tons. The total receipts for the year were $30,700, the expenditures $48,486, leaving a balance on hand of $17,783. The expenses on account of labor troubles were $5431.

A Brilliant Lecture.
Dr. Robert Stuart McArthur when he lectured in Sandusky, O., on "The Empire of the Czars," the same lecture he will deliver tomorrow evening in the Star lecture course at the First Methodist church, received the following warm praise from the Daily Register of that city:

"Dr. McArthur, who has traveled extensively in Europe and other countries, handled his subject in a manner that showed he had a fund of information concerning Russia and the Russians. He took his audience from the founding of the government by Rurik in 862, down to the present day, in a most interesting and instructive manner. He described in eloquent language the social and religious conditions of the Russian people. The lecture was one of the best ever delivered in Sandusky and was enthusiastically received."

ALL THE GUNS ON ISTHMUS

Now In Uncle Sam's Possession and Revolutions Ended.

Panama, Jan. 12.—The last vestige of the military power wrested this country from the United States of Columbia and made the republic of Panama, disappeared when the national arsenal was turned over to the United States. The arms were quickly moved out of this country to American storehouses in the canal zone, and the pacification of Panama is now complete.

As soon as it became known that the transfer was taking place members of the Liberal party protested vigorously. A strong guard of policemen armed with rifles escorted the munition wagons through the streets of Panama from the barracks to the canal zone. A shouting crowd of men, women and children followed, but was kept back by the loaded rifles from interfering with the removal. Capt. Edward L. King, Second United States cavalry, represented the American government during the transfer and appealing to the passions of the crowd, he was successful in dispersing them. A significant feature of the transfer is that it took place immediately after the municipal elections, in which the conservatives of whom President Amador is the leader, were defeated. The Liberals, led by Gen. Huerta and his friends, carried Panama city and many of the large districts of the republic by overwhelming majorities.

After Gen. Huerta was accused of attempting to incite a revolution in Soconusco, the republic's army was disbanded. Javanian negro policemen were given rifles and, detailed to guard the presidential palace, and the abandoned fort and arsenal. The late soldiers, most of whom are Colombians and exiles from that country because of assisting in the Panamanian secession, have been forced to obtain work with the American canal commission digging, sewer and water trenches in Panama city.

Officials of the state what use of the arms. As soon as the war department learned of their final disposition and settlement has been made with this republic, they will be shipped from the isthmus.

Ever since Gen. Huerta's November revolution was summarily excluded by the appearance of four American men-of-war off the coast, 200 machines and arms it has been evident that revolution will not be tolerated here while the United States flag flies in progress and that, consequently, the republic will have little Dyspepsia or else. Some of the rifles have never been removed from the packings. Four latest rifle Hotchkiss guns, in excellent condition are in the lot. Chili offered to furnish arms. The republic dared not risk the construction of the canal in its hands. Take up every morning furnishing other Gomez, or Chili, with munitions of war. Gen. same apprehensions as Panama over possible damage claims. A guard of American marines will be moved from Empire, an interior station along the canal route, to Ancon section to guard the munition of the Liberator which will accompany the January session. PASSENGER TRAINS COLLIDE IN DENSE FOG
Las Vegas, N. M., Jan. 12.—Santa Fe passenger train No. 4, the California limited, collided head-on with a freight train early today, thirty miles south of Raton. Several members of the crew are supposed to be dead, among them a fireman on the limited. A negro barber also was killed. Many of the passengers were bruised, but none seriously hurt.

The trains met in an unusually heavy fog and neither engine crew had any warning of their danger before they struck. The engine crews did not have time to jump. Both engines were injured.

MESSAGE OF GOV. WHITE

Is Delivered Before the Legislature of West Virginia.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 12.—In the message of the retiring governor, Albert B. White, the affairs of the state are reviewed at considerable length. There is no state debt, at their danger before they struck. The engine crews did not have time to jump. Both engines were injured.

"To raise the revenues necessary to take the place of the 5-cent tax now provided to be levied in 1907 for state school purposes I would recommend, as I did two years ago, that a tax of 10 per cent be laid upon the gross incomes of all railroad and street railway companies in this state. The proceeds of this tax will go, by the operation of our constitution, to the amendment to the distributable school fund and will produce as much as the 5 cents of tax proposed in the existing law."

He maintained that railroads should be taxed solely and exclusively for the purposes for which they were incorporated, and not be exempted, as now, from the payment of any kind, either directly or indirectly. As a remedy he urged the state to take the railroads under supervision of the state, thereby providing for effective state supervision of railroads.

HUSTLERS' CLUB

Second One Now Being Organized By Local
Y. M. C. A.

Expected Association Will Have 1000 Members
By February.

Another "Hustlers' club," with the bringing of 100 new members into the association before Feb. 1 as its object, is now being formed by the local Y. M.
C. A. The canvass of a similar club last year met with great success, resulting in 120 new names being added to the membership roll, instead of 100, the mark set at the beginning of the work.

Those who help in the present canvass will be entertained at an elaborate banquet at the Spaulding hotel, as guests of the organization on Feb. 3. Numerous recent improvements at the association building, on East Superior street, have placed the structure in the best possible condition for the purpose required, and a much larger number of men can now be accommodated than formerly. These improvements cost in the aggregate about $1500. If the desired number of new members are secured within the prescribed time the money needed in member fees will assist greatly in defraying the extra expense.

During January and February the association social events will be held on Wednesday instead of Saturday evenings, and on Wednesday evening, Jan. 25, the association will give an open house reception to afford members and friends an opportunity to inspect the building and its improved condition.
Interesting entertainment will be given during the evening and a full note changes for the better in all departments. Even the office shows the effects of the general overhauling. The association social committee also con-tem-

TAXPAYERS

TAKE APPEAL

Twenty-Third Avenue East Street Improvement
In Court.

Notices of taxpayers' appeals from the assessment levied by the board of public works for the paving and improvement of Twenty-third avenue east were filed in district court yesterday afternoon.

The appellants are L. E. Lum, J. L. Washburn, C. L. Howe, H. P. Chandler, H.
Strom, and S. Starns, the Northland company, the Laurel Glen Cemetery association, J. Rees and the Sterling Land company.

The improvement authorized by the board of public works covers the avenue from Superior to Fifth streets for paving and the construction of a storm sewer.

The taxpayers making the appeal claim that the mode of procedure in ordering the work was unjust, and that the assessment is a lien on their properties.

The grounds set forth for the appeal were similar in all the cases. It is alleged that the taxpayers making the appeal claim that the mode of procedure in ordering
the work was unjust, and that the assessment is a lien on their properties.

West Duluth

Lieutenant Arthur J. Briggs, of the West Duluth police station, was fully justified in arresting Albert Kinney, according to a decision rendered by Judge Cant in district court yesterday. Kinney brought suit on the charge of wrongful imprisonment, asking damages in the sum of $2000.

The case against Mr. Briggs was dismissed immediately after he had testified that he had been in charge of the station on the night of Kinney's arrest. It was held that a police officer is right in making an arrest if there is a reasonable suspicion that the person taken in custody has committed an offense against the laws. The case against C. J. Petruska was continued.

Kinney was in jail from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 10 o'clock in the evening. He was arrested on the complaint of Mr. Petruska, who claimed the man had maliciously cut belts in the West Duluth box factory and placed empty dust in the castings of the machinery. Suspicion was directed against Kinney because he had recently been discharged by Petruska.

ANNUAL ELECTION.

It is believed the annual election of West Duluth commercial club officers, to be held tomorrow evening, will result in the re-election of M. M. Clark as president. For several weeks past Mr. Clark, in company with L. Merritt, has been at a Mexico health resort, but he is expected home tomorrow, and will probably be on hand at the meeting. He has carried out his office in a manner satisfactory to club members, always standing ready to devote his energies to the advancement of West Duluth interests.

Other officers of the club at present are L. A. Barnes, vice president; J. A. Scott, secretary; L. F. Nounin, treasurer. The matter of the club's banquet will also be taken up at the meeting. Usually the affair is held on Lincoln's birthday.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

After visiting with relatives in West Duluth for several days Henry Dolson has returned to New Richmond, Wis.

The residence of Gus Hemple, corner of Sixth and Main streets, was damaged by fire to the extent of about $75 this morning. The blaze, starting from a defective stove pipe, was brought under control by the West Duluth fire department before serious damage could be done.

At the regular meeting of the Dynamic club yesterday plans for the proposed addition to the organization's present headquarters were discussed. A committee consisting of Messrs. Lovelace, Killeen and Siger was appointed to investigate the truth of the story of Frank Roeder to the effect that in one cook shanty in a logging camp 38 rats were killed in one day. If the narrative is found to be one of fact Mr. Roeder will be awarded the first prize in the story-telling contest instituted by the club.

The West Duluth branch of the A. O. U. W. and Degree of Honor held a joint installation of officers last night at Gilley's hall. The business of the meeting was followed by a dance and general social session.

The skating rink between T. Sorenson and C. E. Lovelace, which was to have been held tonight at the Western skating rink, has been called off because of the sudden illness of Mr. Sorenson.

The dance given by the West Duluth assembly at Schell & Wade's hall last night was the usual social success.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Doyle, 20 Fifty-third avenue West, were pleasantly surprised last Saturday evening by a sleighride party from Duluth. Music, games and refreshments were features of the evening. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. David Evans, Mr. and Mrs. J. McCull, Mr. and Mrs. Noble, Mr. and Mrs. David Healey, Misses McDonald, Gertrude Noble, Gloskey, Jennie Noble and Sherman and Messrs. Ray O'Keefe, Richard McCull, Harry McDevitt and J. Gosky.

Short Trial Trip May Be Made This Month.

Frame Work of Ferry Car Has Been Hung.

Within two weeks the officials of the company in charge of the bridge, hope to be able to make a trial trip over the canal for a distance of ten or twelve feet and return.

The work of hanging the car has been making rapid progress in spite of cold weather and blizzards, and no delays are met with the officials hope to have everything in readiness for a trial trip by the end of the month. The car will be propelled by hand power on the trial trip, as the engineers would not dare turn the power on until it is seen that the car can travel across the canal without mishap.

On the first trip the car will be worked out over the canal for a distance of a few feet, and return. Before the machinery is installed the car will be taken across the canal by hand power, in order to avoid any danger of accidents.

The trucks on which the car travels are now all in place, and the skeleton of the car has been hung in position. It is now sufficiently advanced for spectators to gain some idea of how the car will look when complete. The long steel beams on which the floor rests have been bolted into position, and the machinery on which the cable which operates the car, is wound, will be placed in position next week. There are 10 of these large drums, which are nearly nine feet in diameter.

The false work has not yet been removed from the south tower. It has not been in the way, and has been left in position. The engine with which the work of lowering it is done, will be taken over to the car owing to the fact that the screws are lodged in the false work and be moved without considerable trouble and expense.

ROTHSCHILD

On Good Terms With London 'Bus Drivers.

London, Jan. 12.—Every 'bus driver in London whose vehicle passed the mansion of Leopold Rothschild in Piccadilly on Christmas received a brace of pheasants from the financier. It is estimated that 1500 omnibuses pass Rothschild's house daily, so that 3000 pheasants at least were needed to maintain the Christmas custom which Rothschild has observed for twenty-five years. Pheasants sell ordinarily in London for $3 a brace, so that the unique gift is an expensive one.

In acknowledgement of Rothschild's gift every 'bus driver in London ties a tiny flag to his whip on Rothschild's birthday. The drivers make their expressions of gratitude more practical every day through the courtesy of the financier, the way for Rothschild's carriage through the dense traffic of Piccadilly. Fleet street and the Strand as he drives to and from his offices in the financial district.

Leopold Rothschild is a member of the famous banking firm, and he takes his turn with Lord Rothschild and the latter's son, Walter, in the last of the bank every day in the year. It is a custom of the Rothschilds that the partners shall be on hand during business hours every day, and no departure is ever made from this rule.

NEW MINISTER

To Sweden And Norway May Be Named.

Washington, Jan. 12.—There is another diplomatic position in which there is almost as much interest as in the transfer of Minister Conger to Mexico. It is that of the new minister to Sweden and Norway. Mr. Thomas, of Portland, Me., has been the incumbent for nearly eight years, and his term had several years under the Harrison administration.

Mr. Thomas is an efficient minister, but he has always been very persistent in pressing his claims. He married a Swedish lady and speaks the language fluently. It is by no means certain that Mr. Thomas will be responsible of the understanding is that Mr. Thomas has also received a joint invitation to accept the position. Mr. Thomas will not take kindly to any diplomat returning here to urge his candidacy for reappointment.

Eight years ago, when the Republicans regained the government, Mr. Thomas came to Washington for several weeks, and he did not depart till the appointment was made. Since that time he has been a constant presence in the White House, and he has been a constant presence in the White House, and he has been a constant presence in the White House.

COUNTESS ELOPES

With English Girl, Whose Parents She Defies.

Florence, Jan. 12.—Countess Pinchotti has raised the drawbridge, the only connecting link between her ancestral halls and terra firma, and defies her beloved Alice's parents and the police to get the girl if they can. Alice is the daughter of an English draughtsman, named Compton, and the said ancestral halls consist of an ancient castle near this city, situated on a hill and surrounded by moat.

Alice is a beautiful blond of 18, who became her ladyship's secretary two years ago. Since that time she has devoted herself to her family and friends, and when her father demanded to see her, Christmas day, and made her, the countess carried off the girl to the stronghold mentioned. The castle is fully provisioned, has artesian wells, etc., and sumptuous banquets are served on the countess since the drawbridge is up. It is said that the countess is "crazy in love with Alice." The girl is inseparable day and night. The countess is a tall, swarthy woman, who, despite her 45 years and her riches, has never been married, while Alice is blond and petite.

Sale Fur-Lined Coats.

The Gliding store places on sale tomorrow morning, in addition to their regular stock, a number of beautiful and handsome fur-lined and trimmed black broadcloth coats at $49.50, regularly worth from $75 to $85, sent them by a maker who is closing out his winter stock.

Building Inspector's Annual Report Shows Reduction In Building.

The New Year Already Shows a Big Increase.

A decrease of $250,000 in the value of buildings erected during the year and a falling off of about $350 in the receipts of the building inspector's office is shown by the annual report of the building inspector, which will be submitted to the council Monday evening.

The total value of the buildings erected during the year in Duluth was $1,244,316, as compared with $1,493,736 for the year 1903.

The number of electric meters inspected by the office was 525, as compared with 629 in 1903. Forty-one permits were issued for the erection of illuminated signs, as compared with 71 in 1903. The number of house-moving permits was 147, as compared with 164 and the number of elevators licensed 54, as compared with 8 in 1903.

The total amount of fees collected last year was $29,325, as compared with $29,375 for the preceding year.

The office just about paid expenses in 1904. The salaries of the inspector and his deputy amounted to about $2400 and other expenses will bring the total up to nearly the amount of the fees collected.

While the showing made was disappointing, it was not unexpected. The fact that it was presidential year and other causes contributed to keep down the amount of building done, and real estate men predicted that the total would show a falling off from the previous year.

The new year has started off with a rush, however, and already permits for nearly $150,000 worth of building have been issued by the office. If the rate is maintained the present month will show a greater amount of building than any month last year.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Wallace Will Not Be Prosecuted Owing to Settlement.

Marquette.—After the county had paid $300 for the capture of James Wallace, it has been decided not to prosecute him, as a financial settlement has been made for the Fresno Lake Transportation company, whose ships carry the ore of Marquette county to the Lake Superior coast. Mr. Wallace is a member of the famous banking firm, and he takes his turn with Lord Rothschild and the latter's son, Walter, in the last of the bank every day in the year. It is a custom of the Rothschilds that the partners shall be on hand during business hours every day, and no departure is ever made from this rule.

Calumet.—Mill are resuming operations at all points manufacturing plants, after an idleness of several months. The winter has been a hard one for the lumber industry, but the spring has been a good one. The lumber industry is now in a position to begin its work, and the winter has been a hard one for the lumber industry, but the spring has been a good one.

Houghton.—The county board raised the wolf bounty to $5, making with the state bounty, $10 for each scalp. The wolf has been a pest to the farmers of the county, and the bounty has been raised to encourage the hunters.

Escanaba.—It is estimated that 6000 persons are dependent upon the industry of the lumber.

Manistique.—John W. Gould, some years ago the manager of a local hotel, committed suicide at Spokane, Wash. Now news comes that his wife has followed him to the grave, also through self destruction. She slashed her throat with a razor.

PARLIAMENT IS TO MEET FEB. 14

Aliens Bills Will Be Given First Place on Program.

London, Jan. 12.—King Edward at today's meeting of the privy council, signed a proclamation convening parliament for Feb. 14. The session will be opened by the king personally with full state ceremony. The unusual lateness of the date of the re-opening is interpreted to mean that the government does not propose to press any restriction bill but to give the king's speech, which Premier Balfour had definitely promised, the first place in its legislative program. Recent speeches of ministers confirm the belief in an early dissolution of parliament and it seems likely that unless previously defeated, possibly through the intentional abstention of the Chamberlainites, the government will first a pretext for voluntarily dissolving parliament toward the end of March, and then to the opposition the seemingly thankless task of formulating the budget.

PASSENGER AGENT KILLED IN WRECK.

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 12.—Passenger train northbound which left Mobile last night for the Mobile, Jackson & Kansas City railroad, ran into a washout, four miles south of Beaumont, Miss., today and the engine, baggage and passenger coaches were overturned. General Passenger and Freight Agent, J. S. Sturges, was making an inspection tour on the engine, was instantly killed.

C. H. & D. STOCKHOLDERS VOTE TO COMPLETE DEALS.

Cincinnati, Jan. 12.—President Eugene Zimmerman of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad, holding the proxies for H. B. Hollins & Co., of New York, today voted a majority of the stock of the company at the annual meeting of the stockholders in this city in favor of completion of the various deals looking to the practical amalgamation of his road with the Pere Marquette, the Toledo Terminal company and other properties involved.

Will Be Sault Banker.

T. F. Kilby, who has been manager of the Duluth office of the Coe Commission company for six months, has been elected cashier of the Central Savings bank of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., one of the prominent banking institutions of that city. For ten years previous to coming to Duluth he was connected with the Marquette, Mich., Savings bank. During his residence here he has made many friends and regrets leaving the city.

TWO MEN BLOWN TO ATOMS. Paterson, N. J., Jan. 12.—Two men were blown to atoms, a small building was completely demolished and windows within a radius of more than a mile were shattered today by an explosion in the Laid & Ral Powder works at Wayne, about ten miles West of Paterson.

BULLETIN ON SMALL GRAINS

Issued By Superintendent of Northeast Experiment Station.

A. J. McGuire, superintendent of the Northwest experiment station at Grand Rapids, has issued the following bulletin:

The small grains, wheat, oats, barley and rye have been grown successfully at the Northeast experiment station for the past six years. The yield of the different grains and quality, varied according to the season, the condition of the soil on which they were sown and the variety of seed used.

Yield: Wheat given an average yield of 17 bushels per acre. Its highest yield was 28 bushels and its lowest 8 bushels. Oats have given an average yield of 35 bushels per acre. Its highest yield was 45 bushels, its lowest 20. These figures are to the highest and lowest yields are not the average for the whole year for the year, but that of individual fields and varieties. Barley and winter rye have given an average yield of about 24 bushels per acre.

Quality: The best variety of wheat grown No. 1 hard. So far wheat has been practically free from ailments that commonly affect its quality in wheat growing districts. Even this year the yield of this year yielded 73 bushels per acre, the straw from the same grain was 10 bushels per acre. Although the ground upon which this oats grew was rich in fertility, there was no indication of quality pronounced throughout the whole plant. Rust was quite bad in the oat crop this year, but came on rather late in the season and did not seem to be very injurious. Barley and winter rye have also been of standard quality.

Varieties: The stem grown to be the best variety of wheat for this section out of twenty-one varieties tested. Its yield has been two bushels per acre more than the other varieties. It has been less productive than blue stem in this section. Some very good work in testing varieties of oats was done by Mr. Chapman, former superintendent of the Northeast experiment station, and various parts of the United States. All together thirty-four varieties were used over a period of four years. From this list seven varieties were found of superior quality, namely, Improved Ligeia, Lincoln, Early Godland, Early Swedish, White Russian, Jurane and White Wonder. Of these Improved Ligeia was best, and for the past three years this variety has been used for field oats on the experiment farm, giving very satisfactory results. This oats may be secured for seed from the Northeast Experiment Farm, but only in 2½ bushel lots, the object being to distribute the seed as widely as possible.

PORTO RICAN GIRLS WANT TO GO HOME.

St. Louis, Jan. 12.—Fifteen Porto Rican girls, who lost their positions with a twin factory here and are being cared for in a police station, have written Governor Winthrop, of Porto Rico, telling him of their condition and asking for means to be sent home. The girls are suffering from the cold weather. This is the first winter that any of them has been outside of the torrid zone and they are poorly clad.

E. J. Petruschke Claims Clues Pointed Toward Kinney's Guilt.

Says He Had Probable Cause to Ask an Arrest.

After all the evidence of the prosecution was presented, this morning, in the action brought by Albert Kinney to recover from C. J. Petruschke, the alleged false imprisonment and malicious prosecution, Alexander Marshall, attorney for Mr. Petruschke addressed the jury relative to what the defense will attempt to prove.

After Marshall unfolded a tale replete with the interesting gruesome of one of the Sherlock Holmes stories, in the effort to show why the arrest of Kinney was warranted after the arrest of Kinney, who was afterwards declared innocent of the crime.

According to Mr. Marshall's story, long last summer, Kinney was in the employ of Petruschke, at the latter's office. It is claimed that Kinney's cred-

Finally garnished his wages in the hands of the of Petruschke. Mr. Marshall related that one of the settlement was to have been effected in the office of a West Duluth attorney when the check made out by Petruschke to Kinney was to be indorsed by Kinney. Instead of indorsing the check, when it was in his hands, and giving it to the creditor's attorney, Kinney is said to have put it in his pocket and walked out, telling the occupants of the office to go where win-factory of his relations with the box company is said to date from that event, although there was still a balance due him which the creditor is said to have taken steps to garnish.

It was related by Mr. Marshall that a few days afterward, while Mr. Petruschke was at work on some lumber piles, Kinney approached and boasted him for a letter which he, Kinney, had received, asking him where certain tools had been placed which he had formerly used.

Kinney is said to have started Petruschke with making him out thief, and demanded his pay, or, as Mr. Marshall said, he would get on by doing something to make it not Petruschke more than he, Kinney, and coming.

It was further claimed that on the day following July 4, 1904, the box factory could not be operated because the belts, removed or loosened parts of the engine and machinery and filled with the oil boxes over the journals with the oil. Kinney is said to have been a visitor at the factory the Sunday preceding July 4, where he spent some time talking with the watchman, whom he finally persuaded to take a walk and go to a nearby saloon for beer. While he, Kinney, watched the plant, the watchman, Mr. Marshall, declined to give an engine wrench in Kinney's pocket at the time. Other witnesses testified that they saw Kinney walking away from the direction of the mill early the morning of July 4.

The meager circumstantial evidence coupled with Kinney's alleged threats to go even, Mr. Marshall held, was sufficient probable cause to induce Petruschke to swear out a warrant for his former employee.

Kinney is represented by John Jensen, Jr., of the law firm of Jensen, Jensen & Jensen, 100 West Duane street.

Lieut. Arthur Briggs of the West Duane police department, who made the arrest, said that in the case, although the action as to him was dismissed yesterday afternoon.

No person who has ever served on a petit jury in any one of the state or federal courts will attempt to deny that there are occasions arising at times which have a humorous aspect.

During the present term of district court, it is related that a jury, after remaining out on a case for some time, was told by the foreman that he was about to take a ballot to find out the sentiment of the jurors before fixing up the verdict. The foreman asked all those in favor of a verdict

Just as the vote was about to be taken, a jurymen in one corner of the room protested on the ground he had pened to be shy that member and could not vote. Obligingly the foreman quickly responded that those who were in favor of a verdict he had proposed, to raise their left hands. From another part of the room there followed another protest from a juror whose left arm had been amputated. After this deal the foreman was perplexed for a moment, then, making a hasty inspection of the twelve pairs of legs within his range of view, he triumphantly announced that all who were in favor of the verdict he had proposed would arise to their feet. The vote was taken.

UPRIGHT VISION ACQUIRED

Claim That Infants See Things Upside Down

Lake physicians at Lakeview, Iowa, have been in the case of a 1-year-old Paul Taylor, who sees things upside down. He does not belong to the strange class of people who see things as the Chicago Tribune. Simply looking out upon the world of every day, he gets the impression that the sky is where the ground ought to be, and he sees other things hanging down into the sky and things hanging up into the ground above. When he writes his letters to his mother, he writes them from right to left, while the letters themselves are written from left to right.

AGE OF BACHELORS.

"Do I have any suitors? Do they earlier than married men?" asked a student of the University of Illinois, in the Times-Democrat. "It would seem so. The statistics show that 25 per cent of the men to argue strongly in favor of the marital union. The report shows that the percentage of bachelors in the population of 20 to 45 years, is said to be 27 per cent. In the case of the 45 to 65 age group it is 18 per cent. For 65 and over it is 10 per cent. There are 87 married men who attain the age of 65 and over for every 100 men in persons of advanced age. At 60 years of age the ratio is 75 to 100."

WAS BLESSING IN DISGUISE

Great Structures to Grow From Ashes at Sioux City.

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 13.—Sioux City's $3,000,000 fire was a terrific blow to the city, but the sufferers are already recovering and it is confidently predicted greater and better buildings will arise from the ashes of the destroyed structures.

The great recuperative powers of the city have begun to assert themselves and the spirit now is to make of the disaster a blessing in disguise.

Sioux City is accustomed to hard luck. It has had trouble of its own since 1857, when it was compelled, as a frontier village, to build barricades and for months hold itself in readiness to drive back a threatened invasion of Sioux Indians.

The great panic of 1873 put an end for a long time to the first boom the town had known. This boom started in 1872, following the coming of the first railroads. Then the place had a mild collapse, succeeded by another period of rapid growth, which staked all to establish a railroad. This boom broke, and the men who had staked all to establish a railroad system lost about everything.

After this collapse came the great historic boom that ended in the collapse of 1893. There was $55,000,000 involved in the series of failures that strung along from April, 1893, to 1897. One day saw $12,000,000 worth of widely scattered properties turned over to the courts—stock yards, packing houses, railroads and terminals.

Even then the town was not discouraged. During several years of starvation it crawled out of the wreckage, shook itself together, reorganized its industries and got busy growing again. It grew faster than ever before, and by 1900 was out of the way of the hounds.

Then, in 1901, after the town had given almost every cent it had to get the International Packing company to take and reopen a big packing house that had stood idle for years, that company "went broke." It was discouraging, but the city went after another packing company. The Cudahys already had an immense plant in operation and the Armour's were induced to come. They operated two years and then their place, valued at $1,000,000, burned.

Again Sioux City had to pick itself up and fight for leeway. Again it won! The Armour's took everything they could get the town to give, and built a plant three times as large as the old one. It had been open six weeks when the $3,000,000 fire took place.

The fire was not so bad as some other things Sioux City has known. Insurance companies will pay a large share of the loss. Business men are determined to reopen. The buildings will be rebuilt, and they will be larger and better than ever before.

Two problems involving difficulty for the town confront it now. One is a determined movement in favor of the sale of the city waterworks to private parties, supposed to be affiliated with the beef trust, which owns the largest establishments here. The other is an issue between some of the railroads, which want Third street vacated to them, and the property owners, who object.

city is going to have the most active building year that it has ever known, and when 1905 is ended there will be more good buildings than ever before.

SHE FELL DEAD

Across Body of Mother Who Just Expired.

New Orleans, Jan. 13.—Mrs. Charles Carraus, a bride of a few months, dropped dead on the bed of her mother, who had died but a few moments before.

Mrs. Carraus was notified of her mother's death by a relative, and entering the death chamber she walked to the side of the bed and looked upon the features of the corpse. Those in the room saw her reel, and before they could catch her she fell dead across the body of her mother, whom she had loved with a passionate devotion.

Both daughter and mother were buried in one grave.

NO ROUTE CHOOSE

Water Department Merely Indicates Preference
Of Two Plans.

No Decision Made For Pipes On St. Croix Avenue.

Of the two plans submitted by Manager Case for water and gas service on the other down St. Croix avenue, the water and light commissioners have expressed a preference for the St. Croix avenue plan. This does not, however, mean that the commissioners have decided on the replacement and extension of the water and gas pipes on St. Croix avenue, nor that they have taken any action whatever toward fixing upon that route in event of the Park Point improvement. The board has simply passed an opinion, it is claimed, that of the two plans submitted the St. Croix route seems the best.

Manager Case's estimates of the cost of replacement of the water pipes of Lake avenue is $734.00, as against $666.67 for the replacement and extension of the pipes on St. Croix avenue. These estimates are based on a cost of $20 per foot for the pipes and $1 per foot for replacing pavement. Allowance is also made for the value of the pipe to be replaced, for it can be used elsewhere by the department.

The commissioners, in expressing preference for the St. Croix route did so, not only because of the lesser cost, but because it would, by extension, give gas and water service to a district which does not now enjoy those improvements. By this route, also, the tearing up of the Lake avenue stone pavement would be avoided, which is regarded as an important item, for the reason that it does not pay to remove it, but to turn up and replace every few years.

The board, it is stated, has not yet decided on any route for water pipes to Minnesota Point, nor will any preliminary steps to that end be taken right away.

West Duluth

Instead of lying flat on his back in bed, his leg in a plaster cast, as ordered by his attending physician, with the dismal prospect of remaining in the same position for four weeks to come, as promised by the doctor, Edward Conrad, 302 Huntington street, is now engaged at his regular work in the Red Cliff mill, and all because he depended upon his own judgment in preference to that of the medical man, according to the story he himself tells. One day last week Conrad stepped into a hole in a West Duluth sidewalk and fell, severely injuring his leg. He barely managed to get home after the accident. He suffered great pain from the hurt, but objected to sending for the doctor. Finally Mrs. Conrad prevailed upon him to summon a physician, however. The physician, after an examination of the limb, pronounced it broken. Conrad says he told the doctor that no fracture existed, but asserts that the latter insisted upon putting the leg in a plaster cast, and did so, first pretending to set the bone. After the departure of the professional man Conrad's doubts of an existing fracture grew so strong, he claims, that he took his pocket knife and cut off the cast, which had not yet hardened. Calling for help, he says, he was able to hobble about the house. This week he could walk with a slight limp, and has so far recovered that he has returned to his regular work at the Red Cliff mill.

"The doctor said I would have to remain in bed five weeks," Conrad is reported to have said, in speaking of the matter. "His bill for first service was $20. I haven't paid it yet."

ANNUAL REUNION.

Business Meeting of Plymouth Church Congregation.

The annual reunion and business meeting of the Plymouth Congregational church was held at the church building last evening. A large number of members of the congregation and their friends were present. Supper was served by the ladies' society. Following this came the reading of reports covering the past year's work by the officers and societies. The following officers were elected: J. H. Boone, trustee; N. C. Batley, deacon; R. M. Swenson, clerk; N. C. Batley, treasurer.

WEST END BARGAIN GUIDE

The following dealers are leaders in their respective lines, selling only the best merchandise at prices often lower than the up-town stores.

Build up the West End by patronizing them.

Mr. George F. Savage, tax collector and prominent 32d degree Mason, says Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey keeps his machinery in motion.

MR. GEORGE F. SAVAGE,
64 Years Old.

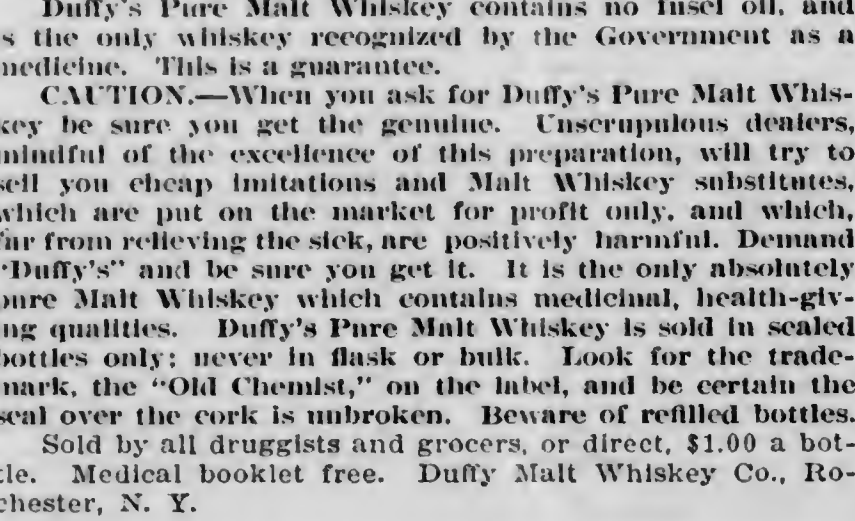

"I am a native of Lisbon, N. H., and in my fifth year. As old age creeps on something is needed to keep the wheels of the body machinery in motion, and I have found nothing as good as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for that purpose. Nothing I ever drank so much for comfort, and, while I do not believe in the use of liquor as a drink, I can cheerfully recommend this as the best tonic in the world for old age."

GEORGE F. SAVAGE.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey contains no fusel oil, and is the only whiskey recognized by the Government as a medicine. This is a guarantee.

Be careful, however, for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is so sure you get the genuine. Unscrupulous dealers, mindful of the excellence of this preparation, will try to sell you cheap imitations and Malt Whiskey substitutes, and you will be sure to get the real thing. It is the only one far from relieving the sick, are positively harmful. Demand "Duffy's" and be sure you get it. It is the only absolutely pure Malt Whiskey which contains medicinal, health-giving elements. It is the only one that is sold in the United States in a flask only; never in flask or bulk. Look for the trademark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and be certain the cork over the cork is unbroken. Beware of refilled bottles.

Sold by all druggists and grocers, or direct for $1.00 a bottle. Medical bottle free. Duffy Malt & Wine Co., Rochester, N. Y.

Lean and stooped, Hermann appeared in the Harrison street police court to answer the charge of having kept his 12-year-old Katie away from the public schools. In the break, Germann attempted to explain his wealth of children, but Judge Brundish seemed not to understand.

stood as if dazed. Then he thrust his hands into his pockets and drew them forth empty.

"Neunzehn kinder und me to jail got," he said to the kinder. Judge Justice will the kinder do?"

Superintendent Holme, who had prosecuted the case, stepped forward to the Prindleville's side and whispered in his ear.

"You mean to say," asked the court, incredulously, "that you are the father of nineteen children?"

The Prindle's son, Hermann, in answer, suddenly stumbled.

"You mean it is the reason why you don't send Katie to school?"

"Yes, that was it, Judge," assented the German. "My wife took by a lumber yard for $3 a week yet, and at home there was Fritz, who was 1 year old last Christmas, and then there was little Hans, who was twins, who came by us two years away; and Hans, who was 3 years old, and then there was little Fritz, who was 4, and then there was little Helma, there was more twins, who came by us four years back yet, and then there was little Fritz, who was 2 years old," interrupted the Justice.

"Yes, me and Peter and Carl—they are little."

THE PRODIGAL SON
 Gets Some Praise In Striking Brassy, Sings Verse

London, Jan. 13.—There have been talking much in England of the prodigal son, from various points of view. In the By-stander B. Macdonald Hastings carries the story a stage further with a striking set of verses. The prodigal is back again, toasted by his father, blessed by his sisters, and filling himself with the fatted calf but, while he is doing so, the "dear" old camp fire and the taste of the husks of swine. There are but four stanzas, and this is the last:

And it came to pass that the blinking
 And it was the last.

of Ague and Malaria, can be relieved and cured with Electric Bitters. This is a pure, tonic medicine; of especial benefit in malaria, for it purges a true curative influence on the disease, drives it out of the system. It is much to be preferred to Quinine, having none of this drug's bad after-effects. E. S. Munday, of Hattiesburg, Miss., writes: "I was very low with malarial fever and jaundice, till he took Electric Bitters, which saved his life." At all druggists;

ment of the office, and the fact of such abandonment shall be thereupon reported by the Board to the Mayor. In case of a vacancy in the Board at any time from any cause, the Mayor shall fill such unexpired term by appointing a suitable person to fill such vacancy.

The Board of Public Works shall hold meetings at least once in each week at such place as shall be provided for that purpose, and at such time in each week as the Board may fix, which weekly meetings shall be the regular meetings of the Board. The Board may also hold special meetings at which any business may be transacted at such times and upon such notice to its members as may be fixed by the rules and regulations of the Board. The members of the Board shall annually, at their second meeting in March, elect one of their members to the Board, and one Vice President of the Board.

The Board of Public Works may adopt such general rules and regulations for its government and the execution of its duties as it may deem proper, in this charter and the laws of the land, and as it deems best. It shall cause such rules and regulations to be entered in a book kept for that purpose, and to be signed by the President and Clerk of the Board, and when so entered and signed, such book or extracts therefrom certified by the clerk of said Board shall be evidence of the same in all courts of law.

The Board shall have the same powers to enforce any such rules and regulations, and the City Attorney shall shall annually, at their second meeting of the Board, report to the President, President, and one Vice President of the Board of Public Works may adopt such general rules and regulations for the government and the exercise of its powers not inconsistent with this charter and the laws of the land. Such rules and regulations to be entered into the minutes of the Board, and signed by the president and clerk of said Board, and when so entered and filed in the office of the clerk of said Board, shall be binding on all the courts. Said Board is hereby empowered to enforce any such rules and regulations, and to employ and assist such Board in the enforcement of the same.

The Board shall keep a record of all its proceedings and doings in books to be kept in the office of the clerk, which shall be preserved as books of record of the city, and such books or extracts therefrom shall be evidence in all courts of law.

Three members of the Board shall constitute a quorum and may transact any business of the Board, but a majority of the Board shall be necessary from time to time.

Amend Section 23 so to read as follows:

SECTION 23. The Board of Public Works shall be composed of five Public Authorities possessed by the Board of Public Works and by the City Engineer, who shall be appointed by the Board of the duties and obligations devolving on said Board and said City Engineer, and the Board of Public Works shall employ a Director of Public Works and a Clerk, and such other employees as may be necessary.

to enable them to perform their duties under the provisions of this charter, and shall specify the duties of such persons so employed and fix their compensation.

The Director of Public Works shall hold his office at the will of the Board, and shall not be subject to any of the usual service regulations of this charter.

to enable them to perform their duties under the provisions of this charter, and shall have authority to employ such persons so employed and fix their compensation.

The Director of Public Works shall hold his office at the will of the Board, and shall not be subject to any of the service regulations of this charter.

The Director of Public Works shall be the executive officer of the Board, and shall have the management of the Board, of all of the active duties devolving upon the Board. The Board may, however, by resolution, authorize to delegate to the Director of Public Works any and every judicial or quasi-judicial duty which may be imposed by this charter or the law of the land, and when any such act by said Director is appealed, the Board may be deemed to be the act of the

The Director of Public Works shall be the executive officer of the Board, having charge, under the direction of the Board, of the execution of all matters devolving upon the Board. The Board of Public Works is hereby authorized to confer with the Director of Public Works any and every judicial or quasi-judicial matter, and to refer to him by this charter or the law of the land any matter which may be referred to the Director by the Board. The Director is approved by said Board. It shall be deemed to be the act of the Board or the Board of Public Works.

The office of city engineer is hereby created, and the duties and powers of this charter, as it exists at the time this amendment goes into effect, any and all duties and powers now imposed upon the city engineer, such as the construction, maintenance and repair of the city's public works, shall devolve upon the Director of Public Works, and such duties shall be performed by him and under the supervision and control of the Board.

Board for any and every purpose, and the same shall be hereby abolished and wherever, by the terms of this charter, as it exists at the time of the adoption of this act, any powers, duties or obligations are imposed upon the Board, such powers, duties and obligations shall be transferred to the Board of Public Works, and such powers shall be exercised and such duties and obligations shall be performed by the Board of Public Works, and the supervision and control of the Board of Public Works shall be subject to the supervision and control of the Board of Public Works.

ADD A SECTION 123A:

SECTION 123A. All provisions of the charter in conflict with the foregoing Sections 122 and 123 as amended shall be null and void.

ADD A SECTION 123B:

SECTION 123B. These amendments to Sections 122 and 123 shall take effect and be in force on and after the second Tuesday of the month of December, 1998.

END.

Amend Section 302 of said city charter.

SADLY OUT OF DATE

To Laugh Now at Kansas, Which Is Highly Prosperous.

The Farmers Have Lifted Nearly All the Mortgages.

Topeka, Kans., Jan. 12.—These are great times for Kansas and the fellow who makes fun of the state, which has grown into one of the greatest agricultural communities in the nation, is sadly out of date.

The attitude of the farmers has ceased to be one of justification over the success they have attained. It is seldom that one boasts of what debts he has paid off or of what additions he has made to his bank deposits, because that's the common fortune, but the swelling tide of cash and the improvements made in the country tell the tale.

The other day there was a public auction ten miles from Abilene. No bid-der was made to the buyers to pay cash. "I don't want the cash," said the seller. "Let them give their notes." Instead, one after another went to the auctioneer's stand and laid down currency or checks until out of $1300 that the goods brought more than $300 was paid them. It was a fair sample of the condition that exists in the country districts.

"It is not fair to the farmers to keep telling that we are so very rich," said a well-to-do owner of a Dickinson county farm, the other day. "But we are well out of debt, or practically so, and don't have to worry when we see the sheriff coming down the road. That is enough to make us contented."

"Just for curiosity, I kept account of the New York exchange purchased by farmers or their agents in a single week in mid-autumn four years ago," said a Central Kansas banker the other day. "It was something above $60,000, and this in a town of 3000 and one of three banks. New York exchange thus brought never comes back, you know. This year, in the corresponding period, we did not issue $5000 of such exchange for that class of custom. We did, however, increase our deposits and have had to scurry around from pillar to post to find places for it where there would be a good investment."

The improvement on the farms has been a notable feature. The transfer of population from the older portions of Kansas and from such states as Iowa, Illinois and Ohio has brought an era of added farm buildings. The building trades have been unusually busy. It is the experience of new settlers that the original settler is not the generous builder. He is apt to think that the old things are good enough and lets them go until he gets rich—or, more likely, until he sells out and moves away. When he does, he himself is apt to build far more modestly than the condition of his bank account warrants.

The new purchaser sees something to improve and to add to the adornments of the farm, in order to make it like those in the section farther to the East from which he came. Hence, he is a builder. The land movement has brought hundreds of this class of citizens into this section and they have given an impetus to the tendency toward improving the farms.

"I drove twenty miles in the country the other day," said a business man, "and counted twelve barns in process of building or completed. They have all been erected the last year and are some of the fruits of the farmers' prosperity. It used to be that there would be a mortgage on every farm. I remember once going with a banker on a country drive and he told me as he went along just who owned the mortgages on the farms we passed, or what Eastern mortgage company had foreclosed and now had title. It seemed that he did not miss one. Now on that same road every farm is owned by the man who lives on it and the people are their own masters. That is in substance the change that has taken place all over the prairie country. It has probably been as noticeable in the towns as in the country, though expressed in a different manner."

The towns of the agricultural section have emphasized the change that is making them more and more like those back East. Farmers who have done well in their pursuits are moving to town and letting the sons and daughters manage the farms.

Western Kansas has had a growth of its own. The era of boom time mortgage has passed away. These thousands of investors who owned claims on the western lands have sold their mortgages to speculators, who have, through buying up of tax titles and the securing of quit claim deeds to the property, managed to secure a title. New they are selling the lands at a good profit. The average claim can be thus secured at something around $200 and they are selling at $400 to $500. This is, of course, in the extreme southwestern portion of the state, far from railway and town. In the older settled parts the prices are running to $10 an acre and the lands are rapidly passing into the hands of actual occupants. The big ranches are being purchased by the cattlemen for pasture and are lessening in average every season. The movement of immigration during the year has not been a healthy one and has brought in many farmers from Eastern Kansas and Iowa, who have been more than ordinarily prosperous in their old homes and come with money enough to engage in stock raising along with their farming operations.

The confidence of the prairie region in itself is manifest, more than ever. It is not the wild enthusiasm that was so prominent in early days, but it is far more sensible. In the absence of a crop failure that would effect the state generally there can be expected little excitement in the financial movement. The state is closing a year of marked stability as well as one of somewhat self-conscious complacency. It is a condition that may be expected as local improvements go on and the addition of small manufacturers and enterprises come to help out the business life. The condition is one that should encourage investment and will in the end prove notable as a feature of the approach of the plains region to the situation in which are found the older communities of the East and the early settled parts of the Mississippi valley.

SAYS VILLAGE SELLS FLOUR

Novel Suit Is Brought Against Town Officers of Broomton.

St. Paul, Jan. 12.—Citing an advertisement in a village paper as evidence of his contention that the village of Broomton, Stearns county, is engaged in the sale of flour as his competitor, L. L. Nerlen, a Minneapolis miller, seeks in the supreme court to restrain the village officers from continuing in the flour business. A copy of the advertisement in the village paper advertising flour, "the cheapest in Minnesota," was included in the court records when arguments were heard on an appeal from the district court by the plaintiffs.

The village officers of Broomton are made defendants, and the case is said to be the result of a flour war which existed in a number of Soo line towns a year ago. L. L. Nerlen owns mills in several towns in Meeker, Stearns and Pope counties. He brings the action as a taxpayer to restrain the village officers from using the village funds to engage in a private enterprise, and alleges that the village hall was used as the flour store and the village marshal was employed to sell and deliver flour and feed from the store. Sales for one year of the alleged municipal store are alleged to have been 750,000 pounds of flour and a large quantity of feed.

The lower court found that the business was conducted by John Bohmer, president of the village council, as his private business and failed to connect him officially or the funds of the village with the enterprise.

LIVE STOCK BREEDERS
Of Minnesota Hold Annual Meeting and Elect Officers.

St. Paul, Jan. 12.—Thomas H. Canfield, of Lake Park, was elected president of the Minnesota Live Stock Breeders' association, at the annual meeting yesterday afternoon in the old hall of representatives. Mr. Canfield is a very young man, not yet 30; yet he is one of the foremost live stock breeders of the state.

A. H. Bullis, of Winnebago City, was re-elected first vice president, Joseph Tyson, of Redwood Falls, second vice president, Professor Andrew Boss, of St. Anthony Park, was re-elected treasurer, and J. C. Mills was re-elected secretary. Every member of the executive committee was re-elected with the exception of H. C. Hodgson. F. H. Lyons, of Worthington, succeeds him.

A resolution was introduced recommending to the governor the appointment of Charles Kenning, of Oscoda, as a member of the state live stock sanitary board.

It was resolved that the appraisal of $35 a carcass for cattle killed by order of the live stock sanitary board because of tuberculosis is inadequate and for pure bred live stock it was recommended that $35 be increased to not more than $150. A bill will be presented to the legislature.

HALLAM IS GAINING VOICES IN THE RECOUNT.
St. Paul, Jan. 12.—The attempt to oust Oscar Hallam from one of the judgeships of Ramsey county will, apparently, prove unsuccessful. The recount which has been in progress all the week was decidedly in his favor yesterday, he gaining thirteen votes and his competitor, Insurance Commissioner T. D. O'Brien, losing fifty-six.

Startling developments have come in connection with the recount in the seventh ward, where much of the intelligence of the Capital City is supposed to be centered. Wednesday, in the second precinct, it was found that twenty-nine ballots had been tampered with in an amateurish fashion and yesterday in the fourth precinct, the conditions were equally as bad. The figures on the judgeship were badly off and in no case did the corected returns tally with those returned by the judges. As a result of the day O'Brien lost fifty-six, Hallam gained thirteen, Bunn gained thirty and Markham twelve.

On present returns Hallam has a lead of forty votes. He started in with a majority of fifteen.

EARL AND COUNTESS AT HOME.
London, Jan. 12.—The earl and countess of Suffolk and Berkshire, (the latter Miss Daisy Leiter, of Washington and Chicago), arrived at Malmesbury yesterday on their way to Charlton Park. The town was profusely decorated in their honor and crowds cheered the couple as they drove from the railway station to the Market Cross, where the mayor and other municipal officials welcomed them.

The earl and his bride presented them with a silver salver and an illuminated address in behalf of the townspeople. The earl responded to the mayor's speech. He said Lady Suffolk would always take a lively interest in the old town and its traditions.

ROBBED BY HIS LANDLORD.
Philadelphia, Jan. 12.—Toledo Demento was held in jail yesterday for a further hearing, charged with robbing John Maturo, of 235, Maturo was held up in his home by four men, who demanded $100 from him under penalty of death. Maturo had only $25 which he gave the robbers. He recognized Demento, who is his landlord, and caused his arrest. The prisoner broke down at the hearing and told the magistrate that he was in the hands of a gang of New York bandits and had aided in the hold up of Maturo at their instigation. Maturo says 150 men who robbed him are members of the "Black Hand," or Mafia society. The police are investigating.

BOOM FOR PRESIDENT
Given Hemenway By the Telephone Girls.

Boonville, Ind., Jan. 12.—Congressman James A. Hemenway, United States senator-elect, has treated the girls and he will get their votes in 1912 if they have to go to Kansas to vote.

A New Year's gift, a 5-pound box of fancy bonbons, to the operators of the Cumberland Telephone company, was given by James A. Hemenway, and now the pretty "number, please" girls say that he will run for president in 1912, and they vow him their support if they have to go to Kansas to cast their votes, or any other place where women can vote for the president.

SKATERS ARE CONSOLIDATED

All Amateur Organizations Merged In One Body.

New York, Jan. 12.—Amateur skating organizations of the country have been brought into one body at the annual meeting here of the National Amateur Skating association of the United States. This means a membership of nearly 10,000 skaters and covers forward the work begun by the late "Father Bill" Smith several years ago. This has been brought about by the consolidation of all the existing associations into one body.

In further carrying forward the government of figure and speed skating and placing it upon the high plane of the amateur athletes, the constitution was revised so that it incorporated all skaters must be registered, in conformity with the method now pursued by the Amateur Athletic union. Eight changes were also made in the addition of new rules to govern competitions of figure and speed skating. Officers were elected as follows: President, Harry Burmester, of the New York Athletic club; vice president, Jerome Ward, St. Louis Skating club; secretary-treasurer, Francis M. Chicago, Westchester Skating club.

Sections for the national championship and other meetings were awarded. The national indoor championship was scheduled for the Dapine rink, Pittsburg, Pa., national outdoor championship at Verona Lake, N. Y., the Illinois "rolling" championship at Chicago.

Practically every skating organization in the country had a delegate present or was represented by a proxy.

PROPHECY FULFILLED.

Made By Lady After Beholding Wondrous Vision.

Marion, Ind., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Viola Powell announced about a month ago that she had a vision in the shape of stars, which, according to the Western sky, read: "The nation of pleasure in Marion will be closed."

Mrs. Powell explained at the time that she meant by "nation of pleasure" all dance halls, saloons, winehouses, roadhouses and places where people congregated to enjoy themselves.

The prophecy has virtually been fulfilled. The police board has ordered all

FIRST OF SEASON

Small Shipment of Strawberries Received on Local Market.

Rise in Cranberries Has Made Money For Dealers.

If any of Duluth's plutocrats care to indulge in strawberries in January, they can gratify their tastes at 50 cents a quart.

The first shipment of strawberries to be received in Duluth this year came last week from Chicago. The berries are grown in Southern Florida and shipped north to Chicago and New York markets. Two or three of the local commission houses bought small consignments from the Chicago market for local trade.

"The fact that there is any market at all for such luxuries shows how metropolitan Duluth is becoming," said one of the commission men, in speaking of the shipment. "A few years ago, if you had proposed bringing in strawberries in January, to be sold at 50 cents a quart, you would have been thought demented."

"But Duluth has more 'silk-stockings' than you would imagine, and some of them live pretty high."

"We will have strawberries on the market about the first of February. Of course, this is an extra early shipment, and the Florida crop won't really be on the market for a month or six weeks yet."

Some of the local commission men who were far-sighted enough to contract for their supply of cranberries last September made a neat little pot of money out of the Christmas trade. The rise in the price of cranberries has been unprecedented. Last September they were selling for about 80 per barrel. From that time they kept steadily rising, owing to the heavy demand for the holiday trade, and the failure of the New Jersey crop. At Christmas they were selling for about $1 per barrel, and the market for the time being is $1.50. The dealers who contracted for their supply at 80 per barrel cleared from $1.50 to $2.50 per barrel on their son's supply. When they are handled in a barrel lot, a profit of $2 a barrel will cut quite a figure in the holiday trade.

Southern green vegetables, such as cucumbers, cauliflower and tomatoes, are very scarce and high priced. Since the Christmas trade the receipts have been very light, and the stocks of the local dealers are about exhausted. What little demand there has been has forced the price up. Several consignments are expected before the end of the week, however.

An effort on the part of the egg dealers to clean up their surplus supply of storage eggs, has forced the price down from two to three cents during the week of January. "When it gets along in the middle part of January, the surplus supply of eggs should be pretty well cleaned up," said one of the dealers. "Fresh eggs begin to come in pretty lively by the first of February, and the bottom falls out of the surplus supply of storage eggs. The first of the year, the better. There was a little surplus of storage eggs on the market after the first of the year and it has been unloaded pretty rapidly. The price of storage eggs has dropped from 20 to 15 cents as a result."

"Fresh eggs receipts are also increasing steadily, and the price has fallen to 20 cents a dozen on the spot."

Butter is firmer this week, and the price of creamery butters has risen from 20 to 21 cents a pound. The dairies are selling for from 20 cents upward, and the remainder at 20 cents.

Little or no change has taken place in the price of fruit and vegetables during the week. The market has been very quiet owing to the slack mid-winter season.

Poultry is firmer this week, and the price of spring chickens has risen slightly. The demand has been correspondingly small.

Meat prices remain unchanged from last week. The packing-house managers report a very fair week's business. The cold weather has had a good effect on business, and the trade from the logging camps has been very satisfactory.

HEIR TO $25,000 FOUND.
 Son of Rich Farmer Working as Gravel Hauler.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 12.—With about $25,000 waiting for him, George L. Wilson, 25 years old, of Madison, Kan., has been driving a gravel wagon in Plainfield, Ill., while a private detective, spurred on by the promise of $500 reward, has been searching for him.

Wilson's story is much like a novel. He was a farm boy and, although his father was worth more than $15,000, he had never had the chance to travel as he wished and hoped to do some day. At length, in March last, he ran away, without telling anyone know his destination.

Every effort was made to find the boy, but finally it was decided that wherever he was he probably was taking care of himself, and the search was given up. In July, Wilson's father died, and T. T. Rosbrook, thirty-third street and Fairmount avenue, this city, a brother-in-law, was made administrator of the estate, his wife being one of the heirs.

The search for young Wilson was resumed last month by Mr. Rosbrook, who employed several detectives, among them Charles T. Ludwig, of this city, and offered a reward of $500 to the one that should succeed in finding the missing boy. Ludwig began work on the case Dec. 21, and traced Wilson from Madison, Kan., through Kansas City and eastward into Illinois.

Although the young man had not written a letter to anyone after leaving his home, the detective finally found him at Plainfield, where he was working for a contractor. Wilson was very much surprised when told of the fortune that was waiting for him in Kansas, and at once arranged to return to his home. He reached Kansas City early this morning with Detective Ludwig, and joined his relative, Mr. Rosbrook, who had the promised reward of $500.

BRITONS LIKE H. CLAY EVANS

Do Not Want to See Him Return to United States.

London, Jan. 12.—Commenting on the reported retirement of Consul General Evans, the Standard today says: "The reported return to America of the Hon. H. Clay Evans, American consul general in London, has been received with general regret. General Evans, as he is affectionately termed by his many friends, has been a most successful and accomplished diplomat, and his departure from London is a serious loss to the British empire. The possibility of his return to America is a subject of much interest to the British public, and it is to be hoped that his resignation will be accepted by President Roosevelt with approval."

ARCHBISHOP IS OPPOSED

To Fairs, Picnics, Excursions and Euchre Parties of Catholics.

Cincinnati, Jan. 12.—In a pastoral letter to the priests of this archdiocese today, Archbishop Ireland expressed his opposition to the holding of fairs, picnics, excursions and euchre parties often given occasion to the Catholics, which are not above reproach.

"We feel disposed to oppose, to forbid, but feeling that we might thereby embarrass some pastors, we deem it sufficient for the present to make known our opposition to such proceedings."

THINK CANCER CAN BE CURED

Buffalo Scientists Do Not Agree With Harvard Commission.

Buffalo, Jan. 12.—Scientists who since 1899 have been studying cancer at the Gratiot pathological laboratory of the university of Buffalo, under the patronage of the state of New York, are stated to be preparing a report for the first month of the new year immigration to this country is likely to exceed all records.

From the list to the 10th of January the arrivals number over 15,000. For the whole month of January, 1904, the arrivals were over 15,000.

Departations for the same period are also record-breaking. For the first ten days of the new year 45 persons have been deported from Ellis island, against 70 for the same time in 1904. Of the arrivals during this ten-day period, 800 were Hebrews. Of the deportations, 60 per cent were Hebrews.

The arrival of the Russian and Hungarian Hebrews in such large numbers is

TREASURE OF BUCCANEERS

The Incentive of Two Expeditions to Cocos Island.

San Francisco, Jan. 13.—When the City of Panama, arriving here today, was at Punta Arenas, Costa Rica, the English steam yacht Ross Marine was in the harbor, bound for Cocos island to search for the gold that legend says was buried there by ancient buccaneers.

A man named Gray is in charge of the party. His purpose in putting in Punta Arenas, it was reported, was to conduct excavations on Cocos island, the place being under the jurisdiction of Costa Rica.

Another British steam yacht, known as the Veronoke and bearing Earl Fitzwilliams and ten associates, was at Panama when the City of Panama left there and was also bound for Cocos on a search for the neglected gold and plate of the buccaneers. This expedition was only a few days ago mentioned in the dispatches as having failed to find any trace of the wealth after making extensive excavations. The Veronoke it is said will soon come to San Francisco.

DENMARK HAS A NEW CABINET.

Copenhagen, Jan. 12.—The new cabinet is composed as follows: M. J. C. Christensen, premier and minister of war and marine; M. J. C. Christensen, minister of foreign affairs; M. Alberti, minister of justice; M. Ole Hansen, minister of agriculture; M. Enevold Soerensen, minister of instruction; M. Svend Hoegsbro, minister of the interior; M. Wilhelm Lassen, minister of finance; M. J. C. Christensen, minister of the navy; M. J. C. Christensen, minister of the military and naval departments of Denmark.

INDIAN CORN.
 Wheat and Cotton Simple Product in Comparison.

No other great crop has so many diversified uses as Indian corn, and this diversity, together with the diversity to which it lends, is largely the reason why it forms the foundation of our agricultural prosperity, writes Clarence H. Matson in the Saturday Evening Post.

The farmer has no use for his wheat except to sell it, and it is either ground directly into flour or it is exported and ground abroad.

The cotton-grower of the South cannot utilize his crop himself. He has no choice but to sell it, and it goes into the cotton mills.

Eat with corn it is different. The corn-grower sells little of his product.

The money centers do not figure on furnishing funds "to move the corn crop" each year as they do on cotton and wheat. The greater part of the corn crop is kept by the farmer himself, and when it goes to market it goes "on the hoof."

Millions of cattle and swine and sheep are fattened on it and furnish to the people of the earth the muscle and sinew which come from eating meat.

While meat is the principal end of most corn, its uses for other purposes are almost legion. A considerable amount is ground into meal and is served on the tables of America each morning as corn bread or cakes.

It forms the principal constituent in some of the numerous breakfast foods which the American people consume. A great amount of the spirits manufactured in America comes from corn, and much of the starch also.

Several million bushels are canned each year for food for the human race during the winter months.

Pipes are made of the cobs, which are also valuable as fuel.

Great quantities of syrup are manufactured from the stalks when green, as the juice is rich in sugar.

The by-products from the grain are many; a gum which is used in confections and paste; corn oil, used as a salad dressing; another oil which is used for illuminating or as a lubricant; a kind of vulcanized rubber, and numerous stock foods.

The pitth from the ripened stalks has proved extremely valuable in connection with the armor of battleships. It is compressed under heavy pressure, and placed between the armor plates of the ship below the water-line. If a projectile should pierce the armor, instead of leaving a wide opening through which the water might rush and sink the vessel, this corn pitth will immediately expand and fill the aperture, keeping out the water.

This pitth also contains cellulose, which can be utilized in the manufacture of paper.

PARIS AND THE AMERICAN.

In the beginning it amused me when, having been embraced by an agreeable French woman, she would with deliciously intimate immediately ask me to procure a rich wife or a splendid position for some impoverished always noble friend, or when tradespeople, boarding-houses, and the army of the unemployed appeared to me with childlike confidence in the notion that, being an American, I had only to say so and the fabulous wealth of our money-kings would at once be applied to the relief of all their necessities, writes Florn McDonald Thomson, in Harper's Bazaar.

But after a time the novelty of this situation wears off, and then the irony and the burden and the loneliness of it appear. No matter what evidence I personally exhibit of the fact that all Americans are not made of money, I am still supposed to be comparatively poor in consequence of some slightly stupid eccentric character, and it is justly believed that I can, nevertheless, procure anything I want if American money is the good of any deserving French individual or institution.

There are, of course, as is well known, countless shops, modistes, couturiers, etc., almost entirely supported by an American clientele, and there are many splendid hotels, restaurants and places of amusement where the Parisians would go out if American patronage were withdrawn. But simple conditions of everyday business explain all that.

The marvel appears in affairs erected on the belief that Americans are spendthrifts, with little or no regard for merely getting in the current of our spendthriftness, with little or no regard for what one offers to do or sell.

CATARH OF THE STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, But Safe and Effectual Cure For It.

Catarh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to dyspepsia. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing, headaches, sickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue, and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition. The cure for this common and disagreeable trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be really, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do, and when normal digestion is secured the catarh condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harrison the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Distasie, Aspic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not being a patent medicine can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. R. S. Workman, Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarh is a local condition resulting from a neglected diet, the food, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflamed and the stomach. Medical authorities prescribe for me for three years for catarh of stomach without cure, but today I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarh of stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heart burn and bloating after meals.

INTERESTS THEM

Local Lumbermen to Attend Northwestern Association Meeting.

Dissatisfaction Over Conduct of State Timber Sales.

One of the coming events which the head of the lakes lumber interests as well as those all over Northern Minnesota are looking forward to, is the convention of the Northwestern Lumbermen's association, which will take place at Minneapolis, Jan. 23 and Feb. 1 and 2. The sessions of the convention, with the exception of the final business meeting will be open to the public and will be held in the Hennepin county court house. The Minnesota lumbermen are making an effort to make the convention a point of view. Departing from the customary routine of conducting such meetings, they have arranged for lectures or talks from representatives of large associations of lumber producers, from all over the country, each of whom will be given a certain length of time to expound the policies of the industry as they represent. In this way the lumbermen, particularly the retail trade, will be given an opportunity of gaining much information along lines that may be of special interest to them. The associations which will be represented deal with yellow pine, white pine, fir, larch, spruce, and white pine, redwood, Western white pine, and the larch and spruce. The room has been reserved for exhibiting all of the woods which will be talked about, so that the convention will also have an interesting museum.

It is also believed by local lumbermen who expect to attend the convention that the Northwest lumber interests will have matters to come up regarding which they will desire special legislation. The convention will give an excellent opportunity, it is claimed, to find out the desires of the representative lumber interests in the Northwest as to the legislation most needed.

Such dissatisfaction is apparent among the Northern Minnesota lumbermen relating to the appraisal of timber on state lands for disposal at public sales held by the state auditor. There are instances, it is claimed, where certain lumber interests have been able to purchase pine stumpage in this and adjoining counties where the appraisal valuation is known to have been set too high. The state auditor will not sell for less than the appraisal value, and the lumbermen, feeling from their knowledge of the timber that there is not so much pine as has been estimated, refuse to bid for it. Lumbermen who have been present at state timber sales during the past year claim that it is not so much a question of the high price of timber as it is of getting what they pay for. They assert there are instances where, if they bought stumpage on the figures given out by the state, they would be practically buying gold bricks.

The discrepancy between the state's estimate of the amount of timber and the lumbermen's estimate is said to be due to one of two things, either somebody has been stealing the timber after the estimator went around, or else the estimator did not visit the property but took it for granted that the old estimate of several years ago would still hold true, whereas some pine may have been sold since the former estimate. The state auditor has refused to make any additional sales, that is, the bidder to take over the stumpage if another estimate is to be taken by the state proves the value of the figure given by the estimator. The lumbermen claim that such a proposition would be fair to the state and themselves, and many small pieces of stumpage belonging to the state could be made to pay a revenue instead of being left over from one year to another, going to deterioration in value by reason of fire or timber stealing.

C. M. GRIGGS IS SUCCESSFUL

In Securing Election as Vice President of Agricultural Society.

St. Paul, Jan. 13.—The election of officers yesterday by the State Agricultural society at the old capital, developed active rivalry between Chester R. Smith and C. M. Griggs, both of St. Paul, for the office of second vice president. Mr. Griggs was elected by a vote of 122 to 74. Mr. Smith, who retired, had held the office for six years.

C. N. Cosgrove, of Le Sueur, was elected president of the society by acclamation for his fourth term. First Vice President B. F. Nelson, of Minneapolis, was also elected by acclamation.

D. S. Hall, of Renville, was chosen to succeed on the board of directors, N. S. Gordon, of Crookston; G. W. Patterson, of Worthington, was elected to take the place of S. J. Currier, of Mankato. Messrs. Hall and Patterson will each serve three years.

Resolutions were adopted approving the president's recommendation that $25,000 be appropriated by the state for a live stock amphitheater at the fair grounds, suggesting that a legislative committee investigate the feasibility of using hemp fluff for making binding twine at the state prison, increasing the state appropriation from $14,000 to $28,000 for county exhibits at county fairs, and recommending an amendment to the present state law regarding the speed of automobiles on county roads. This last resolution, which was introduced by M. P. Gratian, insists that automobiles running faster than five miles an hour have no more right on the highways than a locomotive would have or a trolley car.

A resolution, moved by E. T. Champion, of Blue Earth, that the society should pay the expense of all delegates accredited to the annual meeting, failed to pass.

PASSENGER MEN RESIGN

From the Directorate of the Lake Carriers' Association.

Detroit, Jan. 13.—The Lake Carriers' association elected the following officers yesterday afternoon: President, William Milington, of Detroit; vice president, J. H. Sheale, of Cleveland; counsel, Harvey D. Goulder, of Cleveland; treasurer, George P. McKay, of Cleveland; secretary, George A. Marr, of Cleveland. The board of directors was re-elected and J. A. Tomlinson, of Duluth, and H. G. Wilkinson, of Syracuse, N. Y., were added to its membership. After this, however, W. C. McMillan, of Detroit, president of the Detroit and Cleveland passenger line, and T. F. Newman, of Cleveland and Buffalo passenger line, resigned from the board.

Some marine men consider that the resignation of the heads of these two prominent passenger lines indicated that they fear conflict in the spring between the Lake Carriers' association and some of the unions, probably the engineers, and wish to be in a position to operate their passenger boats even if the freight steamers should be tied up.

Last night the members of the association attended a banquet at the Hotel Cadillac.

TREASURER OUSTED.

Supreme Court Compels Miller to Vacate Office.

St. Paul, Jan. 13.—The supreme court yesterday issued a writ ousting from office C. C. Miller, former treasurer of the state, who has insisted on retaining the office despite the fact that the canvassing board had issued a certificate of election to A. A. Kremmer, at the recent election. Kremmer on the face of the returns had a slight plurality.

Miller instituted a contest which, however, resulted in increasing Kremmer's vote to him. Upon Miller refusing to give up the office, quo warranto proceedings were begun and a writ of ouster was issued.

FINISHES WORK

Federal Grand Jury Discharged After Three Days' Session.

Five Charged With Selling Whisky to Indians Sentenced.

After being in session only three days, the federal grand jury made its third and final report late yesterday afternoon and was discharged from further duty. Four indictments were returned yesterday, making a total of eight for the term. They were against Thomas Halvorsen, Daniel Smith, Francis Gerneau and Charles Tanner, all of whom are charged with selling intoxicating liquor to Indians and introducing intoxicants on Indian reservations. Later in the day the four pleaded guilty before Judge Page Morris and were sentenced at once.

Others appearing before the grand jury were charged before Judge Morris yesterday were Charles McDaniel, charged with selling liquor to the Indians; Louis Deault, charged with selling liquor to Indians; E. F. Niles, Merrill postmaster, charged with trying to defraud the government, and Don M. Cameron, Little Falls postmaster, indicted on the same charge. All entered a plea of not guilty. Charles Tanner, an Indian, pleaded guilty to the charge of introducing liquor on the Leach Lake reservation.

In discharging the jurors Judge Morris thanked them for the expeditious and careful manner in which they had fulfilled their duty, saying the business coming before the body had been rapidly disposed of, and in a satisfactory way.

Halvorsen was indicted on two counts of selling liquor to the Indians. In a plea for leniency he said he had lived in Walker for several years and had never before been accused of a crime. The man was fined $100 and was also sentenced to serve a term of sixty days in the county jail at Walker.

Daniel Smith was also indicted on two counts. He said he was not aware that he was breaking any law in selling liquor to Indians, having been a bartender at Walker only one month when the offense was committed. His fine and sentence were the same as Halvorsen's, $100 and sixty days in jail.

Gerneau, a Red Lake Indian, admitted having introduced liquor on his reservation. He was also fined $100, with the sixty days in jail sentence. Charles Tanner drew the same penalty.

He testified that he was 24 years of age and that he had only recently completed his education at a Wisconsin Indian school. Garry Nout on being arraigned listened to three indictments read against him. All charged him with selling liquor to the Indians, and one of the counts had in the man furnished a quart of whisky to Indians in Duluth since federal court convened. It is alleged that he procured the liquor and disposed of it in the federal building. Nout said he was not guilty of either of the alleged offenses.

It is claimed that Niles, the Merrill postmaster, issued two money orders upon which he received no money, with intent to defraud the government. He pleaded not guilty and was given time in which to employ an attorney to defend him.

Don M. Cameron, the Little Falls postmaster, claims that on January 20, 1904, his postoffice was robbed of $200, and he has since been unable to recover his own funds by two hold-up men. He said he reimbursed the government for the loss, and the prosecution will allege that the robbery was not a genuine one. Assistant United States District Attorney J. M. O'Leary stated the robbery charge could not enter into the matter at all. The present action is based on an alleged shortage of $175 in postmaster's accounts last September.

RELATIONS OF U. S. AND CANADA

Discussed By Eugene N. Foss of Boston at Canadian Banquet.

Shows the Benefits Both Countries Would Derive From Reciprocity.

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 13.—Eugene Nolle Foss, of Boston, was one of the speakers at the banquet of the Empire club of Canada last night. His topic as announced was "The Future Relations of the United States and Canada and the Effect Upon the British Empire," but Mr. Foss confined his remarks chiefly to the future relations of the two countries.

In opening, Mr. Foss said he represented no political ambition, but rather a friendly American spirit. His outlook being that of a business man upon the economic and business interests of the two countries. After citing a number of facts to show that the people of the United States have no political designs on Canada, Mr. Foss reviewed briefly the historical development of the nation and the policy of the United States. Continuing, he said:

I have said that we in the United States have reached the point of monopoly and extortion and are alive to the fact. You naturally ask me, what are you going to do about it? I would answer that the most progressive and generous element in the United States demands a change, a new element which seeks your friendship and cooperation as well as you seek ours. I tell you that the people of your people have reached the point where they will insist on a "square deal" on the tariff question. We demand this primarily for ourselves, but we cannot neglect the human nature of the world without benefiting every customer on our list. We will begin with Canada, and we will begin with Newfoundlands gets in ahead of you and I think we will move along the lines which mark the boundaries of the British empire.

It is evident that Canadian tariff legislation has been inspired chiefly with respect to the United States. We on our part have framed our schedules almost always with reference to some section of the British Empire. Our main thought has been, it would seem, to prevent the sale of British goods to our country, to keep the home market so securely to ourselves that our people might be able to handle any whatever the cost.

We are alive to the folly of much of this program. We see that it has checked our progress and burdened us. We see, too, that in ignoring the prosperity of our customer we have menaced our own. That he must make a profit somewhere, and if he cannot at home or from some other country, as Canada makes from Great Britain, he must quit buying. This is the business view we are coming to take of the international situation. It is nothing new to you, but it marks a distinct departure with us.

ROOSEVELT REPRESENTS THE PROGRESSIVE SPIRIT.

You cannot at present look to Washington for this new spirit. For Washington is notoriously inaccurate as a reflection of public sentiment. I would qualify that statement a little, however. I would say, rather, that you cannot look to the White House for symptoms of the change which is impending for the signs of a broader, more tolerant, more progressive spirit in the conduct of our fiscal policy. Theodore Roosevelt, who is a statesman keenly responsive to the voice of the people, ready to grasp opportunity when it comes, in Roosevelt you have a better friend than you know.

This broader view, this tolerant recognition of the importance of our commerce, this more liberal view, you might rather find in some of our student newspapers. It is not confined to Massachusetts. I am sure that the club would have you think and it is not peculiar to the United States. President Roosevelt, while elected by the party of high protection, yet had the confidence and support of the progressive element. I am convinced that he appreciates the importance of the closest and most friendly relations with Canada. The American cannot afford him and the monopolists cannot intimidate him. He is a man of broad vision, and open-minded. Like his great predecessor, whose death threatened the march of events, he is a man of international good will and prosperity, and looking to him.

WILL CANADA ENCOURAGE OR IGNORE?

With the conditions as I have stated them—with the birth of a new spirit among our people which promises a wider and more liberal view of men and things—the world over, what will be the attitude of Canada toward the United States? Will she meet us half way, as she has been more ready to do in the past? Or will she seek to protect her isolation? Will she respond to the best that is in us, as it goes out to her, or will she ignore it?

We understand thoroughly your position in the matter of tariff concessions. From the present basis, and cannot criticize it. Our people are beginning to recognize that such measures, which are unjust, exist. They are now ready, I believe, to remedy these conditions without asking much of you. We already are formulating a plan which contemplates the immediate removal or material reduction of the restrictive duties on many of your most important products.

NATURAL VERSUS PAUPER INDUSTRIES.

Your government, while standing for the doctrine of protection, yet takes the view that there are many things which it is not well for Canada to try to make. This is sound economics. The people of the United States are today generally taxed to support certain unnatural industries. There are certain things, and great many of them, which you can raise, which you can manufacture, which you can traffic in to better advantage than we in the States. In those lines you will sell and produce more than we do, more than generalize along this line, but have the right to say that a recognition of the principle is extremely important, if not vital, to the success of Canada. It is better to avoid our mistakes than to imitate them. You have avoided most of them so far, and your progress is a credit to your government. I recognize the plausible strength which underlies the argument. You have to deal, however, with questions of fact rather than of theory. The most profitable relation to the class of business you can develop that will attain the greatest success in bringing you the most profit, and in the United States we have, in some cases, attempted to do this. The opportunity to invest and spend their money to the best advantage to themselves. The result has been the creation of trust and monopoly, evils from which you are comparatively free. In my judgment, events are tending toward a political revolution in the United States, for our over-protected special interests have overplayed the game. The recent election result in Massachusetts is only a symptom. They oppose fair play for you, moreover, because they fear for themselves. Your new "dumping clause" is a wise one, and I hope you will make it effective.

MR. FOSSE AND DR. MONTAGUE.

I notice that Hon. J. Israel Tarte, in a recent interview, stated that reciprocity between the two countries is impossible because we are rivals. It seems to me this is the best reason why we should get together. In this way we can the interests of both countries be best protected—most assuredly so in certain important lines. Whatever the old theory as to competition, the modern tendency is toward consolidation; and every business man knows that rival businesses in the same community generally result in the survival of the fittest.

Now this idea advanced by Dr. Montague in his recent speech before the Home Market club, when he pictured the Dominion of Canada as populated by 100,000 people, raising 500,000 to 600,000 bushels of wheat yearly and supplying the needs and those of Great Britain and the rest of the world—this theory is a very ambitious one, but it raises several grave questions. It is ideal, but some of us are some people of the same race, same religions, of the same civilization, producing the same things, competing in the same markets—this conception fills the cup of laughter.

On the question of the nature of things, is it possible? Can such an aggregation of human nature, with the millennium so far off, continue to live on both sides of this imaginary line in peace and good will? I do not like to say this, I do not like to think it. I hope my implied deduction is not wrong; but we are Anglo-Saxons, and I cannot forget the fact of Anglo-Saxon history, the wedding of the United Kingdom itself.

THE AMBITION OF CANADA.

Dr. Montague says: "Let us alone. We are all right. We are working out our own destiny as you have worked out yours and we can only continue on this line we shall become a large and powerful nation, with the wealth and honor of the United States." I honor this sentiment, and the ambition from which it springs. I am second to no man in my appreciation of Canadian ambition, skill and ability, but all the facts of the material world confirm my belief that the United States is destined to be the dominant factor on the American continent. It is not for us as human judgment can foresee, the fact inevitable. It is not because I am a citizen of my country. Rather it is because I am and must be for the point of view a tremendous future, a citizen of the world.

DO NOT MISUNDERSTAND ME.

I do not misunderstand me. We respect your ambition to become a great nation, industrially, commercially, and politically. We have no desire to slaughter your industries and make you a pastoral people, without any while immediately profitable to a few of our manufacturers. Perhaps, would be short-sighted. We wish you the same development that has come to your several states, the some of these agricultural, some industrial. Very few of them are self-contained. A time factor of their development has been freedom of interchange—affording a natural play for force and energy. We would uplift your country as we have uplifted our own.

No commonwealth that all our forty-five have suffered in material prosperity from being a member of the great family of commonwealths, and by the same token, the same privileges can be extended to Canada without injury to her loyalty or integrity. The future is full of opportunity for all of us. We can concern ourselves now only with the problems of industrial and commercial development. If you believe your ambition can best be served by hostilities, of course you will enact them; but the overwhelming fact that a natural community of interests exists between the two countries cannot be denied.

The comparative failure of your preferential Great Britain emphasizes this. Only by extreme measures, bringing hardship to your own people, can you divert the natural course of things.

FOR THE PEACE OF THE WORLD.

I cannot believe that we, the elder children, are less good to the mother country than you. I profoundly believe that if the time should ever come when England needed help, the United States would offer it as freely and spontaneously as Canada herself. We are bound together by such common interests that the English-speaking peoples must stand together, not only in war but alike in peace. Anything less would be a disaster to the world. I would kill you, England and her colonies take from us more than half of all we sell abroad. If for no other reason than this alone we should be bound together by the strongest reason, and then even that, I believe that a commercial union between Canada and the United States would be the first step in a compact with Great Britain which would bring not only the industrial but the political peace of the world.

GERMAN JEW BAITER IS SENT TO PRISON.

Berlin, Jan. 13.—Count Puckler, German's most noted Jew baiter, was yesterday sentenced in one of the courts of Berlin to six months in jail for public incitement to disobedience of laws and violence of one class against another. Count Puckler informed the court that he had a special mission from God to lead an anti-Jewish propaganda. This conviction, he said, came in answer to constant prayer. He said he often had been disposed to abandon his mission but was held to the work by God's will. He protested against the imputation of mental weakness and said he had been occupied the prisoners' box eighteen times and asserted seriously that he meant what he said when he had urged his auditors to beat Jews with sticks.

Invitations are out for the Elks' charity ball, which has been announced for Jan. 25. The affair is the fifth annual ball of this order and will be given at the Spaulding hotel and the arrangements are going forward for one of the most brilliant affairs of the winter season. The floor committee consists of Dr. J. D. Park and Messrs. W. C. Sargent, R. D. Angus, J. T. Black, E. P. Burg, John Cox, L. L. Calhoun, Gus E. Dixon, W. A. Eden, A. V. Ouellette, Prescott Wyman, W. G. Gorrie, E. G. Mason and J. H. McFadden.

Mrs. R. N. Marble, of East First street, left last evening for a few weeks' visit at New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. McClure, formerly of this city, have returned from Ann Arbor, Mich., where they have made their home. They will be at home at 1411 Jefferson street.

Mrs. L. S. Loh will entertain at a card reception tomorrow afternoon at an informal tea from 3 to 5 o'clock. The guests of honor were Miss Nellie Jaynes, of Dayton, Ohio, and Miss Maude Collins, of Danville, Ill. The affair was most delightful.

A pretty wedding took place last evening at the Lake avenue Bethel when Miss Leona Jackson and Andrew Forland were married. The regular meeting hall was prettily decorated for the affair. Greens were used in profusion about the room and the ceremony was performed under a canopy of white. A bright fire blazed in the hearth and in the corner of the room the table was laid for the wedding supper which followed the ceremony. The wedding music was played by Mrs. L. A. Marvin and the service was read by Rev. L. W. Moody. The bridesmaids were Miss Mac Dosset and Miss Christina Forslund and the groom's attendants were Victor Hanson and Walter Forslund. Mr. and Mrs. Forslund will be at home in this city. Mr. Forslund is the superintendent of the branch Bethel.

The young woman of the Zenith Telephone exchange and several of their friends last night composed a jolly sleigh ride party. The ride ended with a supper at one of the downtown restaurants.

At the meeting of the Saturday club tomorrow afternoon, Mrs. R. E. Donfield will be leader. "The Present Situation Between Russia and Japan" will be the subject of the current events' discussion led by Mrs. C. C. Ames. "The Unification of Spain" will be the subject of the general study program and papers will be presented on the following topics:

"Conditions in Spain".....
"Reforms of Isabella".....
"Miss Edith White and Mrs. John Martin."
"Torquemada Establishes the Inquisition".....
"Conquest of Granada," "Columbus," "Expulsion of the Jews".....
"Character of Isabella".....
Mrs. W. A. Waugh.

Frank Hicks, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Hicks, has gone to Jacksonville, Fla., for a business and pleasure trip.

DYEING OF HAIR.

Paris Bringing It to an Artistic Height.

That the high note in hair dyeing has recently been struck seems to be substantiated by the numbers of women who cross the ocean or the channel respectively to Paris, and often with the main object in view of there having their tresses becoming tinted, says an exchange. For it is in Paris, the Mecca of prolonging beauty and charm, that hair dyeing has entered the realm of art. No longer, says the Frenchwoman, need hair thus treated be detectable and cast over its wearer the sickly, unhealthy aspect of days gone by. As the advanced knowledge of hair dyeing is used, it becomes more a process of hiding from public gaze the hair's desire to turn gray, than a means of changing its original color. This latter act, happily, is no longer regarded as being good form, while gray hairs perhaps more than ever are looked upon as indicative of age. Despite the truism that harsh features are softened by them and that they occasionally crown young heads, they cannot, it seems, shake themselves loose from hoary associations. Always it comes as a shock to find the first gray hair in the head.

English women are credited with being more keen about preventing the hair's turning than those of any other nation. It must also be said, however, that the French follow them closely and Americans are strongly pushing for the lead. This state of things, no doubt, has come about through the improved dyes which are now used, causing the hair to grow in its natural color, and the better knowledge of how to apply them. No longer need dyeing the hair be injurious; rather it is claimed to be distinctly beneficial, causing its growth to be invigorated and its lustre to brighten.

And this secret of improvement, with many other good things, has come from the Orient. A few French people have laid hold of henna, the famous Eastern herb, and cleverly adopted it to modern needs. Since, moreover, they are not spreading broadcast the secret they have evolved, it becomes necessary for English and American women to go to their fair city for its benefits.

That henna, a vegetable dye, is not injurious to the hair's steady growth may well be argued from the centuries through which Oriental women have regarded it as their special benefactor. They have fairly saturated their heads with it, deeming the bright red to which it then turned their hair to be entirely befitting. In Algiers, also, the women of high exclusiveness use it to dye the entire left hand and the finger nails of the right. But henna, as now used by the French, has lost its smack of barbarism, is well diluted.

Under their application it stains the hair, not necessarily red, but an exquisite golden brown, or, when desired, keeps up its jet black brilliancy. Curious enough the reddish brown colored hair for which this process was first introduced, is said to be distinctly out of fashion. Nevertheless, the dye has been well adapted to the stronger brunette tones which now are triumphantly in vogue.

PINCHING THE CHEEKS.

Some Remarks on Producing the Desirable Peachiness.

The pinching method of reddening the cheeks is much employed abroad, says an exchange. Yet one ought not to make this assertion so broadly. The mere pinching of the cheeks will make them painful and will not redden them for more than a few minutes at a time. They will be black and blue next day. Many a woman has utterly spoiled her cheeks by pinching them into color. But there is such a thing as stimulating the skin. This can be best done by electricity. A sponge passed over the cheeks with a low current will excite the blood vessels and make dull, anemic cheeks glow prettily. There is nothing that approaches the electric sponge in the making of red cheeks. For the woman with electricity at her control there is no excuse for being pale.

The woman who has not the electric current can work in another way, but she must do it very carefully. She can use a system of massage which is employed in London and which is particularly responsible for the wonderful color of the English women.

English women owe their color to their mode of life.

The English women drinks tea instead of coffee. She eats warm bread, tea biscuits and vegetables. She dines largely upon cooked greens and she eats, not heavy dishes of meat, but light ones of vegetables and cereals.

This is a valuable lesson for the woman who is looking for a complexion.

Then the English woman walks in the rain and lets it beat on her countenance. She lives much out of doors and she never bundles up. She sits in a well ventilated room and her life is spent in the pure air. And then, if she be ambitious to be a society beauty she treats her skin intelligently.

you may choose to bring us. Provided always, of course, you get the touch of the real thing in it as you seem to have done in this.

"Alice turned away with a murmured 'Thank you. Her heart was strangely heavy just then with its olden pain. That night she sobbed out on her pillow. 'I thought I was beginning to forget. Oh, I thought I was getting braver. I thought I was beginning to forget!'

The editor who had fancied the little story for the 'touch of the real thing' had kindly accepted other sketches Alice had sent him. She worked steadily and wondered if, perhaps, in time she might have something of the old days and in far different circumstances.

Then she felt a sudden pang, and proved quickly that she might never forget. 'Let me not be among those who lose, and losing, wish they might forget,' she whispered softly.

It was at the close of a storm-swept night that she came back to her lodgings, weather beaten and weary, in the early darkness, after a toilsome search for 'copy.'

She and a gust of rain-laden wind were in the hall together. Inside the hall she started violently, and grew white to lips and brow.

In the light that burst upon her he was standing there. The first thing that flashed upon her consciousness was the sense of his strength as he stood, straight and handsome; of his warmth, of his comfort to herself, cold and weary and beaten.

"So, here you are for a moment that she saw him thus. The next instant she saw the struggle in his face—the struggle between joy and pain, the struggle between yearning and restraint, between hope and uncertainty.

"Alice," he said. "Oh, the thrill in his voice! 'Everett' was all she could say, although she was striving with all her might for possession of herself.

"Alice, I've searched for you for a year. I could not rest without you. I cannot live without you," his words were coming impetuously. "If you have learned that that cruel parting of ours was right, if you are happier so, tell me quickly, and I will go. It will break my heart, Alice, but—for your sake—I will go."

little story, under your name, and Alice, it gave me hope. I vowed then to find you if I had to move heaven and earth to do it. That was two months ago, and—well, sweetheart, I have found you."

"Hint the story—I don't understand," said Alice. "What was the story?" "Is it possible you don't recall it?" Everett drew from his pocket a magazine and turned to a page. Alice gave it one glance, then she covered her face with her hands.

"Oh, not that; not that!" she cried in distress. "Why, that, of course, dear. You aren't sorry you wrote it, are you, Alice?" Alice looked up suddenly. "But the name," she said. "I always use a pen name. How could you know it was mine?"

"A pen name? Not this time, certainly," Alice—Alice Monroe—I believe that was the name bestowed upon you at your christening, was it not?" "Oh, how stupid of me! I must have forgotten. Oh, how could I?" she cried in dismay.

She looked at him with the sweetest appeal in her eyes. "Oh, Everett, it was such a dreadful thing to do. And I wrote it for a pot-boiler."

"A pot-boiler? Only replied the man, with a great understanding dawned upon him. 'Well, I can't help being glad, dear, selfishly glad, that you had to write a pot-boiler. To you it may have been a pot-boiler. To me it was a message of hope in my despair.'

And he kissed her on the lips.

New Railroad Will Open Up Rich Mineral Possibilities.

Ontonagon—The Porcupine mountain country, rich in copper mineral possibilities, but inaccessible to exploration and development, is to be thrown open to both prospector and miner by the construction of a railroad from Ontonagon to the Presque Isle river, just over the Gogonic county line. It will be known as the Ontonagon & Southwestern. The survey is completed and it is estimated that ten or twelve miles of the line will be completed this winter.

The Ontonagon & Southwestern contains at least one Milwaukee road representative, and there is reason to believe that an alliance of some sort exists. Other directors represent large timber interests.

Escanaba—White Fred Lindquist, a farmer living four miles south of Hurk River, was in Escanaba on business, his home caught fire and was destroyed. His wife and four children were powerless to save the flames and were subjected to great privation on account of the storm. Their only shelter was a small shanty. The house and contents were not insured and were worth about $500.

St. Ignace—Little Bessie Albrecht, of St. Ignace, is as lively as any girl of her age in the city, though she suffered for eleven months from dislocation of the hip joint. She walks with an almost imperceptible limp, one limb being a trifle shorter than the other. A Chicago surgeon reduced the dislocation, following the methods employed by Dr. Loring of Vienna. The limb is massaged daily by Mrs. Albrecht, and it is now as strong as the other.

At St. Ignace recently the business places of Pat Mulrone and Mike St. Ledger were entered by thieves. At the former place the cash register was robbed of about $5 and some pickled pigs' feet were eaten. The bones from the feet were found the next morning, since which time the local Sherlock Holmes have been looking for the men the marks of whose teeth were left as clues, but to date the sleuths have been baffled. In St. Ledger's saloon, the cash register and a slot machine were plundered, in the latter instance the thieves reversing the usual order of things; they got about $5 there.

Iron Mountain—Near Three Rivers, Canada, fifty years ago last Sunday, John Van Dell and Olivia Givan, residents of Iron Mountain, were united in marriage. As a result of this union nine children were born and all are living but one. Mrs. Van Dell have forty-five grand children and one great grandchild. The old couple moved to the Menominee range some thirty years ago, and have resided at Iron Mountain practically ever since.

Munising—Sheriff John T. Thornton, of Munising, announces the following appointments: Under sheriff, John Saul; holding deputies, sheriff in the several townships as follows: Au Train, Joseph Refusschinski and Michael Ship; Bart, William Leighton, Patrick McCalde and Thomas Vogan; Limestone, C. E. Johnson; Mathias, J. M. Shady; B. L. Mills and L. A. Davis; Munising, Joseph Teller and John Henry; Onton, W. J. Ellis; Rock River, Frank Wolf and John Urdhult.

Glass Block Opens at 8:30 A. M.

That was a mistake and a proof-reading error in the advertisement of last night made the Panton & White company say "Glass block opens at 8 a. m." This error will continue to open at 8:30 a. m. until further notice.

PARIS DOCTORS

Act as Hosts at a Growsome Dance.

New York, Jan. 12.—The annual ball of the house surgeons of the Paris hospitals was this year more growsome than ever before, so morbid, in fact, that many of its details are utterly indescribable.

It was a saturnalia of grimy grotesque surgical wit, in which all the horrors of the dissecting room and the operating table were caricatured and the latest discoveries in bacteriology were impersonated.

The parade on cars representing the several hospitals was led by a procession representing Dr. Plot, submerged under a mass of terrifying microbes. Andral hospital showed Professor Metchnikoff leading out curled milk as the specific for eternal youth. Lariboisiere represented the most famous doctors of Paris, each bearing emblems vividly depicting his specialty. The Enfants Malades sent a procession of horrible deformities.

The prize, however, was won by Necker hospital, with a float entitled "Bacteria Caricature" which might have been inspired by the shape of Baudelaire. In it a lord mayor's banquet and its awful consequences were shown in close proximity to Petronius architect opening his veins on a bed of roses, while an alliance of pleasure with suddenly transformed into death. Bishops and cardinals celebrating a most unorthodox "purple mass" broke into pieces of moribund, and the whole ghastly spectacle was of a character to give heart disease to any but those with strong nerves.

From midnight to breakfast time the ballroom was a surging mass of moribund dancing with subjects, and a medley of all the horrors at once.

HOUSEWORK MADE EASY.
Domestic labor of all kinds has been so modified by scientific inventions that it has become less drudgery in many instances than a species of domestic engineering on a small scale. If the electric inventions for the performance of household labor continue to multiply and to increase in popularity, it will soon be necessary for the American housewife to become somewhat of an electrician as well as a skilled mechanic. If she is to cook her husband's dinner, Pasturize her baby's milk, heat her lap-dog's bath, or curber own hair, says London Telegraph.
The kitchen is an airy and bath-room not to mention the lighting, heating and cooling apparatus of the American household, are rapidly ranging themselves within the domain of electricity, or at least of the kindred powers which were formerly confined to the factory. But now that they have invaded the home, the need for individual labor of the hands is gradually lessening and giving place to the need rather for intelligent direction of mechanical forces. All the housewife needs to know, according to the general possibilities which are fast being realized, is how to control certain currents, buttons and switches, and she may heat and cool her household at will, cook for it, and despatch the household labor with a celerity and a perfection unknown before.

THE INTELLIGENCE IN A HAND.
In all my experiences and thoughts
I feel in the Country. Whatever touches me, whatever thrills me, is as a hand that touches me in the dark, and that tells me my position. You might as well say that a sight which makes you glad or a blow which brings the stinging tears to your eyes is unreal as to say that those impulses are unreal which I have accumulated by means of touch. The delicate tremble of a butterfly's wings in my hand, the soft petals of violets curling in the cool fields of their leaves or lifting sweetly out of the meadow grass, the clear firm outline of a face and limb, the smooth arch of a horse's neck and the graceful touch of a nose—all these, and a thousand resultant combinations which take shape in my mind, constitute my world.

A palimpsest can foretell a man's life, but it doesn't take a magnifying glass to see the finish of the merchant who waits for business to come.

Thirty Guests.

Thirty employees of the Thomas Thompson Commission company sat down to a dinner last evening at Bayley's cafe as guests of the company.

It was the occasion of the anniversary of the company's formation, and in recognition of the services rendered by the employees during the last year, the proprietors tendered them the banquet.

The menu included oyster cocktails, bouillon, roast goose, lobster salad, coffee, pumpkin pie and a selection of the best fruit and nuts. The commission house could supply. Cigars were passed around at the conclusion of the dinner and a few short speeches were made. The banquet, on the whole, was a most enjoyable affair.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

START THE PLANT

New Duluth Box Factory
Now In Operation.

West Duluth Commercial Club Holds Election of Officers.

The new Duluth box factory, under the management of William H. Rieckhoff, commenced operations this morning with a full crew of men employed. The first factory burned some time ago, but preparations were immediately under way for a new plant of the same kind, with a greater capacity. The finishing touches were put on the new factory this week, and from now on it will be run steadily.

The plant is now located in one of the brick buildings erected several years ago by Richards & Pool for a sash, door and blind factory. The structure, which was never used, measures 300 by 30 feet, and allowed the installation of enough machinery to about double the capacity of the old box factory.

A detached fire-proof engine house has been erected adjacent to the plant, and the company is now practically free from danger of the building being destroyed by fire. The structure was given a thorough overhauling and placed in first-class condition.

A total of about fifty men are employed in and about the factory, which has a capacity of one carload of sash boxes a day. Numerous orders for boxes are now on hand, and Mr. Rieckhoff says he has every reason to believe that there will be enough work to keep the plant running at full capacity for years to come.

ANNUAL ELECTION.

M. M. Clark Again Chosen President of Commercial Club

The annual election of officers occurred at the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club last night. M. M. Clark as president, L. A. Barnes as vice president, J. Allen Scott as secretary and L. S. Neuman as treasurer, were re-elected to the same positions. Members of the board of directors were selected as follows: Rev. John Feely, E. J. Zauf, David Sang, W. B. Getchell, A. H. Meritt, C. S. Olson, C. F. Farnett, W. A. Pond, P. H. Martin, H. H. Phelps and H. E. Patterson. Secretary Scott reported that the organization now has 142 members. He expects a considerable increase in the membership during the present year. Treasurer Neuman said the club had a satisfactory balance in the treasury, and expressed gratification at the prosperous condition of the club. He said himself at the beginning of the year.

As soon as President M. M. Clark returns from Mexico, two committees to arrange for social entertainments to be given in the near future will be appointed. Mr. Clark did not arrive yesterday, as expected, but it is believed he will be here within the next two or three days.

Rev. F. G. Clark, pastor of the Asbury M. E. church, made a brief address following the election of officers. He was made a member of the organization last night.

THE CHURCHES.

Subjects of Sermons in West

Morning service at the Westminster Presbyterian church will open at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. The pastor, Rev. W. J. Lowrie, will preach on the

Many Rejoice at Return of Health!
Scores of such men and women from all vicinities and many from a number of miles distant. All have words of praise for Dr. Chas. A. Hoag, the eminent Chicago specialist. Many stating they went home rejoicing after consulting the doctor, and that they had been cured by his new method. Some of the cures were of a most serious nature, and some almost every physician had failed to cure them. Dr. Hoag's treatment cured them by his successful method, and they are today well and contented. If you are despondent, discouraged, in fact given up hope of being cured, consult Dr. Hoag. He will cure you by his new method, blood poison, rectal diseases, kidney, bladder, stomach diseases, sexual nervous diseases, caused by errors of earlier life, sexual debility cured under his guarantee. Dr. Hoag will be in Superior, Wis., Hotel Superior, Wednesday, Jan. 18, 1896, office hours, 12:30 a. m. to 1 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. theme, "Seeking the Lord." Sunday school will meet at 12 o'clock with D. C. Eadie acting as superintendent.

At the Plymouth Congregational church, Rev. H. W. Johnson, the pastor, will speak on "Soul Leanness" in the morning, and the evening subject will be "Reward in Heaven."

NEW PAPER.
The West Duluth Ekko is the latest addition to the press of this city. It is a weekly publication, printed in the Norwegian language, the editor and publisher being J. C. Wesenberg, formerly deputy sheriff. The first issue contains a fair amount of advertising patronage, is neatly printed and well filled with news.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.
The remainder of the present pig iron scarcity multiplied during the week. As has been pointed out heretofore, the 1905 revival of industrial activity, to which the term "boom" has been more or less freely applied, will need a lot of pig iron and the immediate demand for this necessity has been one of the important features of the first full business week of the new year. The main indication of a dearth of pig iron that has come to the surface has been the purchase of 2,000 tons of Bessemer pig by the United States Steel corporation, and from Bessemer iron that rails and steel beams for buildings and bridges and similar heavy uses are made so that in this purchase there is an indication of the predicted boom in numerous important lines.

The fact that the blast furnaces of the steel corporation are and have for weeks been making every ton of pig iron their capacity reduced possible makes this purchase of iron from the independent producers significant. The price paid for the pig bought by the trust was not given out of course. This is taken to indicate that the trust may want to buy more.

It is not impossible that the trust has had a hand in the lack of vigor in pig iron speculation during the week. There has been a scarcity of pig iron warrants on the Pittsburgh stock exchange and of the contracts for delivery on the New York produce exchange for January, February and March deliveries. Most of the speculation has been in furtherance of deliveries. This is because the producers of pig iron are not getting their output for the first three months of the year into the warrant storage yards, but are seeking a better price for the pig iron now on the market. The price for pig iron is practically immediate use, or are prepared to store it and keep it for future requirements already covered by contracts. The price of pig iron is going up, and the price of the pig iron is going up, and the price of the pig iron is going up.

Nothing but regular routine matters are scheduled to come up at the meeting of the West Duluth Republican club this evening.

The Swedish Lutheran Lake Superior mission district of the Minnesota conference will hold its annual meeting at the Elmhurst church, West Duluth, Monday to Wednesday of next week. The meeting opens Monday evening by celebrating the Lord's supper. Tuesday and Wednesday forenoons will be devoted to the business of the district, and the afternoon to theological discussions, bearing especially upon the mission work of the district.

The district comprises thirty-five congregations, with a total number of over 5,000 souls. Each congregation is to send a delegate to the meeting. Some important matters in regard to the extension of the mission work will be brought up before the assembly. The present officers are Rev. J. S. Soderman, Superior, president; Rev. A. F. Elmquist, Duluth, vice president; Rev. C. S. Olmanson, secretary; Rev. C. O. Swenson, Clouet, treasurer.

Fine Financial Showing of the Duluth Board of Trade.

The members of the Duluth board of trade have received within the past day or two copies of the financial statement, dated Jan. 13, 1905. It shows a condition most satisfactory to members of the entire membership of the board, valued at a little more than $221,000, there is owing but $75,000. Two years more, at the rate of gain now being made, the indebtedness will be entirely wiped out and the board will have a clean slate. This remarkable achievement of building the handsome building it occupies, and paying for it completely, will have been made in the space of a little more than ten years.

At a meeting of the board this morning H. F. Salyards was elected a director to succeed George Spencer, resigned. Mr. Spencer was nominated for vice president a few days ago at the annual caucus, and by virtue of the position will be a member of the board. He thereupon sent in his resignation as director.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 14.—A dastardly attempt to etherize to death Mary Seola, an aged lodging house keeper, early yesterday morning, was frustrated by the prompt action of Charles Jones, a roomer, who, aroused by the sound of hurrying footsteps, investigated and found the woman lying on her bed in an insensible condition with a cloth saturated with ether bound tightly around her mouth.

Suspicion pointed towards Henry and Mabel Liberty, a couple whom Mrs. Seola had taken into her house out of charity because of their destitute condition, and they were placed under arrest.

Only after several hours of hard work were physicians able to revive the woman. The room was in great disorder, everything of value being taken.

THE LABOR WORLD

Joseph Shartell Elected President of Trades Assembly.

Appointment of Factory Inspector Meets With General Favor.

Duluth trades and labor unions will meet during the coming week as follows:

Stone masons, Monday evening in the Axa building.

Tug firemen and firemen, Monday evening in the Lyceum building.

Building Trades' council, Monday evening in the Kalamazoo building.

Painters, decorators and paperhangers, Tuesday evening in the Kalamazoo block.

Carpenters, Tuesday evening in the Kalamazoo block.

Leather workers, Wednesday evening in the Kalamazoo block.

Cigar makers, Wednesday evening in the Kalamazoo block.

Licensed Tugmen's Protective association, Wednesday evening in the Kalamazoo block.

Electrical workers, Thursday evening at 221 West Superior street.

Stationary engineers, Thursday evening in the Lyceum building.

Marine Engineers' Beneficial association, Friday evening in the Lyceum building.

The semi-annual election of the Federated Trades assembly last evening resulted in the election of Joseph Shartell, delegate from the Cigar-makers' union, as president. Other officers chosen were as follows:

Vice president, S. S. McDonald, anarchist, recording and corresponding secretary, John A. Barron, printer; financial secretary and treasurer, Charles A. McDowell, leather worker; reading clerk, George Nordfield, butcher; sergeant-at-arms, A. E. Kelly, engineer; trustees, William Tuntich, butcher, Peter Nielsen, tailor, John McDonald, printer. The selection of delegates to the Superior Trades assembly and the appointment of committees was postponed until the next regular meeting, which will be on Friday evening, Jan. 27.

Henry Peterson, retiring president, had announced some time ago that he would not be a candidate for the position again. He has made an excellent executive officer during his four terms at the head of the assembly, and might doubtless have been re-elected had he not desired to retire. A brief address last evening Mr. Peterson thanked the delegates for the support and co-operation rendered in the past labor work, and asked that the same consideration and help be given Mr. Shartell. The latter is known as one of the most energetic workers in the labor body.

Although no official confirmation of the report had been given out to last night, it is known to be a practical certainty that August Hagberg, of Duluth, has been appointed as chief factory inspector, to succeed J. W. Allen.

Announcement of the appointment comes as good news to organized labor in Duluth, because for more than fifteen years Mr. Hagberg has been a union man, always working to advance the interests of organized labor, despite the fact that late years he has been an employer of men. As an employer he is not eligible to active membership in the Tailors' union, but he is still regarded as an honorary member. In his recent campaign for the position of surveyor general of logs and lumber he received the endorsement of every individual member of the tailors' union, and of his past record in the city and in addition from prominent local labor leaders, to this a number of communications among them officers high in the Federated Trades Assembly, endorsing the candidacy of Mr. Hagberg, were received by Governor Johnson.

The appointment is something of a surprise to Mr. Hagberg, for he made no application for the position. In view of his unquestioned popularity with organized labor in the Zenith city, and of his past record in the city, and in addition from prominent local labor leaders, to this a number of communications among them officers high in the Federated Trades Assembly, endorsing the candidacy of Mr. Hagberg, were received by Governor Johnson.

Nervous Headache.

The Cause of Much Suffering to Women is Permanently Cured When the System is Built Up By

DR. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE PILLS.

When the head aches hard and throbs; when the neck and eyes grow stiff, the face flushes or grows deadly white; when any excitement or over effort brings on an attack of nervous headache so severe that it leaves you weak, tremulous, shaky and utterly worthless for days, it is a certain indication that the nervous system is shattered; that restorative power is gone; that you need a medicine that will rebuild and re-supply the system with force, that will so strengthen you that you can resist and overcome these terrible seizures. Such a medicine is Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills, a medicine that does not relieve but goes to the root of the trouble and positively cures.

Mrs. John Fall, of Fourth St., Toronto, O., says:

"I like Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills because they cured my nervous sick headache—these headaches used to play me out and leave me weak and nervous, the pain being so severe. My eyes used to get stiff and sore during the attack and the neck so stiff I could hardly turn it. The Nerve Pills, however, proved to be just what I needed, and cured the attacks in a hurry. As a result, I feel steady in nerves, physically strong and vigorous, and in every way sound and well. This makes me feel I can't speak too highly of the medicine." 50 cents a box, at dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For the full name and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on every package. For sale in Duluth by all druggists.

give better all-round satisfaction to the labor interests, and accordingly handed the plum to the Duluth man.

Mr. Hagberg has been a resident of Duluth since 1885. In February, 1889, he was one of five who met and organized a tailors' union here. December 3, 1889, he was elected secretary of the organization, and has ever since been known as a union man, standing fearlessly in favor of organized labor at all times. For a time Mr. Hagberg was register of deeds in St. Louis county.

The federation council of the State Federation of Labor held a regular meeting last Sunday. C. W. Douglas was appointed to keep track of labor legislation in the state legislature.

A state advisory initiative and advisory referendum bill to be presented to the legislature next week, is now being prepared.

The local plasterers' union has elected the following officers for the coming year: President, C. W. Douglas; vice president, Charles McDonald; recording secretary, W. J. Watts; financial secretary and treasurer, Edward Perotti; delegates to the Building Trades' council, Samuel Maghan, C. Stromberg and L. Carson. The regular meeting night of the union has changed from Monday to Wednesday, second and fourth each month.

James Walsh, James Bishop and Martin Cole are attending the annual convention of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association, now in session at Detroit, Mich.

Henry Perena, president of the Federated Trades assembly, has severed his connection with the Ron Fernandez Cigar company, after having been employed by the concern for the past five years. It is understood that Mr. Perena will remain in the city, entering the employ of another firm.

A. J. Lyle, a member of the Bolle-mer union, is a candidate for alderman from the Fourth ward.

The Retail Clerks' union has elected the following officers: President, W. F. C. Hegg; first vice president, E. North; second vice president, Matt Haller; recording secretary, Frank George; financial secretary, Edward Hoch; treasurer, J. M. Kennedy; delegates to the Trades assembly, Victor Johnson, C. W. F. IS FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER IN SIX MINUTES.

Kansas City, Jan. 14.—After deliberating six minutes, a jury in the criminal court last night found in a verdict of murder in the first degree against Frank Hottman, who was tried for complicity in the killing of Clarence Meyers, a printer, on the night of May 10 last. Mrs. Sada Meyers, widow of the murdered man, is in jail awaiting trial for the same crime. Hottman was convicted upon his own confession, which was the testimony upon which the prosecution based its case. In his confession Hottman said that he was admitted to the MEYERS residence late at night by Mrs. Meyers and armed with a billiard cue he went to the bed where Clarence Meyers was sleeping and struck the prostrate man on the head. Meyers jumped up and fought his assailant, and as he called to his wife for aid, she assisted Hottman. Hottman said he had held Meyers while Mrs. Meyers slashed the helpless man with a razor and afterward jabbed him in the back repeatedly with a pair of scissors.

The defection in the ranks of the association came after a long session in which the arguments were at times torrid and the parliamentary tangles were so frequent and so complex that it was impossible to follow them.

THE IRON ORE TRADE.

Almost No Unsold Ore at Lake Erie.

Cleveland, Jan. 14.—The Iron Trade Review says: Buyers are not complaining about the prices, recently established—old range Bessemer, $3.75; Mesabi Bessemer, $3.50; old range non-Bessemer, $3.25; Mesabi non-Bessemer, $3. Some are frank enough to say that they expect prices to be 25 cents higher than those now asked. There is, however, not much buying at present either on shipment after May 1 or from docks. There is almost no unsold ore at Lake Erie ports.

STATE PENSION WORK RAPIDLY INCREASING.

St. Paul, Jan. 14.—An increase during the past two years of 500 per cent in the pension work of the adjutant general's department is shown in the biennial report of Adj.-Gen. E. D. Libbey, just made public.

A total of 982 claims were granted during the two years, representing an annual income to pensioners of $11,856. During 1901 and 1902, 234 claims, representing annually $4,620 to the pensioners, were secured.

A total of 1282 Minnesota claims were filed with the pension bureau at Washington during the past two years, through the adjutant general's office, and the percentage of claims allowed is slightly more than 50 per cent. Only 24 claims were finally rejected and many of these are still pending on appeal or petition for review.

The largest number of claims filed and the greatest percentage of claims allowed were obtained under the so-called dependent pension bill of 1890. In this class, of 676 claims, filed, were allowed. A total of 244 pensions was secured under the original invalid act of 1890, and other claims incurred in service in the Spanish, Mexican and Indian wars, make up the total. A total of 26 claims for arrangements of pay in the Spanish war and four in the civil war have been secured.

Urgent Need for Pe-ru-na in Every State.

CATARRH is a prevalent disease throughout the United States. Catarrhal diseases are the cause of at least one-half of the deaths.

A careful compilation made from the United States mortal statistics shows the relative frequency of catarrhal diseases in the various states and territories.

This map has been prepared at great expense and care, and indicates by the light shading those sections of the United States least subject to catarrh, and the darker shades those localities most subject.

Catarrhal diseases are the persistent bane of our climate. It is the one disease which prevails winter and summer, east and west, north and south.

To devise a remedy which should meet the perpetual plague has been the lifelong ambition of Dr. Hartman.

His fame in the treatment of catarrhal diseases is known everywhere throughout the civilized world.

The compound, Peruna, was not devised in a moment, nor hastily contrived. It is the result of years of experience and study. It is the greatest medicinal achievement of the age.

WEEK VERY QUIET IN REAL ESTATE

Few Trades Brought to Consumption Though the Inquiry Is Generally Reported Good—A. M. Miller Buys West First Street Property at Corner of First Avenue.

That there have been few trades in local realty this past week is not because of any lack of inquiry. It is due, rather to the fact that a number of negotiations pending are not yet ready to announce, so the parties concerned claim. There is known to be a number of quite important deals in this condition, and it begins to look as if the real business for January will not make a showing until the month fairly closes.

The reported sales of the week, however, include a First street business location, and some East End residence property.

The sale of the northwest corner of First street and First avenue west, by J. P. Gilbert to A. M. Miller, marks another important transfer of West First street property, whether it be for improvement in the near future, as is rumored, or whether it be purchased for an investment. The consideration was $22,000. The property is bounded by First street, First avenue west, and the double house on the southwest corner of Sixteenth avenue east and First street, for $6500. The property is described as lot 8, block 58, East End, and was formerly occupied under lease by John Panton. Mr. Ziegler's purchase is looked on as an excellent deal.

An East End residence sale that is of interest is the transfer from Dr. G. W. Davis to E. E. Ziegler, of the American Heating company, of the double house on the southwest corner of Sixteenth avenue east and First street, for $6500. The property is described as lot 8, block 58, East End, and was formerly occupied under lease by John Panton. Mr. Ziegler's purchase is looked on as an excellent deal.

The cold weather of the past week or more has put a stop to outside work on construction of the new building in the process of erection. In some instances the work has progressed so far that the openings in the roof and the inside work is being accomplished. Contractors are not looking forward to much outside work for the next six weeks or so.

A transfer was recorded this week of several lots in blocks 58 and 59, London division, running from C. H. Quinn to W. J. Quinn, the consideration being $2000.

Local agencies report a fairly good loan business this past week. The settlement among those who are handling the loan business of local and outside parties is that the demand for building loans will be even stronger this coming spring and summer than it was last season. Inquiry already made at the various banks and loan companies indicates that a great many people are contemplating building loans.

William Fawcett has been given the contract for constructing a store and flat building for A. Abalan, on plans furnished by A. W. W. Buck.

The board of water and light commissioners have decided to enlarge the Woodland pump-house and concrete foundation for the engine.

D. G. Cutler & Co.'s new warehouse on the harbor front is nearly completed. The house is 50 by 100 feet long.

The board of education has awarded the contract for the ventilating and heating plant of the new Glen Avenue school, to the Northwestern Steam boiler works of this city. The fan system of ventilating will be installed.

A delegation of the Duluth Builders' exchange attended the St. Paul Builders' exchange banquet at the Ritz hotel during the early part of this week. The affair was largely attended by delegates from similar organizations from all over the state.

Recorded transfers for the week were as follows:

Lease Lumber company to Algor Smith & Co., lot 10, block 16, London division, section 27-28-13.

George M. Phillips to Nathan Martin, lot 10, block 16, London division, section 27-28-13.

removal of the Walworth county records from Bangor to Selby, and allowing Bangor to reopen the suit.

He gave the Selby defendants a 30-day period of judgment for the purpose of perfecting an appeal.

Selby has both the court house and records which his citizens removed from Bangor in wagon. As Bangor has not shown its hand in court, having failed to appear when the case came up before Judge Smith, Selby's possession of the suit is considered not altogether secure.

Vermilion.—In a sensational case to be tried in Charles Mix county, Clay county will furnish what, no doubt, prove to be the most important testimony of all. Miss Louise Nelson, of Alsen, was a domestic in the home of Dr. Marks Joseph R. Arnold won his wife's affections. The witness in question, it is said, will virtually decide the question with her testimony, and naturally both sides were anxious to secure her. The defense won and this week Miss Nelson went to Platte to testify on behalf of the mayor.

Ray M. Stanley, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Stanley, of this city, has been appointed city attorney of Tonawanda, N. Y.

The appointment of O. W. Thompson as one of the commissioners to examine the weight and fitness of coins reserved for the United States during 1904, comes as a pleasant surprise to friends in this city. Mr. Thompson will go East about the middle of the month.

He will be the guest of Senator Kittredge at Washington on inaugural day.

Pierre.—The state land board has decided upon the following dates for offering state lands for sale this year: Union, March 14; Yankton, March 15; Bon Homme, March 16; Minnehaha, March 17; Hanson, March 20; Hutchinson, March 21; Cook, March 24; Lake, March 25; Miner, March 28; Kingsbury, March 29.

The lease day for all counties of the state except in those where lands will be offered for sale on March 22, in counties where sales are to be made the lease day will be the day following the date of sale.

A railroad accident occurred in this city on the morning of Jan. 13, at the intersection of the tracks of the Great Northern and the Duluth and Iron Range R.R. A light freight was pulling out rapidly, and as it passed a passenger train, a collision occurred.

The passenger train was struck by the freight train, and a passenger was killed. The freight train was derailed, and the engine and several cars were wrecked.

their solicitude in behalf of the government is not appreciated.

The more conservative members in the council, while they admit that they would prefer that their membership should be confined to Indians, say that they do not mean by which negroes can be excluded, and they do not expect any attempt in that direction.

The race question is as vital to the Indians as to the white people, and they look upon the negroes as their inferiors.

Neither the Creeks nor the members of any other tribe in the territory will send their children to school at the government boarding schools, and they are not in the least desirous of having their children educated by the government.

There are a number of highly educated negroes in the territory, and it is considerable to say about running the Creek government. These negroes talk Creek and English with equal fluency, and are not opposed in their ambitions except by the Southern element and descendants of old slaveholders.

LIVES SAVED

By a Lover Who Was Returning Home Late.

Titusville, Pa., Jan. 14.—Residents of Hyattstown, near here, owe their lives to the fact that a young man was sitting up late with his sweetheart the other night. Had he been asleep, like the majority of the citizens, many would have been killed by asphyxiation.

A large number of the houses in that town are heated by natural gas, the citizens allowing the heaters to burn all night. The lover in question noticed that the gas went out suddenly, and at once set out to arouse the sleeping inhabitants, into whose houses the gas was again pouring after being shut off.

The Federal Gas company of Faunecetown has explained the occurrence by saying that the gas went out because of their main pipes necessitating a shut-down for a few minutes. The gallant lover's act has earned him the gratitude of the public.

MISER'S HOARD FOUND.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 14.—The fortune of John Dues, the Hamtramck eccentric, was supposed to have been hidden at the time of his death, two weeks ago, has been found by relatives in an old chest in the room in which he died. They refuse to say just how much it amounts to. However, it is supposed that the old man kept all his money in the house with him, although he used to tell his neighbors that he put it in the bank. The old chest is believed to have contained between $75,000 and $100,000.

FASHIONABLE EVENING WRAPS

EVENING COAT WITH THE NEW SHAWL DRAPE.

Here a burnt ivory cloth is cleverly fashioned into an evening coat of approved simplicity, not a single touch of color-relief being evident. There is a yoke over the shoulders, to which the capelike skirts of the coat are applied, these being of circular cut. Scant pleats join them to the yoke, and the folds fall full and straight to the hem. The sleeve is novel in that it partakes somewhat of the dolman pattern and still maintains the coat sleeve lines. Comfortably, but not unduly full in the upper part, it is draped over the elbow to hang in loose and full folds over the forearm. An undersleeve in lace is finished with a deep wrist ruffle. Over the shoulders there is a quaint and old-fashioned folded shawl arrangement, and the shawl impression is heightened by the addition of a deep knotted fringe. This folds over the bust and is fastened with an old-fashioned rosette with a button center.

VELVET, WITH THE CAPUCHIN HOOD.

The velvet cloak, either in black or colors, is always elegant for evening wear, and while the delicate pastel tints are high in fashionable favor, the staple black receives due mod of recognition. A smart design shows the inevitable shoulder yoke concealed by a capuchin hood, which may be lifted over the head when desired. The coat is circular in cut, and exquisite appliques of real chantilly lace are posed artistically, the velvet cut away beneath and a backing of chiffon provided. These appear all around above the hem, and are used judiciously upon the hood, a border of real points d'aiguille defining the turned-up edge and also serving for the collar. The sleeve is a loose, puffy draped affair, with a row of shirring to hold it in at the wrist, this topping a loose frill of velvet lined with white satin, which is pushed back to display the handsome lace ruffles that fall down over the hand.

CHIFFON AND A CHIFFON CLOTH.

Description of Illustrations.

EVENING COAT WITH THE NEW SHAWL DRAPE.

Here a burnt ivory cloth is cleverly fashioned into an evening coat of approved simplicity, not a single touch of color-relief being evident. There is a yoke over the shoulders, to which the capelike skirts of the coat are applied, these being of circular cut. Scant pleats join them to the yoke, and the folds fall full and straight to the hem. The sleeve is novel in that it partakes somewhat of the dolman pattern and still maintains the coat sleeve lines. Comfortably, but not unduly full in the upper part, it is draped over the elbow to hang in loose and full folds over the forearm. An undersleeve in lace is finished with a deep wrist ruffle. Over the shoulders there is a quaint and old-fashioned folded shawl arrangement, and the shawl impression is heightened by the addition of a deep knotted fringe. This folds over the bust and is fastened with an old-fashioned rosette with a button center.

VELVET, WITH THE CAPUCHIN HOOD.

The velvet cloak, either in black or colors, is always elegant for evening wear, and while the delicate pastel tints are high in fashionable favor, the staple black receives due mod of recognition. A smart design shows the inevitable shoulder yoke concealed by a capuchin hood, which may be lifted over the head when desired. The coat is circular in cut, and exquisite appliques of real chantilly lace are posed artistically, the velvet cut away beneath and a backing of chiffon provided. These appear all around above the hem, and are used judiciously upon the hood, a border of real points d'aiguille defining the turned-up edge and also serving for the collar. The sleeve is a loose, puffy draped affair, with a row of shirring to hold it in at the wrist, this topping a loose frill of velvet lined with white satin, which is pushed back to display the handsome lace ruffles that fall down over the hand.

A PARISIAN EVENING COAT.

Quite the extreme of voluminousness is seen in the sleeves of this dainty Parisian creation, and this makes for a very novel note in the new styles. The coat is fitted over the shoulders by means of a shirred yoke, a clever touch being the shirred bolero which surrounds the armholes both back and front. From beneath this the skirts of the coat spring with an ever increasing fullness until the hem is reached, the back showing a graceful fullness from the center of the shoulders to below the waistline. The front is single-breasted, the fastening effected with a little vest of velvet, exquisitely braided in felle and gold soutache. The sleeves are a succession of puffs, velvet alternating with cloth, and a dressy design is attained in the lace flounces that appear under each puff. The braiding design is carried out in the hem and the side seams, and long tie strings of braid with military tassels are drawn around the neck, knotted beneath the chin, and fall almost to the feet in front.

CHIFFON AND A CHIFFON CLOTH.

Here the double chiffon—the thick, heavy and yet sheer weave in this usually perishable fabric—and the chiffon broadcloth are combined with delightful results, the best qualities of both showing up well. The body of the coat is altogether of shirred chiffon alternating with an entredeux of Italian guipure, and this extends over the upper part of the sleeve giving the impression of a cape. The body of the coat is applied below the bust, and follows the circular lines that appear in the best productions, hanging in widening folds almost to the feet. The sleeve is plain in the upper portion, but fashionably full from there to the wrist, where a smart cuff holds a multitude of wrist ruffles and adds the fullness of the sleeve in place.

REMINISCENT OF THE EMPIRE MODES.

The lines of this smart evening wrap are distinctly reminiscent of the empire modes, with the broad shoulder, the puffy sleeve and the markedly short waistline. Knife pleating, pressed but not stitched down, is cleverly manipulated to form the body yoke, and to extend over the sleeve to the elbow, which aids in the impression of broadness in the shoulders. The sleeve is trimmed and defined with a band of silk with cut-out appliques of cloth, the silk being a deep rose and the cloth the same color as the coat.

The skirts are cut somewhat circular, the fullness being massed in the center back and front, where the yoke is cut out in an inverted V. There is a high-standing military collar of the applique work, and it likewise defines the front, and is placed at either side of the fullness in panel fashion. The sleeve is merely a very full puff, banded at the wrist, and carried over the ruffle of cloth, topping a double one of lace that falls over the hand.

The New Corset and the New Figure.

The Changing Lines of Fashion Demand Some Alterations In the Lines of Miladi's Figure.

What with the passing of the blouse and the arrival of the more fitted line in costume, the woman who likes to keep up to date in her dress has realized that the time has come to talk of new corsets, even if she be not going to order them until she decides upon her spring wardrobe.

So long as the blouse reigned supreme—and its reign was a long and a triumphant one—the fit of the corset at the waist and above the waist did not matter so very much; so the corsetiers concentrated all their best efforts towards making the hip line long and sloping, and ably were they seconded in this by the closely fitted skirts which made such a corset line a prime necessity.

But although the blouse cannot yet be truly declared passe, there is no doubt that its days, as a bouffant blouse, are numbered. And with it will vanish that corset which showed about one-third of its dimensions above the waist line and the remainder below. The blouse and the corset were ever at enmity, for the blouse encouraged the don't care attitude in the wearer of the corset, and the lines of her figure hidden there was but little or no temptation for her to indulge in expensive specialties in the corset line. All this, though, presupposes that the wearer is a woman of what is known as average figure.

But in these latter days there is evident a decided change. The more fitted lines of the gown call for a higher and a much firmer bust line, and a better length from underarm to the waist. In addition the waist itself is expected to become an inch or two smaller; although the retention of the straight front will prevent the oldtime hour-glass figure from ever reappearing upon the boards.

It is the plump and the moderately stout figures that will welcome this change. The slender girl, she to whom the blouse and its carelessly loose lines that were so graciously becoming, she will have to betake herself to the corset counter, and there make selection

Of course, it is the woman of very slender figure who will feel the irony of fate in the new models, since she cannot possibly afford to compress her figure even in the slightest; and neither can she continue to wear the corset with loose, wide proportions above the waist and closely fitted below.

Flesh cannot be grown at fashion's demand overnight, no matter how much one may desire it; and the fashions current, and to come, demand a goodly padding of flesh upon one's bones. The up-to-date figure is somewhat fleshy; the days of beautiful bones are over. And hence the woman with the up-to-date corset and the behind-the-times figure wherewith to fill it will avail herself gladly of the many clever contrivances which are displayed upon the retail counters, openly and unashamed.

The little heart-shaped pad which was used with the first of the low-cut straight-fronts has expanded itself until now the two lobes or sides project well into the bust portion on either side. Originally designed to keep the corset steel from cutting into the breast, it now lends its aid to make the bust line firmer and stronger.

The little bolster-shaped pads of silk or satin ribbon, filled with cotton and daintily sacheted, are now bigger than ever before, and they, too, are used to fill out the bust line for the too-slender girl.

There is a clever contrivance on the market which combines the double office of dress shield and bust padding. Fashioned somewhat upon bolero lines, the dress and corset shield—for the one article does double duty here—is inserted in the arm size. The bolero is fashioned to tie across the bust with a handsome satin ribbon, and there are pockets in the inside to be filled with scented pillow hair or padding; and an extra pocket is provided wherein jewels and valuables may be carried safely. A snap fastener is used for this.

The corsets themselves are getting more luxurious in materials with each new model. The Pompadour ribbons are often employed, but chiefly for the smaller numbers. Exquisitely dainty designs in batiste broche and in silk brocades show embroidered sprays of rosebuds, forget-me-nots, jasmine and other small flowers in the natural colors upon delicately tinted grounds. One pink moire silk is covered with a sheer Breton net with delightful effect; and all of the moire patterns are used. All of the new materials are light in weight and fine in quality; and there is little call for the heavy jeans and coutilles which formerly were deemed serviceable.

Where Lace and Silk Hold Sway

An allover pattern in renaissance hand-made lace is used for the body part of the elegant evening cloak, a backing of double chiffon—which is so often mis-called chiffon cloth, a term which belongs to the broadcloth weaves—serving to veil the white satin lining and throw the hand-wrought pattern into relief. The coat is extremely full and loose, no pretense being made to fit the figure, save over the shoulders, where a yoke serves to make a smooth fit and act as a foundation to which the full folds of the coat are applied. An exquisitely fine pattern in Chantilly is accented pleated and posed over plisse chiffon with a ruffled edge, this making a cape design over the shoulders, forming a frill all around the hem, and making a cascade down either side of the side seam, where the full and puffy sleeves are inserted, these being put in dolman fashion. The sleeves themselves are of plain black chiffon over white and finished with a chiffon frill. Handsome appliques in a coarse Russian guipure are placed on the shoulders with excellent effect, and an edging of Irish crochet edges either side of the fronts. In spite of the many characters of lace used the result is anything but patchy or scrappy; rather is it one of a cleverly diversified elegance.

The question of an evening wrap is a vexed and a vexing one in many wardrobes. It is argued, and often rightly, that there is scarcely sufficient occasion for an elaborate one, and yet there are undoubtedly occasions and occasions enough to make their purchase a matter of necessity, of expediency rather than extravagance.

The novelties offered this season are certainly enough to tempt the purse of a miser. And they are all of them of the extremely loose variety, the kind which makes no pretense whatever of defining or even of suggesting the outlines of the figure. Rather are they of the disguising variety, for, apart from the requisite smooth fit over the shoulders, the rest of the coat might fit anybody.

And herein, perhaps, lies their chief charm. Full and fuller still must the outline from shoulder to hem be, the folds describing an ever widening circle. Indeed, many of the coats are merely capes with a yoke and sleeves very cleverly inserted, and a width at the hem of not less than a half dozen yards, and if in excess of this, so much the better.

The richest of materials are called upon for these luxurious trappings. Velvet, both of the chiffon and the mouseline weaves; and velveteens of the same character for the less expensive purse. Silks, too, of the heavier orders, such as faille française, ottoman, the pompadour brocades, in which floral designs are thrown in dull blurred tints in genuine velvet upon the rich, plain satin background, and here and there a rich brocade of the olden time.

Cloths, too, come in for their share of recognition, and it is the sheer and supple weaves that are the most favored. The chiffon cloth in the many tones of white—there are at least to distinct and different shades of white to be found upon the up-to-date retailer's counters—and in all of the faint pastel shades are garnished with exquisite braids, many of them rivaling the coarser laces in fineness and intricacy of design.

The velvet wrap is a luxurious possession when made according to the best ideas now prevailing. That it must be full and voluminous goes without saying. One very smart garment in half-length has a yoke in the lining only, the outside being covered with a beautiful piece of chinchilla. To this the velvet cape is applied in the fullest of full folds, so full that they hang in what we used to term organ-pipe folds from shoulder to hem, which in this instance is about halfway below the knee. In some mysterious way there are sleeves inserted pretty close to the front fastenings, and so cleverly are they managed that when the arm hangs down there is little or no trace of the sleeve discernible. It is only when the arm is raised that the sleeve is seen and appreciated.

thickly corded and a band of real point d'aiguille simply tacked on, a similar band serving for the collar. This smart hood may be drawn over the head when desired, and adds a utilitarian note to the really exquisite wrap of which it is a fascinating feature.

The very fact that all of the accepted designs are of the loose order makes the amateur dressmaker ambitious to reproduce some one or another of the many models that have caught her eye and pleased her fancy. It will pay to get a pattern cut in crinoline from some one or another of the houses which make a specialty of this, for the inexpensive paper patterns are usually lacking in that chic which distinguishes the cleverly constructed garment. Both lining and coat are cut upon exactly the same lines, and the interfacing must be of little bulk, but equally full. Where an interfacing is used the back, the underarm and where the darts would be in the lining if they were used must be pieced flat, to allow of some fullness in the lining to accommodate the interfacing. This is a wrinkle which the best tailors follow, and a better-setting garment results.

Many of the newest are furnished with a hood, round or pointed, to hang in the back, and which will offer protection to the head without at all disturbing the coiffure while en route from theater or entertainment.

A FORTUNE IN SCRAP IRON.

Unsightly Heap In Yards of the Duluth Metal and Iron Company Worth Many Thousands of Dollars.

Few persons who have had occasion to pass along Michigan street, in the rear of the city hall, during the last few months, realize that the unsightly piles of scrap iron lying in the yards of the Duluth Iron and Metal Company represent a fortune that would make a family independently wealthy.

The clerks and city officials in the city hall have watched the piles steadily accumulating since last summer.

M. ZALK,
Head of the Duluth Iron and Metal Company.

and one day last week bets were made as to the quantity of iron contained in the heap. The guesses ranged all the way from a few hundred tons to 50,000 tons, and finally one of the city officials was deputed to ask Mr. Zalk, the president of the company, as to the amount of iron contained in the piles.

Mr. Zalk stated that the piles contained between 5000 and 10,000 tons. Piled into cars it would make a train three miles and a half in length. Valued at $18 a ton it is worth $180,000.

A search among the piles will reveal almost any article made of iron that the imagination can conjure up, from a coupling pin to a locomotive. Mills are supplied with machinery, logging railroads with rails, and locomotives, factories with tools, and private citizens with almost anything they desire, from these seemingly inexhaustible piles.

A few weeks ago the Duluth and Northern railroad, a logging road, needed 200 tons of rails at short notice. A hurry-up order was sent into the Duluth Iron and Metal Company. One hundred boxes were backed into the yards and loaded as rapidly as a large crew of men could pile the rails into them. The order was filled without difficulty and still left a good-sized pile on the dock.

The same day a heavy monkey wrench was needed in a hurry by the custodian of the city hall. He ran across the road to the scrap pile and a moment's search revealed just the article he desired. He paid 15 cents for it, applied a little kerosene to the rusted screw and it worked as well as a new one.

The company has the largest scrap heap in Duluth. Buyers are kept constantly busy on the ranges and throughout the West buying second hand machinery and scrap iron from the mills, factories and railroads. It is all shipped into Duluth and thrown on to the heap.

Here it is stored until shipped East to the rolling mills, axle works and bar iron mills, where it is melted over and made into new material. A great deal of it goes to Chicago and Sharon, Penn. St. Louis is also a large buyer. The company now handles about 200 cars a month, or about 4000 tons.

Practically all of the rails for the Duluth & Northeastern road, and about half of those on the Aiger & Smith road were furnished by the company.

In connection with the talk of establishing a rolling mill in Duluth, Mr. Zalk was asked if he could supply it with scrap. "Easily," he replied.

The Golden Rule and "The Son of Royal Langbrith" might never have been written. On the other hand, the newsmen, though he or she may realize that years will be needed to build up a literary reputation of the first rank, has the consolation of knowing that the distinction of being the author of the best selling novel in the United States and the accruing advantages are, in a measure, open to him.

While it is, of course, impossible to predict with any degree of accuracy what a year will bring forth, there are certain men and women writing to whom we can point as authors whose books will be found on the list for the coming year. The first of these is Mr. Churchill, for instance. We do not rank Mr. Churchill very high as a novelist, but we ascribe to him a very rare knowledge of the resources and limitations of the American reading public. We have no hesitation in predicting that his early summer novel of 1906, "The Clansman," will be a new record.

It will be instantly in great demand. The second of the list is Mr. John Fox, Jr., with "The Clansman," a novel of the Reconstruction, which will be a new record. The third of the list is Mr. John Fox, Jr., with "The Clansman," a novel of the Reconstruction, which will be a new record.

The first novel of 1905 is "The Clansman" by Thomas Dixon, Jr., which will be brought out by the Page & Co. This book is the second of the trilogy of Southern novels, the first of which was "The Leopard's Spots." In the new novel, Mr. Dixon interprets the real purpose and spirit of the Ku Klux Klan, which brought law and order out of the chaos of the Reconstruction. One of the leading figures is Abraham Lincoln, who is portrayed as a man of the South. The South is the principal character. The impeachment trial of Andrew Johnson furnishes one of the strongest scenes in the book. The book begins at Washington on the day of the Appomattox surrender.

Harold MacGrath, whose gay comedy novel, "The Man on the Box," has been a success, has a new one, "The Man on the Box," which will be a new record. The third of the list is Mr. John Fox, Jr., with "The Clansman," a novel of the Reconstruction, which will be a new record.

In view of the thoroughly pleasing results being secured at the Aloket, it seems rather strange that nothing has been done as yet in the way of planning work for the Seneca, which has the extension of the Seneca lake, and ought to make a mine.

Miskewick is to be worked more vigorously than the Seneca, thus permitting more advantageous operations. For the limited amount of work done, the Miskewick gives a very satisfactory showing. The Bohemian Mountain pool is to do some exploratory work also, and this will be watched with deep interest, as the location is some distance from the nearest point at which serious mining has been done within the past forty years.

The LATEST BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

It is unquestionably a fine thing to be ranked among the very highest in the literary world, yet a study of the "best selling books" of the past five years shows that the stars of the first magnitude have not nearly had things all their own way, says The Bookman.

The names of such men as George Meredith, Thomas Hardy, Rudyard Kipling, J. M. Barrie, Henry James and William Dean Howells look very impressive in print; yet somehow when the leading houses come out with their monthly reports on the local literary market, the names of these men are not in favor of scribes of lesser distinction and narrower fame. During the last twelve months Mr. James, Mr. Kipling and Mr. Howells have not been idle, yet so far as these reports are concerned, "Traffics and Discoveries," "The Golden Rule" and "The Son of Royal Langbrith" might never have been written. On the other hand, the newsmen, though he or she may realize that years will be needed to build up a literary reputation of the first rank, has the consolation of knowing that the distinction of being the author of the best selling novel in the United States and the accruing advantages are, in a measure, open to him.

lakes, over mountains, through valleys, swiped apples, hung up their saddles in quaint old villages and "lollied" the milkmaids out of gossamer of white netting. And they came home, says Mr. McGrath, "tired, travel-stained, happy and busted."

That wonderful book, "The Simple Life," by Pastor Charles Wagner, which is the most widely read and most thoroughly-discussed work of the present day, has stimulated curiosity in the writings of the same author. His admirers will therefore be pleased to learn that the J. S. Ogilvie Publishing Company, of New York, have just issued another of Mr. Wagner's books. It is entitled "The Husky Life; or, The Conquest of Energy." The purpose of the book is to instill into the public mind, with special reference to young people, those qualities of heart and mind which are calculated to inspire hope and confidence in a struggling soul; to promote courage and strength in the performance of our daily duties; and to teach that energy is virtue in itself. This book contains many valuable moral lessons, and its style is eminently interesting and readable.

Christine Terhune Herick, author of "The Export Mail-Servant," was able to bring to bear a remarkably amount of personal experience when writing that very successful little household manual. Her own knowledge of domestic problems, added to that gained from her mother, Marion Harland, is very great, and supplies her with a number of delightful anecdotes. In a recent letter to a friend she writes: "I had a colored maid a year or so ago to whom my Virgin blood and ancestry appealed mightily. She had the sense of allegiance strongly developed, and took a great pride in the fact that we burned candles at dinner, used our good china and silver everyday, and were a bit fussy about the waiting."

She told us the way her 'home-folks' did. 'You know, Mrs. Herick, ma'am, I was raised by de Randolphs, and dey's got dey names in hist'ry. One day I asked her jokingly how it worked for their living. (My friend Eleanor Hoyt was then living with me.) 'Dey's never lived with no one before.' 'No'm, I ain't never lived befo' with ladies what wuks fo' a livin', but here's what I say, ma'am. What I say is, I say it takes intelligence to do dem things. That's what I say, ma'am. I tells it everybody.'"

"She had evidently found it necessary to defend us when talking to her employers!"

"Mine and Thine," by Florence Earle Coates, is a collection of very readable poems, taken from the magazine where they were originally published. The poet has gathered these graceful, sweet verses have appeared in such publications as Harper's, the Century, Scribner's, the Reader's Digest, and the Atlantic Monthly. It is sufficient recommendation to those who are not familiar with this writer's poetry. The book is published by Houghton, Mifflin & Company, is very daintily bound in pale green and white.

Those who know Alan Dale as one of the cleverest dramatic critics in New York, will be agreeably surprised by his appearance as a humorous writer. In his humor is overflowing. Published by the Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.

In "The Voice of Nature," by Charles Wagner, we have a fitting companion to "The Simple Life." It is a collection of twelve stories, each a book. It is like the spicy breath from a pine-covered mountain, set to the music of murmuring waters, and perfumed by the opening flowers. "The Voice of Nature" is a noble book from every point of view. The author takes as his text for discussion the most commonplace and everyday occurrences, and describes them with such clearness and minuteness that no one who reads can help saying: "I have seen just those things and thought just as he does."

In this book Mr. Wagner has come even closer to the people than he did in "Simple Life." He never preaches nor talks a moral to what he says, but presents it in such a way that the deeper meanings seem to lie bared before the reader's eyes. Published by the J. S. Ogilvie company, New York.

There are times when the laughing hyena finds himself provoked to tears; even if he does not shed them. One of these is when he is beguiled into a certain kind of home-made trap which he has set for a farmer's boy. It is described by P. L. Wessels in the "Youth's Companion" for Jan. 9.

The twelve stories, nearly all of them illustrated, in the American Boy for January ought to make the boys' favorite. These stories are of the most varied, so that every sort of a boy ought to be pleased. Their titles are: "Up a Limb," "The Boy Who Wasn't," "A Japanese-Russian war story," "The Scorp of the Bald Eagle," a newspaper story; "The President's Cade," a story of Gen. Grant; "Pablo Marsical," a Spanish-American story; "The Wire Fence Telephon," a farm story; "The Farmer's Boy," a story of a boy who was a farmer's boy; "The Pilot Boys of Norway," a sea story; "A Race With a Stampede," a story of a stampede; "Sufficient Unto the Day," a humorous story; "One of the Most

Every mother feels a great dread of the pain and danger attendant upon the most critical period of her life. Becoming a mother should be a source of joy to all, but the suffering and danger incident to the ordeal makes its anticipation one of misery. Mother's Friend is the only remedy which relieves women of the great pain and danger of maternity; this hour which is dreaded as woman's severest trial is not only made painless, but all the danger is avoided by its use. Those who use this remedy are no longer despondent or gloomy; nervousness, nausea and other distressing conditions are overcome, the system is made ready for the coming event, and the serious accidents so common to the critical hour are obviated by the use of Mother's Friend. "It is worth its weight in gold," says many who have used it. $1.00 per bottle at drug stores. Glorious Deeds Ever Done by a Boy. A story of heroism.

Among the notable features of the Argonaut for Jan. 9 (a twenty-page, illustrated number), are "Fetotic Peculiarities," an interesting and amusing article by Jerome Hart, who comments on the idiosyncrasies of the German language; "A New Year's Eve," an unusually good story, by John Fleming Wilson; "Nance O'Neil in New York," a letter from Geraldine Bonner, and criticisms of "The Sultan of Sulu," at the Columbia theater, and "Old Heidelberg," at the Alexander theater, by Josephine Hart Phelps.

One merit of Jiu-Jitsu, the Japanese system of self-defense, is that it may be mastered and utilized by women as well as by men. How the craze for acquiring skill in this art has spread from among the society women of London to those of American cities is told in an interesting article in the current number of Leslie's Weekly, by Irving Hancock, who also details the various devices the fair athlete may use in protecting herself. A page of photographs adds clearness to the statements of the text. Three pages of the number, including the front, are given up to striking pictures (with an article) bearing on the capture of Port Arthur by the Japanese after the bloodiest siege of modern times.

The new ore body which was recently discovered in the first level of the 30 Dandy mine on Haven hill, is proving to be a wonder. The face of the body now shows from eight to twelve feet in width and indicates that it will average around four ounces to the ton. The ore has never been opened above the point of finding, and it has already added thousands of dollars to the value of the property that was quite recently purchased by J. M. Wright, of Cripple Creek, for the sum of $100,000, and on which a few days later he refused a bonus of $50,000 for his purchase. The new owner has now installed a large washing machine in the ore house and it is his intention to wash every pound of ore that is raised from the mine. It will be only a few days now until he is sending out a large production of ore, as he is adding daily to his force of miners.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Jan. 14.—The report that the Bull Hill estate of the Stratton company was to be sold has been current, and it was understood that it was to be turned over to some well-known people. It was reported that the Guggenheim Exploration company and the Venture corporation were the bidders, and it was said that the price to be paid was approximately $7,000,000.

IN COPPER CIRCLES

Deepest Vertical Shaft In the World Is at Tamarack.

Experiments With Compounded Stamp Heads Are Successful.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald).—The accident of Tuesday, by which four men were killed and two others badly hurt, at the Victoria mine, calls attention to the risks that are inseparable from mining. The Victoria has a careful management, the superintendent being a practical miner of forty years' experience, and every known precaution is taken to insure the safety of life and limb to employees. The wire cable used in hoisting the double cages in the shaft being sunk for power purposes was in good condition and had been tested shortly before the accident. Owing to the cold weather, one of the cages, resting at the top of the shaft, was frozen fast, and when the other cage was started from the bottom, the top cage held fast, instead of descending, the cages being worked in counterbalance. The top cage finally fell, and the strain was too much for the cable, which broke, and the falling cage struck and carried down the cage that was ascending. No seriously similar accident ever has occurred before in the district, and, perhaps, never will occur again. The accident, however, is an illustration of the ever-present dangers of mining, which cannot be avoided where thousands of men are working in mines ranging up to nearly one mile in depth.

The deepest vertical shaft of the district, or, for that matter, of the world, is No. 5 shaft of the Tamarack, which is 400 feet in depth. The Red Jacket shaft of the Calumet & Hecla is but ten feet shallower, and Nos. 3 and 4 shafts of the Tamarack, also vertical, are each more than 350 feet in depth. Some of the shafts are of the Calumet & Hecla are a mile in depth, and No. 4 Calumet shaft of the Calumet & Hecla, sunk at an angle of 27 degrees, 20 minutes, on the Calumet conglomerate stratum, is 810 feet in depth—more than one and one-half miles. From the nature of things, accidents will happen at times, in spite of the rigid precautions taken, and these are apt to be of a gruesome sort, the remains of a miner who has fallen a thousand or two feet not being a pleasant sight to look upon. It is a remarkable fact, however, that no man can fall from the top to the bottom of one of the deep vertical shafts of the lake district, except in a cage. This has been demonstrated by careful experiments, covering some weeks, conducted by officials of the United States, No. 5 shaft of the Tamarack. Steel balls were suspended over the exact center of the shaft openings, brought to perfect rest and dropped by burning the threads holding them, so that they started straight toward the center of the earth, in the line of the shaft, but in every case the balls swerved and lodged on the timbering after falling 1000 to 2000 feet. This experiment caused considerable discussion among scientists when made, and various theories were propounded to explain the occurrence, the most plausible being that the deflection of the balls in their downward passage was brought about by the rotation of the earth.

The new stamps at the Calumet & Hecla mills are fitted with fligs attached direct to the heads, and with novel devices for the discharge of coarse copper. This departure was not decided upon until exhaustive trials of experimental heads had permitted the perfection of the attachments. Trial heads designed by Nordberg and by Leavitt are to be set up side by side in the new mill and given the most exhaustive tests for duty ever performed in the district. Messrs. E. D. Leavitt and Bruno V. Nordberg, who will plan these stamps, are noted designers of heavy mining machinery, and the copper country is short of a revolution is to be won on the machinery of each is that Nordberg's is too light and Leavitt's too complicated.

The successful experiments with compounded stamp heads at the Calumet and other mills of the district render it certain that something like short of a revolution is to be won in the milling practice of the district during the next two or three years. The power consumption of the compounded head is so much less per ton of rock stamped than necessity will drive all the progressive mining companies to compound their stamps, and the saving of power and water on a common head to a steep compound is about $10,000, as compared with $15,000 for original cost, so that there is little saving over putting in an entirely new head. A feature that has escaped general attention is the fact that compound stamps will necessitate an entire alteration of the balance of the mill. An increase of 40 to 50 per cent in crushing capacity must be followed by an increase of equal amount in the washing department, or else there will be a very inefficient saving of copper. More fligs and concentrators will be needed, and this will require more room, meaning remodeling of the mill, either by cutting down the number of stamps in a given space, or providing new wash-rooms for the fligs.

Few of the simple heads now working in the district are run to their full stamping capacity, solely for the reason that while an increase of 20 per cent in output is possible in many cases, the actual recovery of copper in the average mill is no greater when 600 tons are crushed than when 500 tons are stamped, showing that the washing machinery, being planned for the smaller amount, simply loses every pound of copper contained in the excess rock stamped. This is not a theory, but a fact, demonstrated by careful tests at several mills. Of course conditions vary somewhat, but as a rule the mills are speeded to their capacity, and compounding, while certain to come, will bring with it a train of problems connected with milling and jigging efficiency.

The Erie and Ontario properties are to be brought out, in a tentative way, and work started in the near future. Developments at the Challenge property of St. Mary's Mineral Land company continue satisfactory, and may lead to the resumption of work on the Globe tract in the spring. Ontonagon county, which had a black eye for several years, is more in favor with the investors again, and the success made at the Michigan, the brighter prospects of the Mass and the marked improvement made during the past year by the Adventure. It seems probable that Ontonagon county will be the scene of a considerable part of the new work of the near future.

The Alouez is sinking steadily, and will tap the lode, once by the shaft and once by crosscut, about Feb. 25. Local confidence in the property is very strong, and the bulk of the steady buying noted for the past few weeks has been for lake capital.

Amheek is shipping a larger rock tonnage to mill by reason of carrying drift-stops, instead of shipping rock broken in drifting only. The Amheek of rock stamped that necessity will drive all the progressive mining companies to compound their stamps, and the saving of power and water on a common head to a steep compound is about $10,000, as compared with $15,000 for original cost, so that there is little saving over putting in an entirely new head. Of course conditions vary somewhat, but as a rule the mills are speeded to their capacity, and compounding, while certain to come, will bring with it a train of problems connected with milling and jigging efficiency.

The Erie and Ontario properties are to be brought out, in a tentative way, and work started in the near future. Developments at the Challenge property of St. Mary's Mineral Land company continue satisfactory, and may lead to the resumption of work on the Globe tract in the spring. Ontonagon county, which had a black eye for several years, is more in favor with the investors again, and the success made at the Michigan, the brighter prospects of the Mass and the marked improvement made during the past year by the Adventure. It seems probable that Ontonagon county will be the scene of a considerable part of the new work of the near future.

The Alouez is sinking steadily, and will tap the lode, once by the shaft and once by crosscut, about Feb. 25. Local confidence in the property is very strong, and the bulk of the steady buying noted for the past few weeks has been for lake capital. of rock stamped that necessity will drive all the progressive mining companies to compound their stamps, and the saving of power and water on a common head to a steep compound is about $10,000, as compared with $15,000 for original cost, so that there is little saving over putting in an entirely new head. A feature that has escaped general attention is the fact that compound stamps will necessitate an entire alteration of the balance of the mill. An increase of 40 to 50 per cent in crushing capacity must be followed by an increase of equal amount in the washing department, or else there will be a very inefficient saving of copper. More fligs and concentrators will be needed, and this will require more room, meaning remodeling of the mill, either by cutting down the number of stamps in a given space, or providing new wash-rooms for the fligs.

Few of the simple heads now working in the district are run to their full stamping capacity, solely for the reason that while an increase of 20 per cent in output is possible in many cases, the actual recovery of copper in the average mill is no greater when 600 tons are crushed than when 500 tons are stamped, showing that the washing machinery, being planned for the smaller amount, simply loses every pound of copper contained in the excess rock stamped. This is not a theory, but a fact, demonstrated by careful tests at several mills. Of course conditions vary somewhat, but as a rule the mills are speeded to their capacity, and compounding, while certain to come, will bring with it a train of problems connected with milling and jigging efficiency.

THE BILL AT THE METROPOLITAN

During the First Half of the Week Will Be "After Midnight."

The poet calls it "the city of sleaze and tears," Dr. Parkhurst calls it "Hades with the lid off," New Yorkers call it the "Tenderloin," which is probably the most accepted name of New York's big metropolis of vice. This notorious section of the great city is shown in life-like colors in the latest melodramatic success, "After Midnight," which will be the attraction at the Metropolitan theater, three nights and one matinee, beginning Monday.

The story opens in the clean, healthy surroundings of country life in the "up-state" country of New York state. James Livingston, a plain-spoken, honest young man, who has been prosperous in his metropolis, visits his uncle in his palatial country home, and falls in love with a beautiful young girl, Emily Sherwood, in whose presence a bright lad of 18 years, supposed to be her brother, Garrett Livingston, the millionaire uncle of James and Emily, is introduced. Emily is a young and beautiful woman. In the development of the story, it is seen that James Livingston, the young man, has been secretly married before, but his former husband died, leaving her with a little son, who proves to be none other than the boy, Gerald, who married the young and beautiful Margaret, Robert, exasperated at the affection the old man bore to his young wife, and with the prospect of her inheriting all of the wealth, tries to turn his back on her. Margaret, telling him that Gerald is her illegitimate child. The elder Livingston dies from the shock, and in his will it is found he has left the bulk of his estate to his young wife, a liberal amount to James and a comparatively small legacy to Robert.

Then comes the plotting of Robert and his villainous associates to secure the property by hook or crook. The locale of the play is transferred to New York city, where finally, failing to settle the will or gain the property by law, Robert adopts drastic measures by kidnapping Emily and the boy, Gerald, with the hope that Margaret will give up the greater portion of her wealth to get the boy back. Emily, he has designed to possess for himself, and has her consigned to a disreputable resort in the Tenderloin. The two victims of his nefarious plot are rescued through the bravery of James Livingston, the good brother, and the criminals are all brought to justice. It is doubtful if two more unique scenes have ever been portrayed on the stage than that of the "school for crooks," where the boy is secreted among pick-pockets and sneak-thieves, and that of the "Gaiety" in the "Red Light District," where Emily is imprisoned among degraded women. Another realistic scene is that of the Grand Central Station in New York, where the kidnapping takes place.

"MRS. DELANEY, OF NEWPORT." Manager Condon has completed arrangements with M. B. Raymond, the well-known New York manager, for his big production, "Mrs. Delaney, of Newport," to appear at the Metropolitan theater, Jan. 21. This is one of the most pretentious presentations of its kind to be seen here in this city. It is an entirely new production, embellished with new and tasteful scenery and costumes of a richness and value entirely beyond anything usual in farce comedy. As the costuming and scenery are new, so are also the specialties, music, dances and ensembles. The entire production has been made by the management a glittering and gorgeous spectacle, and no expense has been spared to have everything of the very highest class. It is attached to it a corps of pretty girls.

"A Chinese Honeymoon" is the work of Howard Talbot and George Dance, and like its rival, New York city, when the majority of Broadway theaters were closed on account of the intense heat, the Casino theater, which was playing to capacity business—something unusual in the city—was the first to open its doors to the public. In forming theater parties, "A Chinese Honeymoon" was the first to open its doors to the public. Among the notable organizations that have seen "A Chinese Honeymoon" are the Bankers' Association of the United States, numbering nearly 200 people, and the governors of New York and Massachusetts, with their staff.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Mrs. Campbell Forced to Cancel All Her American Engagements Owing to Accident—Savage Takes His Grand Opera Company To the South.

New York, Jan. 14.—The accident to Mrs. Campbell in Philadelphia last week, when that actress broke her kneecap and had to be removed to the hospital there, has turned out to be quite serious. Though no fear of permanent injury is entertained, Mrs. Campbell's physicians say that it will be two months before she will be able to be about again. This has caused the cancellation of her American engagements and as soon as possible Mrs. Campbell will return to her home in London preparatory to giving "The Sorcerer" in London next season. Mrs. Campbell at the time of the accident was also contemplating a continental tour a season or so in the future. In which she was so successful at the beginning of her London career. If these plans are carried out this actress will play French and German adaptations of the plays, according to the prevailing language of the countries to be visited. Mrs. Campbell is a linguist and speaks four languages as fluently as she does her native tongue. She has played in French with Bernhardt, and is anxious to make her appearance in Paris.

Beginning with New Year's week, music lovers south of the Mason and Dixon line had their first opportunity to hear grand opera in English by the "Savage Grand Opera Company." In the nine operas, which have been given in New Orleans, the company has been successful in its mission. The organization will visit the principal opera-loving points on its way from Baltimore to New Orleans. After a week in the home town of French opera the company will start for St. Louis, where it will be in California, returning by Salt Lake and Denver.

The company includes Puccini's "La Bohème" and "Tosca," Verdi's "Otello" and "Traviata," Wagner's "Lohengrin" and "Tannhäuser," Carmen, Pagliacci, and "Cavalleria Rusticana." The company will also give "The Sorcerer" in New York, Richmond, Columbia, Charleston, Savannah, Augusta, Atlanta, Birmingham, Montgomery, New Orleans, Jackson, Vicksburg, Greenville and Memphis.

B. F. Keith, the millionaire vaudeville manager in the East, celebrated the new year by presenting his son, Andrew Keith, with the handsome Philadelphia Theater, which was the first of his great theatrical enterprises. Mr. Keith, who has been a successful manager of the Philadelphia Theater, is now in the city of Philadelphia, where he is expected to get under a four weeks' contract with that show. Twenty-four other suits of a similar nature are pending in Gotham, and if all are as successful as this one, it looks as if the Keiths will be a costly affair for the management.

Margaret Anglin and her company are resting in the East, preparing for the play by George Middleton, which will be given at the Metropolitan theater. Anglin is waiting for a New York opportunity in this play, which is said to be an advance on the play "The Sign of the Cross" which was played in New York last season. By the way, a title for the new play has not yet been decided upon. It is believed with Will of Avon that "a rose" is, and is not worthy much about the Word comes from Washington that Mrs. Schumann-Heink is so taken with her success in this country that she has signed her intention of taking out citizenship papers and becoming a permanent resident of America. Since the death of her husband in Germany, Mrs. Schumann-Heink says that nothing links her to the old country, and as soon as she can arrange it she will bring her children over to be educated and brought up in America.

Fay Templeton was the greater part of last week and was out of the cast at the Liberty theater, where she has just made a big personal success in the new musical comedy, "Newport." Miss Templeton denied the rumors that she had left the company, saying that her temporary retirement was due solely to an attack of bronchitis.

Raymond Hitchcock, whose wife recently secured a divorce from him, is in the rumor market. The story going the rounds is that as soon as his season in "The Yankee Consul" closes he will hurry to Paris, where he and his former prima donna, Flora Zabellie, will be married. Miss Zabellie is spending the winter in Paris with her mother.

Forbes Robertson, the English actor, who made an excellent impression last season, returned to America the past week to begin a second tour of this country. Mr. Robertson was accompanied by twenty-three English players, who will appear with him in Henry Edmond's new play, "Love and the Man." They opened in Toronto, Canada, on Monday night for a week. Mr. Robertson's wife, known professionally as Gertrude Elliott, is not with her husband this season, as she is spending the winter in Southern France, owing to her temporary retirement from the stage.

Richard Golden, of Henry W. Savage's "Common Sense Bracket" company, tells the following amusing instance of English "as she spoke." The comedian had returned from a rehearsal and was sitting reading the paper. His wife came into the room and began twisting herself around in an effort to see the back of her new blouse. The comedian, who was sitting at the table, saw her and said: "Don't tell me that I could get more light out of this than I could get from this lamp. It's a pity you can't understand plain English."

When we all get to the other side of Jordan we will find: Lillian Russell—Giving beauty talks. Julian Mitchell—Drumming. Clyde Fitch—Dramatizing the place. May Irwin—Singing comic songs, accompanied by brass band. Ted Marks—Presiding over a buttonhole bouquet. Theodore Kramer—Weeping. Edna May—Leading a Sunday school class. Maurice LeBlond—Whistling softly. Ed Rice—With a pair of opera glasses. The Wolf Hunter—Singing comic songs. Polly Chase—Sitting in pajamas. William Collier—Muttering, "I am not going away from here." Mrs. Chadwick—Remarking, "Who'd a thought."

Lillian Russell—Looking around for a new two Grand Opera. Charles Bigelow—With something on his head at last a hair.

Grace George is to leave the east of the two Grand Opera. The comedian, who has been very popular as a team in vaudeville, has become stars in a musical comedy called "Lovers and Lamentations." It is a doubling up of names, some of which were born in 1890.

Maxine Gelman, of Johnny Ford, who have been very popular as a team in vaudeville, have become stars in a musical comedy called "Lovers and Lamentations." It is a doubling up of names, some of which were born in 1890.

"Charles's Aunt" has been played 12,500 times and the acting rights after fifteen years, have been received to the author, Randolph Thomas. The play has been treated by the play in London. No other theatrical production has so long a record of performance.

Ada Rehan says she is not making a farewell tour at present, but is saying goodbye only to the smaller towns. She expects to continue playing in the larger cities for some time to come. She denies that she is an "old woman," as she avers that she was born in 1890.

"The Royal Chef" is to be done by two companies now, one not being able to supply the demand. Just why there is this demand it is impossible to guess. Lillian Russell's detumescence is that it is impossible for a brunette to be beautiful inasmuch as sixty-six per cent of the feminine population is blonde, and Lillian herself is a blonde of the most artistic sort, possibly this is announced for advertising purposes only.

Mrs. Brune, who aroused Australia to a frenzy by her fine work, has just presented a Juliet in Sydney which is claimed to be untrifled there.

Lydia Yamans-Titus and Fred Titus are doing well in Australia, where they went on a vaudeville tour recently.

The last properties of the once famous "Bostonians" have been sold at auction to satisfy a firm of music publishers. Some $10,000 worth went for $35, and that price finds to the best opera company America ever had.

"King Dodo" abdicated his throne after New Years in Cincinnati, and for the first time in some years "there is no king, not even Dodo." It wasn't making money. Rose Cecelia Shay was the Pilsa, and it was once more bad luck for her. She has a voice, ability and money, but she can't seem to make a hit.

Theodore Kramer is to write the new play for Mildred Holland for next season.

The fatal case has happened with Nat Green, who is standing on a corner in New York during his engagement there. While, by the way, his wife was playing in Portland, Ore., and a man stepped up and addressed him: "That's what I have been fearing this long time," was Nat's reply. And he went it to his wife.

"A Chinese Honeymoon" will likely be given an elaborate revival in the New York Casino this spring, as nothing better seems to have been done in the past to secure as many of the original cast as possible. Two organizations are now playing it on the road.

Ibsen's latest play, "When We Dead Awaken," was presented in New York early in February. Maurice Campbell, manager of Henrietta Crossman, has the rights. It is likely to be interpreted it.

Francis Wilson Becomes a Legitimate Comedian, With His Legs Still Antic—Clyde Fitch Fools With a Labiche Comedy.

New York, Jan. 14.—Francis Wilson in Fitch has pulled Labiche down by modernizing his work in a largely new piece called "Cousin Billy," and has pulled Wilson up by giving him a role without song or dance in it. This has been done for the Frohman purpose of making Wilson a legitimate comedian. But Wilson's legs have been left as they were. They have been left as they were, and are as presently pantomimic. Thus he still has his old antic legs to stand on in the

ATTRACTIONS AT THE LYCEUM

Charles Hawtrely in "A Message From Mars" On Tuesday and Wednesday— "A Chinese Honeymoon" On Friday and Saturday.

In "A Message From Mars" which Charles Hawtrely and his English company, numbering thirty, are to present at the Lyceum Tuesday and Wednesday, there is a reliable promise of a comedy that should receive enthusiastic welcome from all classes of theater-goers. A play that is powerful without raising any problems, wholesome while not mawkish, bright without vulgarity, funny without coarseness or clowning, and which above all tells us in an unobtrusive way a strong moral lesson, should certainly prove a most refreshing novelty. That these unusual qualities are combined in "A Message From Mars" is attested by the New York and London critics and confirmed by the phenomenal success achieved in both cities. When Charles Frohman introduced Mr. Hawtrely and his company which he has at his disposal, the Martians force him to perform several acts of benevolence. These, however, go "against the grain" and it is not until Parker is actually reduced to beggary by the failure of a bank that he feels his kinship with the rest of the human race. His reform has been assisted by a series of "object lessons" given by the Martians. These affect Minnie's love for him and include the loss of wealth and dearest friends. In this Asenodous-like manner the messenger teaches Parker to consider others as well as himself. Horace's humanity awakes. In his rage he feels sympathy and pity for an old broken-down inventor, whom in the first act he had snubbed and sent away. And the messenger rejoices as Parker sustains the almost-dying beggar in his arms in the snow. In the last act Horace is awake again, but the impression left by his dream is a deep at the Garrick theater. In New York he had allotted only eight weeks for its run, but the public demand compelled a continuance throughout the season, and the termination was then enforced by engagements Mr. Hawtrely had made to appear in London at the corporation time. Since then, Mr. Hawtrely has twice revived the play for long runs in New York. Mr. Hawtrely is unquestionably the most distinguished of England's younger light comedians. Absolute naturalness is said to be the chief characteristic and to form the greatest charm of Mr. Hawtrely's work.

There is a flavor of Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol" about "A Message From Mars." Only, instead of an old Scrooge we have Horace Parker, a selfish young man, who imagines himself to be a scientist, and who, though he does not all deserve it, possesses the affection of a sweet and pretty girl, Minnie Temple. Parker's selfishness makes him ill-bred. He refuses to accompany his devoted party because there is snow upon the ground, and he wants to stay at home to read an astronomical article in a scientific review. Minnie, disgusted at his egotism, breaks their engagement and she and her aunt go off to the party in the carriage of Arthur Dacey, a rich young man, who is one of Minnie's admirers. Then Horace sinks to sleep in his armchair and dreams that he is visited by an inhabitant of the planet Mars. The Martians, it seems, are entirely altruistic, and the messenger, having committed a certain crime, is sent to earth to reform the most selfish man on that planet. The process is a drastic one. Over-awing Horace by the dynamic power

"A CHINESE HONEYMOON."

Pretty Musical Comedy Coming Next Week.

The musical comedy, "A Chinese Honeymoon" is coming to the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday, with a matinee Saturday. Its wonderful success of three years in London and 425 performances in New York city fully demonstrates the fact that it is the real musical hit of recent years. The company is headed by John L. Kearney, Robinson Newbold, Albert Proom, George Broderick, Joseph E. Miller, Misses Georgia Bryton, Regie McAvoy, Mabel Baker, Winnie Carter, Helen Latten, Evelyn Dunmore and twenty-five others. "A Chinese Honeymoon" possesses a capital story, full of amusing matrimonial complications, escapades and intrigues. The dialogue is sparkling and witty and the music graceful and catchy. It is considered the most amusing of any comedy of this character that has been imported from beyond the ocean. As a production nothing has excelled it in the magnificence of the scenic effects provided by the management. The cast, too, is notably fine, including as it does new venture, and that is lucky for him, because they are his chief support. They carry him through it with skips, hops and jumps, where a dignified walk or even anything like a sedate run would leave him at a dead end. He never could sing, anyway, and so we don't mind that omission from his present performance, and as the customary dancing his legs are so grotesquely active that they amuse us as well as ever. He shows more of them, too. One of the scenes of the play is in Switzerland. He is making a tour of the Alps in an automobile, which gets wrecked and his clothes are torn to shreds. He borrows the costume of a Swiss guide. The trousers are too short for him, so are the stockings, and the intervening portions of his limbs are left bare. The spectator isn't engaged in them as with an actress' trimly tights, but they do provide a rare opportunity to study the knee action of the phenomenal Wilsonian legs.

Byde Fitch is being abused for "Cousin Billy," and really it is nowhere near his best work—his adaptations of foreign plays never are—but to me it seems to serve Wilson's purpose about as well as anything written to order could be expected to. The character for him is William Jenks, of Albany, Pa., on a European tour with his widowed cousin, whom he wants to marry, but she won't fix a wedding until her daughter has secured a husband. Post and Norton, young Americans, have become enamored of the girl, on the steamer over and they agree upon a fair and square competitive courtship. So they take her from France to Switzerland and thence to Pennsylvania, and the point of the contest lies in the fact that Norton, an honest hero of several episodes, loses all credit for them through the ingenious disfigurement of Post—until, of course, the truth is exposed and the right chap gets the girl. That is all there is of the plot, but there are many incidents, and they are so contrived that Wilson's figures in all of them as a fussy, vain, meddling but always laughable character.

The second new play of the week is "Once Upon a Time," and you will not see it in Cincinnati because it will die here in New York. Yet its production was in several ways diverting. Robert T. H. does the handsome actor whom you probably admired as the Japanese hero in "The Darling of Allah." He has a beautiful, energetic, and gifted wife, Genevieve Greville Haines, daughter of the titled Greville that being the family name of the Duke of Argyll. She had written "Hearts and Flowers" three years ago, brought it out at her own cost and risk, and came mighty near to making a popular success of it. The real question was, went she to see "Once Upon a Time" which she wrote for her husband, and we were disappointed for the kind, though pretty and sweet, was of no dramatic account, and besides, she had made an effort to make herself from the vantage of a man to make herself from the vantage of a woman. Of course they fall in love immediately. Thus a pretty, charming, romantic beginning is made, with the dramatic atmosphere of old Spain, told by the author and excellently conveyed to the audience, and, after a while mere atmosphere fails, and, not helped by a melodramatic abduction, the sentimentalism is a proposal by the luckless son, engages a ransom. But her lover comes and he is portly and enters into a combat with the brawny champion. When one of them is about to slay him from the rear, the girl seizes a razor and shoots wildly, putting the going to flight, but hitting her defender.

This seeming disaster proves illusory, however, the hero's affliction lasting long enough only for a flowery declaration of his love—blindness having brought a clearer sight of his own passion. His vision is restored as soon as the loss of it has served its sentimental purpose, and a conclusion plausibly indicated fifteen minutes after the play's start, is finally reached. And the last act, protracted by trivial incidents, is a here. It is at this time that about ten minutes before the fall of the curtain, that Mrs. Haines caused something like a sensation. She had been visible all evening at the play, and she was in the lovely figure in a molish gown of brown chiffon and silver spangles. She was leaning over the rail and looking intently at her husband and Miss Coghlan, who by the way, had gratified the expectation of a good performance when several persons arose the leave the parterre.

Then she ordered the ushers to shut the doors. But she made her own way to the stage in time to appear, hand in glove with her husband, smiling response to the call for the actresses when the play was done.

Lydia Thompson has reappeared in New York. Not on the stage, but in the auditorium. I have seen her at three theaters within a week. Once was at the Winter's, where she watched the acting of her daughter, Zettie Tilly, in the role of Paulina. The second time was at "Once Upon a Time," where Gertrude Coghlan was playing the heroine. Gertrude is a niece of Lydia's, stage companion of thirty years ago. Rosa Coghlan, and daughter of Charles Coghlan. The third time was at "Nordland," where she was thoroughly interested in the modern processes of extravaganza, so different from those of her own heyday. She would listen to the story of the Lew Fields how much she admired his Marie (Gill) and all the other up-to-date elements of the entertainment in which, as the star of the British comedies, she introduced show girls to America. She professed a special delight over the singing.

ing ballets which she had seen there and elsewhere in New York.

For furious activity, accompanied by music, it would be hard to outdo the Russian ballets. There always was an anti-Jew motif in that melodrama, but nothing like the one created by William A. Brady for this week's production. If I remind you that Mr. Brady used to manage prize fights, sometimes couldn't keep himself out of the ring at exciting junctures, and once reached up on his tiptoes to slap Don Fitzsimmons's face, I do merely say that you may comprehend how energetic a stage director he is. Mohr, a violent one in "The Pit," with madcap antics, gambler, tearing one another's clothes. But that was a Sunday school picnic, a Quaker convention, beside this measure of Jewish by Russia, as transferred to Kishinev for the sake of time, illness, and manifold so as to size up with the Russian war interest. The victims of the outbreak were represented by genuine Hebrews from the East Side of New York, where thousands of them are massed, and among whom it had been easy to find men of the kind and children fitted to show without any artifice of aspect, the wistful, hunted, hungry appearance of their oppressed race in Russia. So much for the passive portion of the massacre. The demonstrative element required professional actors able to assume a hateful mien, making the czar's soldiers shouting villas and the civilians in ruffian ruffs. Brady himself was the loudest and fiercest of the ruffians. By frantic words and gestures he urged the mob to use their clubs, knives, bayonets and bullets on the doomed Jews, and one enthusiastic Russ struck a blow into a Hebrew so really and truly that the wounded victim had to be sent to a hospital right off.

FRESH TROUBLES FOR SERBIA ARE PROMISED

his life. Possibly not his natural life, for there are always rumors of plots afoot, but, at any rate, if Peter goes out of Serbia uncrowned it will not be as exile, but corpse. But as to the help apparent, there is a question, and much depends on just how popular he becomes with the people. The prince is a charming fellow, rather fluid in conversation, and he is a good deal of a dandy. Under the royal box a delegation of young Croats, come on Pan-Slav business, may be seen. They are admitted to the tiny red fez which they wear into the playhouse renders them, also, distinctive.

THE BETTER CLASS.

The "pit," of course, attracts the stranger most, for it is the place of places to study the upper classes of Serbia. Ladies in shiny pinks and blues, or occasionally yellow, the most of them retaining their hats; gentlemen in frock coats, officers resplendent in dress uniforms and brilliant wearing of the flashing orders and brilliants of South Europe, and popes in somber black, make up the largest portion of the "house." The pompous of the South Slav, conspicuous for its thinness of hair, is especially noticeable, as the crowd sways in applause or hiss slightly if the desired encore be not forthcoming; while an especially praiseworthy production will cause even the most staid to shout. They are in Serbia are to be had only with seats in the lower tiers of the theater. They are wide sheets, about the size of a half page of the newspaper, and are printed upon one side only. A great glass chandelier in the center of the ceiling is the main illuminant of the playhouse, and in many places it is only with difficulty that one obtains sufficient light to read. The curtain, pictured with a scene of Serb national life, unrolls on a stage set with a grand piano only, but that adorned by two small candelabra. On its rising the stage is deserted. Then, after a few moments, a lady arrayed in a white gown, whose openwork front comes very near deserving the descriptive decollete, is escorted upon the boards, and a popular song is rendered. Next follows a violin solo. After that an operetta, in which young women, attired as harem beauties, sing and dance, and the scene is greatly appreciated. So on through the evening.

During intermission the picture plays, but no one pays any attention to it. Folk chat or eat cake, for cake seller parade round the theater. The play is on, selling their wares for immediate consumption. The first nobles of the court may be seen munching gingerbread and eating white cookies, while wrapt in interest on the play. Out in the lobby candies abound and sold in great quantities, between the performances. Theater is over at 10:30 and every one flees either to an adjoining "cafe" or else to "cafes" of a lower sort. In the former a military band discourses the Coronation March, and Serbian life is at its best. Let the band play the Serb or Pan Slav hymns, however, and every one present will instantly rise to his feet and remain in respectful silence until the music be ended. Nor do the people sing in upon the national music, as we do, but there is mute attention, while the time and the candy are permitted to wait. Throughout the evening and until 1 or 2 in the morning the picture boys presented as a lively one, and yet it lacks the fiery gesticulation we are fond of associating with Serb drama. The picture boys, however, in vogue here is especially obnoxious to the occidental, and that has to do with the treating. If one join a crowd in a Belgrade cafe for all liquors and drinks are sold in "cafes"—he may not, with propriety, excuse himself and will not be permitted to do so until every one present is ready and willing to go. Each in turn—and there may be twenty persons in such an assembly—must stand one round of the drinks. Nor can one retire by paying his round, and then bidding good night. That would be an insult to those not yet having "treated." Further, for any person not to drink to the dregs the particular round, that is, at a given time, would be insult unpardonable to the payer of that "treat" and liable to most serious misinterpretation. As a result one may be forced, in the course of an evening, to take, in rapid succession, anywhere from ten to twenty glasses of wine, brandy, or rum. For the Serb is very hospitable to the stranger, introducing him to every guest in the cafe he may chance to know, and each of these, after joining the circle who would learn of the "far distant America," insists on a round of liquor at his expense.

THE BROTHELS.

In the cafes of the lower sort, where the girls are in the thick of the smoke prevail, the orchestra is replaced by a small string band and two girls sing, collecting from the audience, as the picture boys do, after each act of the performance. Low-class soldiers are common here, and drinking goes on until almost every one present is drunk.

Once the stranger has broken away from the cafe-house crowds and reaches his hotel, he will be agreeably surprised to find that the life of the Serb is very different from that of the best hotels in the south of Europe, which, however, is crowded during festive occasions. The writer secured his room at the Grande Hotel for a week before the time, and on arrival here learned that the government, since the late, had suddenly chartered the entire hotel for its guests, and the others might look out for themselves. Correspondents were to be taken at once to the department of foreign affairs, and, haggard and dirty, after an all-night railroad ride where there are no sleepers and one does with five strangers in the coupe, the cabby hustled the writer up to the ministry of state and my card admitted me at once to his excellency. Such is the intelligent cabby of the Balkans, obeying orders, in the name of the King. Correspondents, too, at such times, are billeted on the householders by an attaché of the ministry, and if one's boarding house keeper should have friends of her own as regards visiting friends during the fiscal week, and vent her disappointment on you by sour looks, there is nothing to be done but grin and bear it. As a last resort there is the American consul and his dragoman and wife have a splendid room right on the Theater Plaza, which they can be induced to rent out.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. J. E. Wagoner, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I can most heartily recommend your Castoria to the public as a remedy for children's complaints. I have tried it and found it of great value."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession as a remedy for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Dr. F. E. Markey, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very effective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."

Dr. F. H. Kyle, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "It affords me pleasure to add my name to the long list of those who have used and now endorse your Castoria. The fact of the ingredients being known through the printing of the formula on the wrapper is one good and sufficient reason for the recommendation of any physician. I know of its good qualities and recommend it cheerfully."

TO SETTLE FATE

Future of Northern League Will Be Decided January 28.

Annual Meeting of Magnates Will Discuss Circuit Question.

L. A. Van Praagh, manager of the Duluth baseball team, will be the representative of the Duluth club to the annual meeting of the Northern league, which will be held in either Fargo or Grand Forks, on Jan. 28, two weeks from today.

The meeting will decide the fate of the Northern league, and whether it will be in existence another year. At the close of last season's play every club in the league but Winnipeg was disgusted with the game, and the stockholders all ready to quit for good. The Duluth management announced at that time that it had had enough of baseball. Grand Forks and Fargo were both heavily losers. Superior and Crookston forfeited their franchises by quitting before the season was ended. Winnipeg alone cleared expenses, in spite of having a losing team.

With this disgruntled condition of affairs facing them, the league magnates will come together on Jan. 28 and attempt to evolve order out of chaos. The question of the circuit is the most important one. Just what clubs from the old circuit will send representatives to signify their willingness to continue in the game another year is not known. It is likely that Crookston will be dropped from the league in any event. Superior will probably be retained if the club is willing to continue. The other clubs are all likely to remain in the league. The towns will be taken in is a very uncertain proposition. Chippewa Falls, Eau Claire, Brainerd and St. Cloud are the most likely, but nothing definite will be known until the league meeting.

The question of a salary limit will probably come up, and some salary rule is likely to be laid down. The salary limit was fixed last year at $500 a month, but it was a well known fact that there was not a team in the league that had a salary list of less than $1400, and some went as high as $2500 a month at times during the season. The result was bankruptcy. Some limit will be agreed upon this year and the rule rigidly enforced. In this case the competition between the managers for a winning team will not be allowed to run up the expenses past the point where the receipts are likely to reach.

IVORY GAME IS DISCUSSED

By George Sutton, the Famous Armless Billiard Expert.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—George Sutton, the armless billiard expert, and all things considered, the most wonderful exponent of the game the world has ever seen, expressed some interesting ideas about the "gentleman's game" after his exhibition at Foley's Friday afternoon.

"Do you know," he said, "that the one thing about billiards, undoubtedly the most important, is the thing which cannot be accounted for, is the losing and regaining of one's stroke. Take, for example, the 30 and out playing of the stars. One day they will click out within three figures, and the next day, feeling equally as well, if it is not better, they will lose it. It is that inconsistency of stroke that makes the game the most difficult of all games to play. I have yet to see the man who can explain why he can perform one feat and then fail to do it the next time."

"Take myself, for instance. My physical infirmities and my griping of the eye are such my stroke is inconsistent, but it is not so in the first part of the game as it is in the last. I could not hit my stroke right, because I had lost my stroke. When I regained it, after the twentieth inning, I could not hit it."

"Did you ever know," he continued, "that all billiard players are cranky? They invariably fly the cause of the poor playing to the ball, the cushions, the cue, the table, etc., instead of to themselves. They will deny it, but it is a fact, nevertheless."

Sutton spent most winter in Paris, where his namesake, who has two good arms, and several other American experts have recently played most of their important matches. Regarding the players on the other side Sutton said:

"Schaefer, for his age and what he has gone through, is a wonder. Sutton can beat him at any game on the table over 500 points, as the Frenchman is getting old and is completely out of shape. I am sure that he is not a strong player. I saw Wright play while in Frisco and must credit him with being the best close player for an amateur. I have seen him play the game in a number of ways. He won a coast tournament in which he played the points and won it with a grand average of 15. He engaged Billy Spinks in a 500 point game at Los

PITTSBURG PHIL WILL SOON CASH IN HIS LAST TICKET

Noted Turf Plunger Can Not Live Much Longer and Is on the Verge of the Grave in Asheville, N. C. Despite His Critical Condition He Continues To Pick Winners.

Asheville, N. C., Jan. 14.—George Smith, the race track plunger, better known as "Pittsburg Phil," is here in a sanitarium, critically ill, in fact on the verge of the grave. He has been here several weeks.

Notwithstanding his condition, he did not forget his old friends on Christmas day. To each he sent a token of remembrance.

His ruling passion, "picking the winners," has not forsaken him. He continues, though weak and in pain, to select, to select, with the success that has made him famous, the horses to capture events on the several tracks.

"Pittsburg Phil's" death is hourly expected. Friends of his have received the sad information that "the plunger's" constitution, no longer able to withstand the awful nervous strain that years of horse racing have put upon him, has finally collapsed and the noted turf better will soon cash in his last ticket.

Drawn of feature, wasted to a mere skeleton of his former self, he hovers on the verge of the line, the crossing of which marks the end of his race. His body but a shell for a fevered brain, his every nerve strung to the pitch of most awful human suffering, he again calls upon his favorite, "Pickett, Handball—each of his favorites in turn, pleads with them, cries to them his hopes, sets upon them phantom fortunes and falls upon his pillows, weak, exhausted, a mental wreck, whispering his huzzas of fancied triumph as his selections cross the line.

His approaching end and his attendant delirium mark this man as the victim of that wonderful self-expression that made him famous wherever horses ran and bets were laid. From Phil's features or actions whether his bet upon any race was a clear or a fortune. His was the face of the sprit to those who sought to read his mind, his feelings, his hopes and his fears.

And this wonderful self-expression, this through mastery of the nervous system, this is what is killing him as surely as the fevered disease. His disease is beyond the cure of medicine.

Casting his lot in a maelstrom where men are but the playthings of an awful power, where the end is death and the bodies swayed in the agonies of "the race" are as things mad, Phil was like a rock around which eddies and flows this terrible current, sweeping against him on all sides, but never moving him in the least.

It is any wonder, after twenty odd years of such a life, that today, on the verge of final dissolution, the nerves give away and the mind goes. George Considine said of him: "Phil was advised years ago what his end would be, what the breakdown would mean, and the ablest specialists counseled him to rock—to mix up in the whirlpool. He listened and turned away. What his thoughts were no man can tell. Today he is dying and his end will be soon, and naught will remain of him but the history of his nerve, his body, his good judgment as a "plunger" and the further fact that he won in the space of three minutes $25,000—a fortune, some say.

News of Phil's approaching end reached Broadway recently and many good things were said to his credit. George Considine said of him: "When the season closed he last year Phil was a total wreck—he had bet right and left, recklessly, but every turn of the wheel of fortune found him the net of chance. We persuaded him to take a rest, for he was prostrated by a man in a million—true to his friends and with no enemies worth the keeping."

Others echoed Considine's epitaph.

COMMENCE WORK

Oarsmen Will Do Preliminary Training In Y. M. C. A.

Boat Club Will Hold a Regatta This Summer.

Within two or three weeks candidates for the boat club crew will commence training in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The boat club is going to take up the racing game in earnest this year, and hopes to get an eight together that will cut some figure in the regatta held in surrounding cities.

The members of last year's crew will all be available again this year, and a number of new men will try for positions in the shell. The club is planning to hold a regatta in Duluth this year, and issue invitations to the rowing clubs in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Winnipeg to attend. The regatta was planned for last year, but the trip to Madison and the debt on the new building, left the finances of the club in bad condition, and it was not thought advisable to go to any further expense in the way of a regatta.

The eight club is planning to move into separate quarters this year. The members are anxious to have a boat house situated on the side of the canal. Their removal will enable the boat club to take in a number of new members and the management is looking for some good material for the crews.

Owing to the late spring in Duluth, the boat club has been unable to start its season. In St. Paul and Minneapolis the oarsmen are able to get out from under the ice and are now in the water. The Duluth crew can find open water. The local men will endeavor to offset this advantage by doing some preliminary training in the gymnasium and about Feb. 1 they will commence regular work.

SLOAN NOW IN A SOFT BERTH

Acceptance of Corrigan Contract Assures American Career.

New York, Jan. 14.—Tod Sloan will ride in this country after all. The famous jockey has apparently given up hope of being reinstated by the Jockey club, and has accepted a contract with the supreme court of France in his favor, and has signed a contract to ride this season for Edward Corrigan, the "master of Hawthorne," who will head a proposed revolution of tracks in the Eastern United States. Sloan has been spending a short vacation at Los Angeles, but he turned up in Chicago Wednesday night after a consultation with one of Corrigan's right hand men he put his name to a contract. The terms of the Jockey's contract were not made public, but it is said that he will receive a salary of $10,000 for the season. While he was in the Eastern United States, Sloan was earning $50,000 a year, but his good judgment as a "plunger" and the further fact that he won in the space of three minutes $25,000—a fortune, some say.

News of Phil's approaching end reached Broadway recently and many good things were said to his credit. George Considine said of him: "When the season closed he last year Phil was a total wreck—he had bet right and left, recklessly, but every turn of the wheel of fortune found him the net of chance. We persuaded him to take a rest, for he was prostrated by a man in a million—true to his friends and with no enemies worth the keeping."

Others echoed Considine's epitaph.

When Sloan appears in a Corrigan silk jacket, therefore it will be his first appearance in the saddle on the American race track since he rode the late W. C. Whitney's Ballyhoo Boy to victory in the Futurity of 1900. Mr. Whitney brought him here from England expressly for this race, paying all expenses and handling him a handsome sum for his services after the race. Since then Sloan has had his troubles. In signing to ride in the West Sloan has received assurance that he will get a license from the Western Jockey club if there is no war, for that body has never recognized the rulings of the English and French Jockey clubs, the Reiffs, Milton Henry and other boys who got into difficulty abroad having been allowed to ride just the same on the Western tracks afterward.

In the event of a split in the Western Jockey club, Sloan will have the protection of Corrigan, so that he can not lose whichever way the wind blows. In the meantime the Jockey hopes that the English turf authorities will raise the ban so that some day he will be allowed to ride again in the East.

While Sloan is much older than the average jockey of today, he is so constituted that he will never be heavy to ride. Last summer, when he was exercising horses at the local tracks, he said he could put the scales at 160 pounds and he was able to jump into silks and the saddle at a day's notice. Corrigan has a powerful racing stable and Sloan will fit in very well.

Trying to learn advertising before learning business is like putting on the roof of a house before building the foundation.

RANSOM H. THOMAS, NOMINATED FOR PRESIDENT OF UNITED STATES GOLF ASSOCIATION.

Ransom H. Thomas, nominated for the presidency of the United States Golf association, was long identified with the game when it began in the East. But of late years has not held such offices as would make his name familiar to Western golfers. In 1897, 1898 and 1899 Mr. Thomas was one of the two vice-presidents of the United States Golf association and represented the Morris County club. When the amateur championship was held on the Morris links in 1897, Mr. Thomas was on hand to help run the tournament. As president of it in 1898, he was a witness to the triumph of the Morris County club. Mr. Thomas will be the second man of that name to hold the office of United States Golf association president, Washington B. Thomas, of the country club, Brookline, Mass., having been president in 1900. The election will take place at Delmonico's, Feb. 10. Nomination always has meant election, and no opposition is expected.

COLD FEET GIVEN

As Reason For Jimmy Gardner Evading Match With Gans.

Frankie and Tommy Murphy Will Fight This Month.

San Francisco, Jan. 14.—As near as can be judged at this writing the main event in pugilism this month will be a twenty-round contest between Frankie Neil, the San Francisco bantam, and Tommy Murphy, the Eastern mauler. The match was decided upon by the San Francisco Athletic club and others and been considered and abandoned.

The main event in pugilism this month will be a twenty-round contest between Frankie Neil, the San Francisco bantam, and Tommy Murphy, the Eastern mauler. The match was decided upon by the San Francisco Athletic club and others and been considered and abandoned.

As a rule, contests between little men are not the best of drawing cards in this city, but now that good-looking matches are undeniably scarce it is highly probable that the public will want to see Neil-Murphy go. One thing in its favor is that the little fellows are considered to be on a par so far as fighting ability is concerned.

Some time ago Gans and Gardner were all signed up, and the negro came on to San Francisco and began training. Gardner sent word that he would be along just as soon as he and his disposal of some kind and an unsatisfactory ending to the Canale-Gardner bout. Neil and Gans came up again. The San Francisco club wanted the event for a January card. George Gardner, the light heavy weight, acted for his brother and sent out a number of telegrams to Neil, asking him to come to San Francisco as to the weight to be fought at and the way in which the prize money should be divided. Neil, however, declined the offer, and Neil-Murphy was the result.

Greggins attended to all the details of the fight, and the two men were to meet on a night to be made at 6 o'clock in the evening. Everything seemed to be lovely and the people dangled at the attitude who were expected to come sizzling through from Denver. It was from Jimmy Gardner to Alex Gregg that the fight was to be made. "I have signed to box two men here."

SPORTING GOSSIP

Stories and Comment For the Fan and Lover of Sport.

Live Topics In Baseball, Curling and the Ring.

A superannuated fan was recalling with glowing enthusiasm, some of the remarkable running-with-the-ball catches, he had seen Spike Shannon make on the old Lexington park grounds in St. Paul. "Yes," said Spike, who overheard him, "those over-your-shoulder, face-toward-the-fence, going-at-top-speed catches are spectacular, but they are not the real tests of an outfielder's ability. The catches where you come in at a ten-second clip and pick the ball out of your shoe-laces are what show whether or not a man is fitted for fact company."

A pompous young man had conceived the idea that he could show some of the big fellows how to pick flies out of the clouds, pestered Patsy Tebeaux nearly to death during the spring practice at Hot Springs, back in the '90's. The youth offered to work for $30 a month, and Patsy finally gave him a chance one day when the regulars were sore and stiff.

The game was a fast one, and the youth had been passed to first when another Tebeaux was on third. The signal for a double steal was given, and the man on third hit the dust for the plate only to find the ball in the catcher's hand when he arrived. The youth was still hugging fire the only way in which he didn't run?" inquired Patsy in a frenzy.

"I didn't think I could make it," was the self-satisfied reply.

"You didn't think?" roared Patsy. "Who told you to think? If I had been hiring men to think, you would never have been there."

There is a strong probability that both the major and minor leagues will adopt a farming rule in the near future. The matter will come up for consideration at the next meeting of the national commission. There has been much opposition to such legislation in the past, but some of the amateurs went to such extremes in trying to evade the law that it became ridiculous. C. S. Haver, of the Milwaukee club, is a strong advocate of the farming law. In a recent interview he said:

"There is no doubt but farming was much abused in the past, but I have studied the matter a great deal and feel convinced that the only way to pass a farming law, and it will do away with much of the covering up of young players by managers at the present time. I think that where a club is willing to take a young player for a trial and pay his expenses, it is a monstrous waste of money. It gives the youngster a chance to develop at no cost to himself, and gives the club some return for the chances taken in developing the player."

Northern league magnates are just commencing to forget the season's losses and lay plans for getting back the money thrown into the game in 1904.

The meeting of the league will be held in the latter part of the month, and plans laid for the coming season. It is to be hoped that this year some of the rules will be laid down that will prohibit managers bankrupting themselves in their efforts to get a young player. If the salary limit were fixed at a proper figure, and stringently enforced, it would do away with the ruinous competition that forced the managers to carry teams last year that cost as much or nearly as much as the association teams playing in cities with a population of 100,000.

There is no reason why Duluth at least should not support a baseball team on an economical basis.

The much-discussed "Freshman rule" has been killed at the University of Minnesota. The rule bars freshmen from taking part in athletic contests, and was urged with a view to preventing professionalism and the hustling for promising players by the different universities. Half of the schools in the "Big Nine" have voted against the rule and it is now practically a dead letter.

It is unfortunate that another winter has passed in Duluth without some action being taken toward the construction of a large covered rink, centrally located, to be devoted to hockey, skating, polo and other ice sports. The little town of Houghton has such a rink, and it has enabled the enthusiasts to get together a team that has advertised the city throughout the country. The Portage Lake hockey team has a reputation from New York and Pittsburgh to the coast, and throughout Canada it is recognized as one of the most formidable exponents of Canada's national game.

Duluth has just as good material in the hockey line. There are a host of old Canadian stars in the city who would take up the game again on the slightest provocation, and a number of younger players who passed through the polo school, are good material for a crack team.

The followers of the sport hope to see such a rink constructed before next winter.

The victory of the Duluth curlers in the game Wednesday evening with Superior was counted of much significance. It is recognized as a number of the members of the local club, and will give all the followers of the game in Duluth an opportunity to contest for the beautiful Stanley-McLennan agency prizes and the possession of the cup.

The board also re-elected Gilmore Dobie as assistant football coach. Dobie has held that position since the season of 1902.
